MEXICANS FREE JENKINS, BUT TENSION IS NOT ENDED; SENATORS FIND WILSON FULLY ALERT AT CONFERENCE; SUPREME COUNCIL DEFERS ITS ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY

FAST TRAINS STOP; FREIGHT SERVICE CUT TO SAVE COAL

WAR MEASURES SURPASSED

RUSH-HOUR CARS HEATLESS

New Measures Considered to Conserve Fuel—City Receipts Give No Cause for Alarm.

Curtailment of train service to meet the shortage of coal was announced yesterday by A. T. Hardin, Regional Director of Railroads for the Eastern District. The changes will take effect at 12:01 o'clock Wednesday morning. Train service is put back practically upon a wartime basis; the New York Central's famous train, the Twentieth Century Limited, is withdrawn for the first time since it was established, twenty-five years ago; no special trains will be permitted either for business or for pleasure and second sections of regular trains will be withdrawn. Mr. Hardin's order follows:

"For the purpose of conserving fuel available and to protect and provide essential transportation, an order has been given for a reduction in passenger train service effective 12:01 A. M. Wednesday, Dec. 10, on all railroads in the eastern region.

"The Twentieth Century Limited of the New York Central Railroad will discontinue operation after the train completes its trip leaving terminals on Tuesday, Dec. 9. This is necessary not only to conserve fuel but also to afford the freest facilities for the expeditious movement of fuel where there may be acute shortages, especially in the West, at the present time. Passengers who have obtained reservations upon this train for dates after its suspension will, so far as practicable, be accommodated on other through trains upon application to the ticket agent.

"The reduction in service will be general upon all roads, and will be made, so far as practicable, on the several lines having common termini to support each other and afford the maximum service with a minimum number of trains, and with the least inconvenience possible to the traveling public. No special trains are to be run for business or pleasure travel. No second sections of regular trains will be operated, except in case of coach travel to and from cities of dense population, and then only when absolutely indispensable.

"The revised schedules are now being prepared and will be posted in all stations and information will be furnished to all agencies and to the press as quickly as possible."

Official announcement was also made that the Broadway Limited, the twenty-hour train on the Pennsylvania Railroad between New York and Chicago, would be discontinued on Dec. 10.

A reduction of 10 per cent. in passenger and freight schedules was also ordered on New England railroads, effective on Dec. 10. The order, which was issued by the Railroad Administration at Washington, follows generally the order to other regions.

At the office of the Tidewater Exchange the representative of the Fuel Administration, the opinion was expressed yesterday that there was no occasion for alarm, and it was pointed out that the permits had been issued to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company allowing that concern a sufficient and normal amount to meet requirements during the next two weeks.

"At the present time," an official said, "we have 3,476 car loads of bituminous coal at tidewater in New York Harbor. Each car contains about fifty tons, which means that we have about 183,800 tons on hand. This is about one-half our normal supply. Yesterday we dumped 482 carloads of bituminous coal, and we expect to dump about the same amount today. If we are to continue dumping coal at yesterday's rate our present supply would last us about seven and one-fourth days. However, we do not expect to dump more than 200 car loads a day, commencing tomorrow. As a consequence the amount we have on hand should last us about sixteen days."

The new order refusing coal to foreign ships went into effect yesterday, and this order is expected to effect a saving of about 20,000 tons a day.

The Cunard liner Imperator will not be delayed in sailing on Dec. 10, her agents said yesterday, by lack of coal, as she had enough in her bunkers for the trip to Southampton. Shipping men said yesterday that steamships which could not carry sufficient fuel for a round trip would have to lie up until the fuel situation improved, as facilities for

Illinois Manufacturers Start Boycott on Striking Miners

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—John M. Glenn, Secretary of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, announced today that members of his organization had begun a boycott of clothing, food, fuel, and other necessities against the striking coal miners of the State.

He said members of the association are conducting the boycott as individuals as retaliation against the strikers who are responsible for the fuel famine.

Secretary Glenn received a letter from one of his members today which read:

"I have held up every order that comes from a mining community, and I will continue to hold up such orders so long as the strike is on and they are preventing coal from coming to us."

MISSOURI DECIDES TO RUN COAL MINES

MARTIAL LAW TO PREVAIL

Special to The New York Times.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 5.—The coal miners of Missouri remained from work, except in two isolated cases, and the State will proceed at once to operate the mines in Barton County. This afternoon Adjt. Gen. Clark was advised by State Labor Commissioner William G. Lewis, who is in the mining district, that at noon today all the mines were idle and that the miners had paid no heed to the ultimatum of Governor Gardner yesterday to the effect that if they did not return to work by noon today the State would proceed to operate the mines.

The machinery of the State Government has now been set in motion. The whole mining field will be placed under strict military control, a line being thrown around all the mines, and it will be forbidden to enter the territory without a pass from the military authorities. The Barton County fields will be in effect a big military camp, under strict military discipline. No public meetings will be permitted, nor will the public be allowed to visit the quarters occupied by the men working in the mines.

Colonel E. M. Stayton of Independence, who has been appointed superintendent of the State's operation, is now in the mining district, and the State, it is said, is assured of ample men to work the mines.

"Drastic measures will be adopted when the State starts to operate the Barton County mines," said the Adjutant General today. "There will be no speechmaking, and all efforts will be toward producing actual results and affording the public the relief so earnestly desired."

Governor Gardner today postponed the meeting of the Governors and Attorneys General of ten States set for next Sunday at St. Louis. The first conference of these State officials was held at Chicago last Sunday. As no official action has yet been taken at Washington on the recommendations made last Sunday, the Governor said the second conference would be postponed until there is something from the Federal Fuel Administration to submit to the conference.

ALLIES DIVIDED ON ULTIMATUM'S TERMS TO BERLIN

Rumor That Our Rhine Troops Won't Be Used if Force Is Applied.

NOTE MAY BE SENT SUNDAY

Hope Expressed That Americans May Modify Protocol by Certain Reservations.

OUR MISSION GOING TUESDAY

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The situation here is in sum as follows:

1. The British Government is showing signs of changing its Scapa Flow demands as the result of pressure from the American delegates.

2. There is a military party in France which, in view of the uncertainty about America's future position, holds that the only way to give France real security is to cripple Germany now. Premier Clemenceau is at bottom non-militarist and broad-minded, but has many enemies lying in wait for him and must walk warily. No Entente statesman can put himself in a position of tenderness for the Germans.

3. Through the efforts of the American delegates the situation has been near solution several times, and it is barely possible that the protocol will be signed before they leave Paris on Tuesday.

4. Insistence on the return of the whole American Commission immediately is regarded here as perhaps good policy from Washington's point of view, but it is calculated to hurt American prestige in Europe. Already it is being said with a shrug of the shoulders that "America came late and is leaving early."

5. There is a good deal of bluffing going on all around, but probably the German Government would sign anything short of its own political death warrant. The hope of Mr. Polk's getting the Allies and Germany together before next Wednesday lies in his holding some trump cards in the shape of reservations put into the protocol giving the American Government the right of review.

Ultimatum May Be Sent Sunday.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The Supreme Council did not send an ultimatum to Germany today, as had been expected. It is understood that there is lack of agreement among the Allies on the strength of the terms to be used, coupled with a question as to whether all the allied and associated powers are willing to have their troops on the Rhine used for the further advance into Germany which would be the outcome of the ultimatum proposed by Marshal Foch should Germany persist in her defiance. The United States has 12,000 men on the Rhine, the British have 30,000, and France has 300,000 men under arms. Should it become necessary to use military force, the French are very anxious to have all the allied and associated powers participate.

Field Marshal Wilson of England is due in Paris today, and it is reported that he will confer with Marshal Foch and General Bliss. While the Allies have something like 350,000 troops at their disposal, Marshal Foch's own figures place the strength of Germany's

The Washington Herald Changes Ownership; Lowden, Crane, Hoover Mentioned as Buyers

The Washington Herald was sold yesterday by Clinton Tyler Brainard, the owner, to western interests said to include Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, Charles R. Crane of Chicago, and Herbert Hoover, former United States Food Administrator. The purchase price was said to be above $300,000. This includes the plant and the daily and Sunday issues of the paper.

Importance is attached to the sale from the conjuntion of these three names as among the purchasers. The Washington Herald has hitherto been independent in politics, with a leaning toward Democracy and support of the present Administration. Governor Lowden is an avowed candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. Mr. Crane was a Republican, but bolted Taft for Wilson and has been regarded as a Wilson man since. His son was recently appointed by Mr. Wilson Minister to Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Hoover has been claimed by both parties. Although he was said to be of Republican origin, and therefore a probable Republican, last year he publicly supported Mr. Wilson's appeal for the election of a Democratic Congress, and he has been spoken of as a possible Democratic nominee.

None of the three persons named could be reached by THE TIMES last night.

The Washington Herald was established about thirteen years ago. Mr. Brainard, who is the President and Treasurer of Harper Brothers and the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, had owned the paper for nearly seven years. At the Harvard Club last night when he was asked to confirm the sale he declined to make any statement.

It is understood that Mr. Brainard's other business interests, which prevented him from giving his personal attention to The Herald, was his chief reason for disposing of it, as the publication had been fairly successful. His general manager and personal representative in the paper is L. M. Bell, who will continue with the new owners. The Herald was founded by Scott C. Bone.

Ban on "Home Brew" Ends Last Oasis in "Dry" Michigan

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 5.—The death knell of the "home brew," a product that has done yeoman duty since Michigan became dry, was sounded today when John A. Grogan, Internal Revenue Collector for this district, issued orders that all concerns dealing in the required ingredients immediately cease selling them.

The order closes about sixty concerns in Detroit alone and a large number in other cities. According to the authorities here the instructions came from Washington.

Many of the dealers, the Federal officers say, advertised their product in national magazines and claimed they were immune from prosecution until Jan. 1.

POPPING MANHOLES ALONG BROADWAY

THEATRES AND HOTELS DARK

Bicycle Race Stopped—Electric Conduits Affected—Firemen Fight Flames and Fumes.

Manhole covers went popping high into the air, plate glass windows crashed and showered splinters into the streets, cracks appeared in the sidewalks, dark columns of smoke went skyward and lights went out about 8 o'clock last night when accumulations of gas in the underground conduits and vaults of the New York Edison Company and the Consolidated Gas Company exploded in the neighborhood of Broadway from Twenty-sixth to Thirty-first Street.

Broadway trolley traffic was halted for three hours until the worst of the smouldering fires which followed the explosion had been extinguished by dumping sand down the manholes.

More than two hours later, while firemen still were making a stiff fight against the burning insulation in which the acrid fumes hampered them, word was received at Madison Square Garden that the lights there soon would be extinguished, the six-day bicycle race was halted and spectators were required to leave.

After Chief Kenlon had inspected the lighting system of the building he allowed the race to be resumed, and such spectators as had remained nearby were permitted to return.

Chief Kenlon took personal charge of the fire fight, in which he was assisted by emergency crews sent by the two companies involved, while reserves from a half dozen police stations kept back the curious.

Many buildings were shaken and their occupants hurried into the streets, believing there had been either an earthquake or a bomb outrage. The cover of a manhole in front of the New York Edison Company's building, near Sixth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street, was blown so high that it disappeared, presumably having fallen on some roof. The dense smoke penetrated into the building and into that of the International Fur Market at 45 West Twenty-seventh Streeet. There was a noisy explosion in front of the Hotel Breslin which brought many excited guests rushing from the hotel. Another cover was blown through the window of the Regal Shoe Company at Broadway and Twenty-seventh Street, while the sidewalk in front was cracked.

The lights went out at Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre while an actress was singing. She concluded and was replaced by an actor who told the audience quietly what had happened and asked them to leave singing. He started "Nobody Knows, Nobody Cares," and to that tune the audience went out, guided by the flash lamps of ushers.

Smoke penetrated the subway, and service on the B. R. T. line was stopped for fifteen minutes till it was ascertained there was no fire inside the tube.

At 9 o'clock Chief Kenlon had all manhole covers in the affected district removed for fear of more explosions and ordered the police to permit no one to approach a building at Broadway and Twenty-seventh Street in which all windows had been broken. He feared a gas explosion within the building itself.

The plate-glass windows of the New York Telephone Company at 1,158 Broadway were smashed and two patrolmen nearby had a lucky escape when a manhole cover went skyward between them, followed by a pillar of flame. There was another explosion, sending three covers into the air, in Twenty-seventh Street, between Fourth and Fifth Avenues, an hour after the trouble started.

A building at 55 West Twenty-seventh Street, occupied by the War Camp Community Service, was shaken and many

40-MINUTE TALK ON MEXICO

SPLIT ARISES OVER BREAK

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Special Committee, consisting of Senators Fall and Hitchcock, named by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations to seek a personal interview with President Wilson on the Mexican situation, was received by the President at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. The conference lasted forty minutes.

This personal interview disposed of rumors that President Wilson was in no condition to direct American action in the perturbing state of affairs that has developed between the United States and the Carranza Government. The two Senators who interviewed the President with the ill-concealed purpose on the part of members of the Foreign Relations Committee to ascertain the truth or falsity of the many rumors that he was in no physical or mental condition to attend to important public business, came away from the White House convinced that his mind was vigorous and active.

One of these Senators, Mr. Fall, Republican, of New Mexico, has been a severe critic of President Wilson. It was he who offered the resolution to withdraw American recognition of the Carranza Government that brought about the effort to get first-hand information as to the state of the President's health.

News Brought of Jenkins's Release.

A dramatic touch was given to the interview between the President and the two Senate emissaries by the sudden appearance of Rear Admiral Grayson, the President's physician, with the announcement that Jenkins, around whose imprisonment the Mexican crisis centred, had been freed last night. The President was lying propped up in bed. The two Senators sat by his bedside.

"Pardon me for interrupting, gentlemen," said Dr. Grayson, as he entered the sick room, "but Secretary Lansing has asked me to tell you immediately that Jenkins has been released."

The message concerning Jenkins had come to the State Department while the conference was on. Secretary Lansing telephoned to the White House that he desired the information to be given to the two Senators immediately. Dr. Grayson confided to some of his friends that the news of Jenkins's release fitted into the situation so dramatically that he felt like an actor making a sensational enntrance as he broke in upon the deliberations of the President and his visitors.

Senator Fall represented the Republican critics of the President at the conference. Senator Hitchcock was chosen as the President's friend. The Foreign Relations Committee had learned from Secretary Lansing that President Wilson had not been informed of the critical aspect of the Jenkins case in the dealings between the Carranza Government and the United States. The whole delicate matter had been handled by the State Department, under Mr. Lansing's direction and following a policy previously determined upon.

But when Senators Hitchcock and Fall entered the sickroom at the White House they found that the President had become acquainted with the main features of the Jenkins case and had some idea of the general charges against the Carranza Government that had been made by Senator Fall.

The two Senators were with the President for forty minutes. They found him cheerful and inclined to joke about the alarmist reports of the nature of his illness. It was evident that he had been told of the gossip about the state of his health. Senator Hitchcock said after the interview that the President looked much better than when he saw him recently.

The request for the interview had been made to Joseph P. Tumulty, the Secretary to the President, who had referred it to Rear Admiral Grayson. The request was granted after Admiral Grayson had consulted Mrs. Wilson. Both were satisfied that the President would be able to stand the physical strain that would come from discussing an important public question with the official emissaries of the Senate.

Before entering the White House the two Senators asked Admiral Grayson how long they might remain with the President. Admiral Grayson set no time limit. As a result, there was a full and free discussion of the Mexican situation.

Senators Hitchcock and Fall were with

Text of Lansing Statement on Jenkins's Release; Peons Forced to Testify Falsely in the Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The official announcement of the liberation of Jenkins, issued this evening by the State Department, reads:

> The release of William O. Jenkins, the American Consular Agent at Puebla, Mexico, was reported late this afternoon from the American Embassy at Mexico City.
>
> The Secretary of State announced that a dispatch from the embassy stated that Third Secretary Hanna of the embassy, who was sent to Puebla in connection with the department's repeated representations for the immediate release of Jenkins, had reported that Jenkins was released from the penitentiary last night.
>
> Jenkins was abducted Oct. 19, and the American Embassy was immediately instructed to take all possible measures to effect his release from the bandits who had robbed and kidnapped him. Jenkins was released on ransom, returning to Puebla Oct. 26, was taken to a hospital on that date, and was arrested Nov. 15 by the Mexican authorities and taken into custody.
>
> The release of Consular Agent Jenkins was brought about by urgent diplomatic representations made by this Government and the resulting investigation made by General Pablo Gonzalez, who was sent to Puebla by the Mexican Government to investigate the facts in the case. The investigation by General Gonzalez, who was at Puebla on Dec 3, had then practically substantiated the position taken by this Government on behalf of Jenkins.
> Two peons from Santa Lucia admitted to General Gonzalez that they had made declaration against Jenkins under threat of execution. Other witnesses testified they had been compelled to make false statements against Jenkins under duress. One witness was threatened with a pistol, another suspended by a rope, and still another beaten until he made his declaration against Jenkins.
>

WILSON WON'T ACT ON TREATY NOW

TO DROP PEACE RESOLUTION

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Wilson intimated to Senator Hitchcock today that he would wait awhile before making any move regarding the Peace Treaty. Mr. Hitchcock asked the President about his intentions with respect to the treaty, just as he was leaving the Mexican conference.

"The President," said Senator Hitchcock, "said that he regarded responsibility for the treaty as having been shifted from his shoulders to others, and that he was disposed to let it rest there awhile."

Mr. Hitchcock said he took this to mean that the President would do nothing at all for the present, leaving the Senate to work out a compromise or not, as it saw fit. He will not even withdraw the treaty from the Senate files with a view to its resubmission and is in no hurry about writing a message on it, in Mr. Hitchcock's opinion.

In the interim, Mr. Hitchcock said, he believed public opinion would gradually work up such a demand for ratification that it would be brought about without the President having to take an active hand in the efforts at adjustment.

The suggestion was heard today that Mr. Wilson might elect to submit the Austrian treaty before attempting to revive the Versailles agreement. Since the Austrian treaty also contains the League of Nations covenant, the compromise on reservations, with the single exception of the Shantung provision, would be possible in that treaty. Once worked out on that, a compromise could quickly be applied to the German treaty, it was pointed out.

Talk of pushing the Lodge resolution declaring peace has virtually died out. So much opposition developed within Mr. Lodge's own party, both in the House and the the Senate, that the plan is deemed inopportune. Senator Lodge is now being urged to bring before his committee the tripartite agreement between the United States, Great Britain, and France for special defensive measures against any new German aggression. Mr. Lodge said he intended to get this agreement before the committee at the earliest opportunity.

JAPAN'S EYES ON AMERICA.

Keenly Interested in Peace Treaty Developments Here.

TOKIO, Dec. 3 (Associated Press).—Responsible Japanese circles are keenly interested in peace developments in the United States, believing a settlement of the matter, even with reservations, essential to world reconstruction.

The conviction is growing in Japan that the United States, which the war left with fewer wounds than the other Western nations, must co-operate in the readjustment of international affairs. Whatever may be the American Senate's ultimate action on the provisions of the peace treaty dealing with Shantung, Japan, it is believed here, is prepared to carry out her announced project of restoration.

SEIZE 98 IN RAID ON STEEL STRIKERS

TROOPERS RIDE INTO HALL

Prisoners Charged with Conspiracy and Intimidation to Prevent Work in Plants.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 5.—Ninety-eight men were arrested today at Donora, a steel town on the Monongahela River thirty miles from here, when troopers of the State Police raided Lithuanian Hall, headquarters of the striking steel workers in that district. The arrests were made six hours after a crudely made dynamite bomb had been exploded at the home of Felix Burkhart, a carpenter employed by the American Steel and Wire Company. William Hodge, local organizer of the steel workers, was one of the prisoners.

The men were taken to jail, each being charged with conspiracy and intimidation to prevent men from working in the steel mills. This afternoon they were arraigned before Grover W. Boyd, a Justice of the Peace, and each was held in $500 bail for a hearing next Thursday. Those who were unable to furnish bond, and they constituted the majority, were taken tonight to the County Jail at Washington, Pa. All were foreigners, it was said, except seven.

The raid was the culmination of a campaign by the authorities to rid the community of men who, they say, have been suspected of being implicated in bomb explosions that have made Donora one of the storm centres since the steel strike was called last September. The Burkhart house was damaged, but none of its occupants was hurt.

Soon after the explosion Lithuanian Hall was surrounded by policemen, some of them mounted. Two constables forced their horses up the few steps leading from the street to the building and, riding down the centre aisle, they ordered the men assembled there to leave. As they emerged from the building they were taken into custody and quickly removed to the town jail.

W. Z. Foster, Secretary of the committee, was in New York, it was stated, but was expected to return tomorrow.

The raid caused much excitement among the foreigners. Several hundred men and women gathered around the police station, and for a time it was thought trouble would result, but the State Police dispersed the crowd.

UNION ASSAILS GOVERNMENT

Central Federation Calls Policy in Coal Strike Un-American.

The Central Federated Union last night adopted a resolution condemning the policy of the Government in the coal strike, expressed sympathy with the striking miners and confidence in their ultimate success.

The resolution said:

"Whereas, such procedure is a flagrant example of injustice, of un-Americanism, and a violation of all the past traditions and practices of the relations between capital and labor, in which the Government agencies have had a hand, and

"Whereas, the abuse of the injunction, the violation of Constitutional rights, the morally indefensible action taken, the outraging of the sentiments of the great rank and file of organized labor and the great masses of the American people, all are involved in this issue, therefore be it

"Resolved, That the Central Federated Union, all of its affiliated unions, the rank and file of these local unions, declare in the most emphatic terms their protest against such tactics; that they are unalterably opposed to the use of such methods."

PEONS WERE THREATENED

Report That Another Man Gave Bail for Jenkins Not Credited by Washington.

While Severe Tension Is Relieved, Mr. Lansing Makes It Clear Incident Is Not Closed.

Mexicans Report Jenkins Trying to Get Back Into Jail

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—W. O. Jenkins, United States Consular Agent at Puebla, who was released from prison there on Thursday night, attempted to secure his reimprisonment today, according to special dispatches received here late tonight by the Excelsior. Judicial authorities at Puebla refused to allow the consular agent to re-enter the prison.

Mr. Jenkins's move, according to the dispatches, was prompted by a desire to secure unconditional liberty, Mr. Jenkins being quoted as declaring that bail was furnished by his friend, J. Salter Hansen without his knowledge and that he refused to accept conditional freedom.

Hilario Medina, Under Secretary of Foreign Relations, is quoted by the Excelsior as stating that the release of Mr. Jenkins had removed all cause for friction between the United States and Mexico.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The demand of the American Government, twice stated in notes from Secretary Lansing to the Carranza Government, for the release of William O. Jenkins, the American Consular Agent at Puebla, Mexico, was met last night when he was set free from the penitentiary in which he had been held about two weeks.

The release of Jenkins is understood to have been by court order following an investigation made for the Carranza Government by General Pablo Gonzalez, who was sent to Puebla for that purpose. Secretary Lansing authorized the statement tonight that the result of the Gonzalez investigation "practically substantiated the position taken by this Government on behalf of Jenkins."

The release of Jenkins served to relieve the tension of the Mexican situation for the last week, but it leaves it with elements of a very serious character. It does not dispose of the contention of the American Government that Jenkins was persecuted, that he was held on trumped-up charges of falsification and collusion based on testimony of peons given under threats and duress, nor does it dispose of the argument of the American Government that while Jenkins was being persecuted and his integrity as an American diplomatic agent was being attacked by Mexican officials, these same officials had done nothing substantial toward bringing about the arrest of the bandits who kidnapped him, subjected him to suffering, and caused him heavy monetary loss by way of ransom.

Relations Remain Serious.

The release of Jenkins, in other words, it was learned from authoritative quarters tonight, does not dispose of the consideration by the American Government of the kidnapping and ransoming of Jenkins. The effect of the imprisonment of Jenkins was to introduce new and serious elements into the situation, which necessitated the demand and its reiteration for his release, and while negotiations for his release were pending the question of his kidnapping and the payment of the ransom were held in abeyance by the State Department. Now that the demand for his release has been met the department will proceed with the consideration of the demand it is to submit to the Carranza Government in the matter of the treatment of Jenkins and the payment of the ransom.

The liberation of Jenkins, while to that extent relieving the situation, leaves the relations of the two countries still at the point where it may be considered necessary at any time to withdraw the de facto recognition that had been accorded to the Carranza Government. It can be stated on authority that the Jenkins case was merely an incident in a long "train of wrongs" to which American citizens had been subjected at the hands of Mexicans as a result of the failure of the Carranza authorities to control the situation in that country.

This long train of wrongs still stands and is not forgotten by the administrative or executive branches of the Government at Washington. One official speaking of this "train of wrongs" today alluded to the Jenkins case as the "caboose" on that train, and this statement correctly represents the attitude of the Administration, as it is understood that the Government in Washington is not disposed to tolerate the further lengthening of the train of wrongs through continuation of the past attitude of the Carranza authorities.

Statement on Killing of Wallace.

The State Department is also investigating the case of James Wallace, the American employe of an oil company, who was killed by a Carranza soldier in the Tampico district last week. In regard to this case the Mexican Embassy tonight gave out a statement in which it tried to put the blame for the shooting of Wallace upon himself, by making it appear that he was intoxicated and that he provoked the shooting. This allegation is compared to the attitude of the authorities at Puebla, who did their best to make it appear that Jenkins was responsible for his own kidnapping and that he had resorted to falsification. Here is the Mexican Embassy's statement:

"James Wallace, riding a horse while in an intoxicated condition, threw himself upon a machine gun placed in an advanced post at Potrero del Llano, near Tampico, knocking it and a sentry down without answering a timely warning given him to halt.

"As the place is a dangerous one it was believed that Wallace was an enemy and, therefore, he was fired upon. He died instantly. Notwithstanding these facts, an investigation is now being carried on by the proper authorities."

This statement is at complete variance with the announcement which the State Department issued on Nov. 28, and which read:

"James Wallace, an American employe of an oil company near Tampico, was murdered by a Mexican Federal soldier at Potrero del Llano, on Wednesday, Nov. 26. The department's information is that the murder was unwarranted. The murderer has not been taken into custody. According to the department's advices, the officer in charge of the troops camped in the vicinity claimed that Wallace had provoked the murder. The department has been informed, as the result of investigation, that a mule, on which Wallace was riding to his place of employment, shied at a machine gun, which it was passing, overturning the gun. The soldier immediately shot Wallace, the bullet striking him in the neck and killing him instantly."

Report of Bail Given for Jenkins.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO, Dec. 5.—Reports received from Puebla state that Jenkins was released on Thursday night, and that bail was deposited by J. Salter Hansen. Jenkins left his cell at midnight.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—William O. Jenkins, the American Consular Agent at Puebla, was released at 10 o'clock Thursday night by order of the judge at Puebla, according to a dispatch from that city filed there at 2:30 o'clock this morning. Consul Jenkins retired immediately to his home, the message stated.

Advices to El Democrata state that Consul Jenkins was set free after the authorities had been handed a check for $500 (American) signed by J. Salter Hansen, drawn on the Guaranty Trust Company of New York. It is declared that Mr. Hansen conducted all the negotiations for the release.

The freeing of Mr. Jenkins came as a surprise to him, the dispatch adds. He was awakened from his night's sleep by Chief of Police Zavaleta, and at once dressed himself, gathered together his few belongings, and was conveyed to his home. His release, it was said, was not unexpected in Puebla.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Every effort was made here today to check up on a cabled report from Mexico City saying that according to a Puebla dispatch to a Mexico City newspaper Jenkins was released after J. Salter Hansen had deposited a $500 check for bail. Officials of the State Department said they had no information whatever concerning Hansen or the question of bail, and that they did not know Hansen. They stood on the statement that the Consular Agent had been released on demand of this Government.

In some quarters, however, there was a suggestion that there may have been a confusion of names, as Secretary Lansing announced that a dispatch from the American Embassy said Third Assistant Secretary Matthew E. Hanna had been sent to Puebla in connection with representatives for the release of Jenkins. Officials declared, however, that even if the names had been confused there was no information here to indicate that Hanna had put up bond, and in fact they expressed the utmost assurance that he had not done so.

Reports from Jenkins since his arrest and personal letters from him to relatives in this country have all quoted him as being most determined not to put up a cent of bail in order to obtain his release. This fact was cited by officials to support their contention that the release of the Consular Agent was brought about "by urgent diplomatic representations made to this Government and the resulting investigation made by General Pablo Gonzalez, who was sent to investigate the facts in the case."

The Guaranty Trust Company said yesterday that J. Salter Hansen has an account at its Fifth Avenue branch which has been inactive for some time.

At the apartment house here in which Hansen lived for two years it was said that he had gone to Mexico last June, returned in September, and on Oct. 5 had given up his suite, asking, however, that his mail be held. No further word had been received from him.

GERMAN AIRMEN IN MEXICO.

Gen. Mitchell Says He Has Information of Strong Air Force There.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Mexico has twenty-four war-type airplanes mobilized at Chihuahua City alone, and is obtaining additional planes from Germany, according to War Department information given to the House Military Committee today by Brig. Gen. Mitchell, chief of operation of the Army Air Service. The department also has information, General Mitchell said, that former pilots in the German army are arriving in Mexico for service in the army air forces there.

The United States, General Mitchell said, had produced practically no aerial war equipment since the armistice, and consequently was not capable of meeting any first-class power in the air today, as foreign countries had continued development of wartime air equipment.

Although the army owns 100 foreign-built pursuit planes, these could not be used for combatant work, he said, adding that they would be of value only for training duty, as they were out of date.

PREPARE FOR WITHDRAWAL.

EL PASO, Dec. 5.—Border representatives of American concerns in Mexico today were preparing to carry out instructions for withdrawal of American citizens employed south of the Rio Grande. While no immediate exodus of Americans, of whom there are many hundreds, is expected, agents here are endeavoringg to provide means for a quick movement north if conditions become serious.

Instructions to prepare for immediate withdrawal from Mexico came yesterday on the heels of news from Washington concerning the Mexican situation as viewed in Congress. In some cases the instructions were for immediate withdrawal, and in others calls were less urgent and apparently designed as a precautionary measure so that Americans in isolated sections of Mexico can be notified to be ready for any eventuality.

If the United States Senate should adopt the resolution withdrawing recognition from the Carranze Government, it was said, there would be an immediate exodus from Mexico, leaving many mines and other properties idle and throwing thousands of Mexican laborers out of work.

Reports of the recall of American employes from Mexico of the Phoebe Hearst estate were confirmed here yesterday by the offices of the estate, 15 Broad Street. Edward H. Clark, in charge of the office here, said that it had been deemed advisable because of present conditions there. It was the second time, he said, that the employes had been withdrawn. The Americans employed there are executives, in charge of the Hearst properties.

The American Mining and Smelting Company's offices at 120 Broadway knew nothing of the recall of any of their employes, as reported from El Paso Thursday. It was said that if the representatives of the company in Texas or Mexico had taken such action the office here would have been advised.

WAVERED BEFORE ANGELES.

Soldiers Unnerved at Execution—Explosive Bullets Used.

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The execution recently of General Felipe Angeles by a Carranza Government firing squad contained a number of dramatic elements, according to details just received in Washington through official channels. One feature of the report received here created a stir in military circles. It was the allegation that Angeles was killed by explosive bullets and that some of the Mexican soldiers are now using this type of bullet, which was barred by The Hague Convention from civilized warfare.

The report received today indicates that the firing squad that shot Angeles was unnerved and that some of their bullets missed the intended victim. The soldiers are represented as having wavered so that his body was pierced in a number of places and many of the bullets caused only slight wounds.

MEXICAN RAIDERS ROB TEXAS RANCH

ZAPATA, Texas, Dec. 5.—Mexican bandits last night raided the Clareno ranch on the American side of the Rio Grande, eleven miles southeast of here, escaping with provisions from a store on the ranch.

The number of bandits in the raiding party was not determined but they were reported heavily armed. The only person molested was the storekeeper, whom they bound and gagged before looting the store.

All provisions in the store were taken. The bandits packed them on several horses taken from the ranch and then crossed the Rio Grande again into Mexico. The ranch is owned by Serapio Vela of Laredo, Texas. No clue to the identity of the bandits had been obtained up to noon today.

HOUSTON, Texas, Dec. 5.—General J. F. Wolters, commanding the Texas cavalry with headquarters here, today received advices of a raid by Mexican bandits on a store near the border, eleven miles south of Zapata, county seat of Zapata County.

The information is that the owner of the store was bound, after which the place was looted and the bandits fled across the border.

The report was telephoned by W. M. Hanson, a Captain in the ranger service, who is serving as special examiner for the Senate Investigating Committee.

Captain Hansen in his message stated information of the raid was given by County Judge Spohn of Zapata County. Judge Spohn reported the storekeeper, Zerapi Vela, was the only person molested by the raiders, who escaped across the border with several stolen horses heavily laden with merchandise taken from the store. How many bandits there were has not been ascertained.

AUSTIN, Dec. 5.—Adjutant General Cope today ordered the company of Texas Rangers stationed at Laredo to proceed to Zapata County, report to the Sheriff and work in co-operation with the local authorities in attempts to apprehend bandits who crossed over from Mexico and looted a store there last night.

the President from 2:35 until 3:15 o'clock. For the first time since the President's illness newspaper representatives were permitted to enter the White House grounds and wait for the two Senators on the main portico. There was apparently an effort to have it appear that those around the President wanted the fullest publicity.

In order to save the President all possible fatigue, Admiral Grayson had directed that he should go to bed. He was propped up on pillows when the Senators entered. Mrs. Wilson was in the room and remained throughout the conference. The President greeted his callers cheerfully, and they took seats near the bed.

Hitchcock Tells of the Conference.

When the two Senators emerged from the White House after the conference, Senator Hitchcock was smiling broadly. The two had agreed beforehand that Mr. Hitchcock should make a statement and in response to a request for information, he said:

"We had a pleasant chat with the President. Senator Fall did most of the talking and presented a very good summary of conditions to which the President gave deepest attention.

"The President looks much better than when I last saw him. He was sitting up in bed, wearing a dark brown sweater. His color was good. He was clean shaven. I understand he now shaves himself.

"He was mentally most alert, and physically seemed to me to have improved greatly. He shook hands with us with his right hand, and used both hands freely in picking up and laying down a printed copy of Senator Fall's resolution. He also made stenographic notes occasionally during the conference.

"While we were in the midst of our talk a message came that Jenkins had been released. It was quite dramatic. In fact, the stage was so well set that the dramatic effect was perfect."

At this both Senators smiled.

Continuing, Senator Hitchcock said:

"The President said that the possibilities of the Mexican situation were too numerous and grave, even terrible, to warrant haste either in expression or action. He stated the problem demanded the fullest consideration, which, he said, he would give it.

"At the end of the conference the President told us a couple of funny stories. The President said the discussion of the Mexican problem had reminded him of Hennessy, who, upon being asked whether he thought the United States should intervene and take Mexico, replied: 'Mexico is so contagious to us that I'm thinkin' we'll have to take it.'"

When questioners turned to Senator Fall he said that Mr. Wilson had agreed to go over a memorandum prepared by Mr. Fall and then give the Foreign Relations Committee some expression of his views concerning the Fall resolution, and possibly on the whole Mexican question.

"The President said he would try to give us this expression by Monday, when the committee meets," said Senator Fall. "I expect to submit my memorandum to him tonight. It will cover the facts I laid before him this afternoon, and, like my statement to him today, will very closely follow my report to the Foreign Relations Committee on recent events."

"Did the President's condition seem to you to be such that he is capable of handling the Mexican situation?" Senator Fall was asked.

"Do you mean his mental condition?" he inquired.

"Yes."

President Able to Act, Says Fall.

"In my opinion, Mr. Wilson is perfectly capable of handling the situation," replied Mr. Fall. "He seemed to me to be in excellent trim, both mentally and physically, for a man who has been in bed for ten weeks. Of course, I am not an expert, but that's how it appeared to me."

Senator Fall said the President did not express an opinion on the Fall resolution.

"I did not ask him to and he did not volunteer any," said the Senator. "I asked him no questions, and he did not ask me any. You see, I did most of the talking, and he had to listen."

"Did the President appear to you to be conversant with details of the Jenkins case and the whole situation?" he was asked.

"As I say, no questions were asked," was the reply. "I merely made a statement, and the President promised to consider the facts and let us know his judgment."

Mr. Fall concurred in detail with Senator Hitchcock's description of the President's physical appearance.

At the Capitol, where the result of the conference had been awaited with the keenest interest, the frank statement of both Senators that Mr. Wilson appeared to be in mental and physical trim to meet emergencies as they arose created a deep impression. The committee's mission was generally regarded as one of inquiry into the President's condition, and it was that portion of their report which was most commented upon. Their unanimity and freedom from hesitation in telling how active the President was mentally and how improved physically was accepted as silencing for good the many wild and often unfriendly rumors of Presidential disability.

Senator Fall, in discussing the release of Mr. Jenkins and its effect upon his resolution, declared that, far from weakening his case, the release of Mr. Jenkins strengthens it.

"It merely proves," said Senator Fall, "that when we go into this Mexican business intending to get somewhere at whatever cost, we get somewhere with little cost. It bears out my prediction that adoption of this resolution and severance of relations with the Carranza Government would instantly produce in Mexico new respect for the United States, and would make the lives of Americans there safer than they are today.

Fall to Press His Resolution.

"I see no reason for changing my course. My resolution does not deal with the Jenkins case in any way. It does not refer to it. The Jenkins case is but one, and one of the least serious, of a long list of crimes against American national honor which Carranza and other Mexicans have committed. My proposal is based upon this accumulation of insult and injury, and not upon any one incident.

"Release of Jenkins does not settle anything with respect to Mexico. Deferring a settlement any longer will only mean our task will be that much the greater when we face it finally. I shall press my resolution with all possible earnestness, and when the evidence which supports my case is made public the American people will agree, I think, that the proposal I make is the proper one."

Senator Hitchcock and other Administration Senators, however, took a contrary view. Mr. Hitchcock said it would be a "tactical mistake" to adopt the Fall proposal now.

"It would be a grave tactical mistake," said Senator Hitchcock, "because it would strengthen Carranza in his defiance of the United States. The Mexican elections occur in June. Should we now take drastic action that would give Carranza an excuse for setting aside constitutional guarantees, and annulling the election, in which Obregon and Gonzales are candidates for the Presidency. He would have an excuse, in other words, for rallying all factions of Mexicans to his own cause, and we would be responsible for perpetuating him in power.

"Now that Jenkins is free, and we know that President Wilson is fully capable of arriving at decisions, Congress should leave in the President's hands, where it belongs, the conduct of our affairs with Mexico."

Senator King of Utah, also a Democrat, said that adoption of the Fall resolution would react unfavorably against the United States in South America.

"South American nations have just begun to believe us when we say we are not imperialistic," said Senator King. "Any violent move in the direction of Mexico would instantly solidify these nations against us, and in the belief that our protestations have been lies.

"The European situation, growing out of Germany's defiant attitude, also should warn us not to embroil ourselves at this time."

Senator Lodge, the Republican leader and Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, agreed, he said, with Senator Fall that as the Jenkins case was only an incident its settlement should not prevent Congress from expressing its support of the most vigorous policy toward Carranza.

While no action will be taken on the resolution before Monday, and not then unless the President has his statement ready by that time, there are indications of a lining up for a warm battle over the measure. Signs of defection from the ranks of Fall's supporters by some Republicans also are seen. One Republican member of the committee is unalterably against the resolution, he said, on the ground that it involved the danger of another war. His attitude, which will doubtless be disclosed on Monday, will come as a surprise to Senator Fall and his supporters.

While the Senators were conferring with the President, Secretary Lansing sent to the Senate a report on the number of foreigners killed in Mexico since the time of Porfirio Diaz, exclusive of Americans. The report was supplementary to an earlier one, replying to a resolution offered last June by Senator King which asked the department to advise the Senate how many Americans and how many nationals of other countries had been killed in Mexico in recent years. In July Mr. Lansing reported that 217 Americans had been slain. Today his report showed that 927 nationals of other countries have been killed. These included, the report said, 471 Chinese, 209 Spanish, 111 Arabs, 38 British, 18 Italians, 14 French, 10 Japanese, and 56 miscellaneous.

The Senate Military Affairs Committee passed over without action the Ashurst resolution directing the War Department to send to the border a force adequate to prevent Mexican bandit raids across the line.

President Jests on Moses Story.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Senator Fall after the conference with the President today said Mr. Wilson commented on the published statement of Senator Moses, Republican, New Hampshire, some weeks ago that Mr. Wilson had suffered a brain lesion.

"The President said that as a result of the conference the Senator would be reassured, although he might be disappointed," said Senator Fall.

When the Senator greeted the President and asked him how he felt, the President replied: "I'm feeling fit."

Senator Fall gave a detailed account of the White House visit. He said Dr. Grayson received them and took them up to the President's bedroom, where Mrs. Wilson shook hands with each Senator.

"Then the President shook hands with each of us," Senator Fall continued. "He was lying in bed flat on his back. His shoulders were propped up slightly. His bed was in a shaded portion of the room. He greeted us pleasantly, and while his articulation seemed somewhat thick, during the entire conference I could understand perfectly every word he said.

"I think he was covered up to the chin, with his right arm out. I sat a little to one side and slightly below him, near a table, and he frequently turned his head to talk to me. He also reached over the table several times to secure papers on it."

Asked regarding the President's physical appearance, Senator Fall said he was "not an expert," but would not judge that the Executive had lost any weight. He continued that Senator Hitchcock opened the discussion by stating that he personally had nothing to present but accompanied Senator Fall, who desired to submit some information.

Announcement of Jenkins's release, it was said by those present, gave the conference its only dramatic turn. All of those present expressed satisfaction at the news, and then Senator Fall resumed his statement. He told the President of much of the evidence turned up by the Mexican inquiry, especially regarding the alleged activities of Mexican officials in spreading Bolshevist propaganda in this country.

[illegible] to the Capitol Senator Fall was surrounded by his Republican colleagues, who sought news of the conference. He also saw Henry P. Fletcher, American Ambassador to Mexico, and sent to the White House an abstract of the results of the subcommittee's investigation requested by the President. He had indicated he might make this public tonight, but decided not to do so for the present.

After the conference Dr. Grayson said the visit apparently had done the President good and that he seemed to have enjoyed it. The physician added that he had arranged for his patient to remain in bed for the conference because he had been up for some time during the morning, and it was desired to guard against tiring him too much.

PLAN TO GIVE MEXICO A HELPING HAND

Childhood Conservation League Will Open Rehabilitation Centres Throughout Country.

116,000 HOMELESS WAIFS

Women Also Found to be Terrible Sufferers at Hands of Bandits and Soldiers.

It became known yesterday that at a dinner recently given in this city, at which were present financiers representing many millions of dollars as well as representatives of churches of all denominations, with a large body of Mexicans, the foundation of an organization for the rehabilitation of Mexico was announced which will expend in its work from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year for the next ten or fifteen years. Later the work will be extended through Central and South America. Children will be the chief beneficiaries.

The Childhood Conservation League, which is the name of the new organization, has its headquarters at 111 Fifth Avenue. Norman Bridge, the capitalist and philanthropist of Chicago, is the President, and Willis H. Booth of the Guaranty Trust Company is the Treasurer. Miss Agnes C. Laut is Secretary and Dr. William H. Teeter Executive Director. The Vice Presidents are Dr. Fred B. Fisher of Boston, Burton Wilson of the Association for the Protection of Our Rights in Mexico, Ira Jewell Williams of Philadelphia, and Marquis Eaton of Chicago. On the Advisory Council are Bishop William F. Oldham of Buenos Aires, Mgr. Kelly of Chicago, Robert W. Crawford of Kellogg, Emery & Cuthell, New York; Lucien Teeter, President of the Chicago Trust Company; Miss Maude Wetmore, and Dr. Harry Farmer.

No effort will be spared to begin the work in Mexico at the earliest possible moment. Already lecturers who know the conditions of the country at first hand are putting it before the people on the Pacific Coast, in the Central West, and in the East. Dr. Teeter will speak before the National Arts Club, Manhattan; in Brooklyn, at Larchmont, and other nearby places after the first of the year. There is a demand for speakers from Chambers of Commerce and civic organizations all over the country, which will form centres for co-operative work.

Miss Agnes C. Laut, Secretary of the Childhood Conservation League, who is a writer on financial topics, and made a trip into Mexico last January to study financial conditions there, discovered the terrible suffering among women and children, Mexican as well as American and English. In April, when she returned, she made a report to the financiers, who have underwritten the work of the league and gave it its inception.

"I was fortunate to obtain pictures from a moving picture man who was in Mexico at the time I was, and who, seeing that I was gathering news, followed in my footsteps, and his pictures cover the horrors I saw," said Miss Laut yesterday.

"It is known in Mexico City that 8,000 die annually of starvation, and that there are 116,000 homeless children. I have seen them with nothing but newspapers to cover them, and in Vera Cruz they stand near the restaurants, the strange look about them of those who have lived on fruits or vegetables, and wait for the bones and crumbs from the plates. I have seen five little children at once hiding behind a pillar where we dined in the open air, waiting for scraps. I told the waiter to feed one little fellow but he grabbed the fishbones and a little gravy from my plate in a piece of newspaper, and ran off with them, saying that there were babies at home.

"Sufferings of the women and the little children at the hands of the bandits and the soldiers of Carranza cannot be discussed. I have been through the hospitals. I have asked the women if the unbelievable stories I have heard were true. They put their arms around me, and with tears in their eyes, embraced me, when they knew that I sympathized. I have been taken to the house of a noble Spanish family, where the women have suffered as well as the poorest. They would break down and weep before they could tell me their stories.

"In ten years Mexico will be in a more primitive condition than before the arrival of Cortez. There is only one-half of one per cent. of the population of the country bandits, but they have the arms and the ammunition, and part of them are in the Carranza army.

"It is a wonderful country, a land of Eden, and a docile people, or they would have risen against these conditions long ago.

"You might beat them into pulp with an army, but you would do no good unless you built up an educated citizenship. Living is inexpensive there. A small sum will support a child for a year, and with every centre of education you open you make a centre of friendship for the United States. We must suppress the bandits and reopen the industries."

Miss Laut gave her testimony on Mexican conditions before the Sub-committee of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

The entire work of the league will be on a humanitarian basis. There will be no politics in it, and no sectarianism. It will work as far as possible with institutions already organized. Religious work will be left to the churches, each in its own way, following its own lines.

There will be centres in each of the States of Mexico. Hospitals, training schools for nurses, and for teachers, will be started. Mothers will be instructed in the care of their own health and in that of the children and a general work organized for social and industrial betterment along many lines.

FIRST TEST FOR CANDIDATES.

Mexico City Elections Will Show Strength of Obregon and Gonzalez.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5.—The first test of the political strength of the candidates for the Presidency, General Alvaro Obregon and General Pablo Gonzalez, will come on Sunday in the municipal elections.

The Governor of the Federal District has issued orders prohibiting the carrying of arms by all citizens, even those having licenses. The Federal Government also is taking precautions to see that the elections are without disorder.

SAYS WE MUST HELP EUROPE

Peak of High Prices Not Reached, Asserts F. H. Sisson.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 5.—That the people of this nation must awaken immediately to combat the threat of extinction of democracy and the destruction of the peace of the entire world by lending as great a measure of financial and moral assistance as the United States is able, was the declaration of Francis H. Sisson, Vice President of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, in an address before the Poughkeepsie Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon today.

He told his audience that the peak of high prices had not been reached because production had not begun to meet the demand in any measure. Inflation probably would continue for a considerable time and further expansion was natural. America's prosperity without the stability of foreign exchange was uncertain and our present favorable trade balance could not and perhaps should not be maintained.

"The railroads must have more partners and fewer creditors, more friends and fewer class exploiters," he said. Street railways and other public utilities had been the football of public regulators and the particular objects of animosity from a misinformed public.

BERLIN FACES CRISIS OVER ALLIED NOTES

BITTERNESS INCREASES.

Disappointment Felt That Dispute in Our Senate Has Not Helped Germany as Expected.

By GEORGE RENWICK.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Time Company

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 3.—Since Tuesday afternoon when the two latest Entente notes were received here there has been more than ever the air of a crisis in Wilhelmstrasse. Already a division had revealed itself in the Cabinet regarding the allied demands for dock material, &c., and Erzberger had been hard at work trying to bring about unity by persuading those who desire to refuse such demands to abandon their attitude. Whether he has been entirely successful is not yet apparent.

These two additional notes therefore come upon the Government when it is none too firmly held together.

"We shall have to give way, of course," is the remark I hear repeated constantly in Wilhelmstrasse today, but nevertheless it is undeniable that some members of the Government are becoming tired of it all and would gladly seek release from their troubles by resignation, while the position of the Government has been weakened not a little of late and a serious crisis may supervene any day.

There is in official circles considerable disappointment that the dispute in the American Senate has not influenced the situation as it was hoped it would in Germany's favor, and that "the ray of hope of a German-American understanding," as the semi-official Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung put it, has disappeared in official circles.

One cannot help noticing the increasing spirit of bitterness all around. Even the Berlin Tageblatt refers to the careful choice of harsh words by Clemenceau, whom it represents as furious because he feels that all really decent people in the civilized world regard his attitude toward the prisoners question as unworthy and offensive. "His conscience has become deaf and dumb," adds the Tageblatt.

If the German people possessed any feelings of honor, the Tagliche Rundschau thinks they would now begin to resist, while the Kreuz Zeitung puts this big heading across its front page: "Let Us Have No More Talk With These Enemies."

"Clemenceau's Devilish Insults."

Then the Pan German Deutsche Zeitung speaks of Clemenceau's devilish insults, but there is a section of the press which is much more moderate. The Vossische Zeitung calls upon the Government to create a clear situation, and the Freiheit, the organ of the Independent Socialists, says there is really nothing to do but to yield to the French Premier. The Freiheit admits he has some right on its side.

The Vorwärts asks its readers not to forget the barbarisms France suffered at the hands of the German High Command. "The Germans guilty of these barbarisms," it adds, "will not surrender voluntarily, because their courage now, as in wartime, does not extend beyond the officers' clubs."

But among all the angry comments there is a fairly general condemnation of the German Government with regard to the question of prisoners. That condemnation extends from the Freiheit to the democratic Vossische Zeitung, and from the Vossische Zeitung to the highly conservative Kreuz Zeitung, which asked this morning why no arrangement regarding the restoration of the devastated areas has been reached by this time, a year after the conclusion of the armistice. "Where is the scheme which our Government has proposed?" it asks.

Size of Public Defense Corps.

Commenting on the Supreme Council's note dealing with the subject of Germany's armed forces, the semi-official Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung says that the regular army numbers 100,000 men, distributed all over the country, and that there are only 2,000 in Berlin. That number, it declares, is totally inadequate to preserve safety and order in the capital, and for that reason a public defense corps, which may be described as a military police force, was organized. I should say its numbers were over 100,000.

The size of this defense force, however, is difficult to estimate. An appeal, with something like an official cachet, was recently made to the people to join this body, which is well officered. Each member has his weapons in some house or convenient depot. Hamburg alone has at least 25,000 of these men; so their number must be very considerable, and it can scarcely be held that all have joined out of a desire to preserve the present régime from danger.

The Government has certainly been acting very weakly with regard to the goings on of the militarists. The latter's most extreme leaders are allowed to go speechifying and holding receptions, and to be fêted and cheered. Only the other day sixty-two officers of the former 1st Brandenburg Regiment sent a message of loyalty to the exiled William II., accompanied by some doggerel verses declaring that they would struggle on his behalf through all the changes of this hellish time. But I doubt if there is much behind all such nonsense or if any groups of people would be foolhardy enough to challenge the Entente to combat.

The German Government is clearly to blame if these noisy, demonstrating aggressive militarists create hostile feeling abroad and make its position at home, already difficult enough, still more serious, and perhaps in the end impossible. That way chaos lies.

KELLOGG ACCUSES HINES.

Charges Gross Extravagances in Operation of Railroads.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Little progress on the Railroad bill was made in the Senate today, most of the time being taken up with formal reading of the measure and by a speech by Senator Kellogg, Republican, Minnesota. Often there was difficulty in obtaining a quorum.

Senator Kellogg, who favored the bill's principal provisions, charged the Railroad Administration with "enormous extravagances" in the operation of the roads and with building up a great central organization which has "benumbed the incentive and enterprise of every railroad organization." He declared that inequalities in wage awards had added "grossly" to the cost of operation and lowered the morale of the service.

"So far as permanent betterments and improvements to railroads are concerned," Seantor Kellogg added, "the Administration has done better, although not all that the needs of the country demand."

Senator Kellogg indorsed the anti-strike provision, which has been denounced by labor organizations and opposed by many Senators.

TAX ON RUSSIAN ENGINES.

Paterson Demands Payment of $25,000 on Dismantled Locomotives.

Special to the New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 5.—The American Locomotive Company will have to pay the city $25,000, representing taxes due on forty-seven locomotives which were built by the company in their Cooke works in this city for the Imperial Russian Government. The locomotives, which are valued at $500,000, were completed in 1917, dismantled and placed in cases for shipment to Russia.

Lack of ships and changes in the Russian Government made it impossible to move the locomotives out of the local plant. Last year a tax of $11,000 was levied against the locomotives, but was not collected. This year's taxes amount to $14,000. Representatives of the American Locomotive Company, the Russian Embassy, and the Paterson Chamber of Commerce endeavored to have the charges canceled, but the city Board of Finance ruled today that the taxes must be paid.

$50,000 ATLANTIC CITY FIRE.

Hotel and Four Boardwalk Shops Are Among Buildings Burned.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 5.—Fire today completely destroyed one hotel, four Boardwalk shops and threatened other buildings in the southern section here.

The loss is estimated at $50,000. The origin of the fire is unknown.

STRONG'S SECOND ATTACK.

Slayer of Wife and Child Deranged During Illness Last Summer.

Special to the New York Times.

PASSAIC, N. J., Dec. 5.—A recurrence of a mental derangement that afflicted Mason R. Strong while he was ill of pneumonia last Summer is believed by his friends to have been responsible for his action on Tuesday night, when he killed his wife and eldest daughter with an axe, attacked three other children, and then ended his own life. The Rev. Williard D. Brown, pastor of the North Reformed Church, a close friend of Strong, scouted the idea that he had financial worries. Mr. Brown recalled that Mr. Strong had recently commented that business was very good.

Nina, the 14-year-old daughter, was operated on this afternoon in the General Hospital. She was found to be suffering from a fracture of the skull and a paralyzed left arm, due, the physicians said, to a clot on the brain. Her condition was critical tonight. Nathaniel, the only son, who was found unconscious when the tragedy was discovered, has not regained consciousness, it was said at the hospital. The physicians hold out little hope of his recovery.

Miss Ruth Colville of Middletown, Conn., a sister of Mrs. Strong, arrived today to look after the three orphans. Two other sisters are on their way from Racine, Wis. Private funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Strong and Elizabeth, the 13-year-old daughter, will be held tomorrow.

SAYS GERMANY CAN'T FIGHT ALLIES

Gen. Maurice Points Out Her Lack of Guns, Ships, and Airplanes.

CENSURES ALARMIST TALK

Its Only Effect, He Says, Is to Incite Germans to Useless Resistance.

By GEN. SIR FREDERICK MAURICE.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Marshal Foch's report to the Supreme Council and the visit of Sir Henry Wilson to Paris have been taken by those who started the scare that Germany had formed a secret army, had hidden away large stopes of munitions of war and was preparing to attack the allied forces as confirmation of the truth of their reports.

It seems, therefore, necessary to state again that Germany has not got a secret army and is not in a position to place in the field and maintain any body of troops which would resist effectively the forces Foch can set in motion. Both our own authorities and the French are perfectly well informed as to the Germans' powers of resistance.

It is quite true that Germany has, on the ground that they are necessary for the maintenance of public order, organized bodies of police who are armed and trained as soldiers. The numbers and distribution of this force are known. The standing army of Germany today is estimated to number 400,000 men, and in accordance with the terms of the Treaty of Versailles has to be reduced by March 31 of next year to 100,000 men and 4,000 officers.

There are, as I have already said, German troops in the Baltic Provinces over whom the Central Government appears to have little or no control, and there are, in addition, scattered throughout Germany bodies of volunteers—all men, of course, who have had war training and have arms and uniforms. These also have been formed on the pretext that they were required to maintain internal order. But Germany has today no bombing airplanes, very little heavy artillery, no tanks, and, above all, she has practically no navy. Further, it is not possible for Germany to concentrate rapidly in any one area the forces she possesses.

In these circumstances it would be suicidal for Germany to attempt to resist by force such demands as the Allies may decide. It is difficult to understand the object which those who have erected the bogey of Germany's secret army have in view, unless it be to suggest that the Allies are not strong enough to impose their demands; and if this be the motive it is, since the suggestion is untrue, an incitement to Germany to resist.

The situation has been put quite clearly by Mr. Bonar Law, who, by the way, the day after he denied that Germany would place 700,000 men in the field, stated in the House that it was an exaggeration to say that Germany has an army of 500,000 men.

The allied Governments demand that Germany should before ratifying the treaty sign a protocol inflicting upon her certain penalties in respect of breaches of the terms of the armistice, notably as regards the scuttling of the ships at Scapa Flow. This Germany refused to do on Dec. 1, and Sir Henry Wilson's visit to Marshal Foch is doubtless undertaken in order to concert military action in the event of Germany's persisting in this refusal. This military action, if it should become necessary, would most probably take the form of increasing the area of Germany in the occupation of allied troops.

It is well to remember that Germany wriggled in exactly this way at each renewal of the armistice which took place before the Treaty of Versailles was signed, and that in every case she climbed down. There is no reason to suppose that she will not do the same again. In any event, no good purpose is served by spreading alarms which have no foundation in fact.

SKEPTICAL OF ALLIANCE.

Cecil Doubts British-American-French Union Will Be Formed.

LIVERPOOL, Dec. 5.—Lord Robert Cecil in a speech tonight said he did not think the suggested alliance between the United States, France, and Great Britain, guaranteeing assistance for France in case of future aggression by Germany, would materialize.

NEUTRALS ARE WAITING ON SENATE'S ACTION

Dutch Observer Says Their Attitude Toward the League Depends Upon Ours.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 5.—The Amsterdam Telegraaf prints an interview with J. Limburg, head of the Dutch delegation at the Brussels Conference of Promoters of the League of Nations, in which Limburg says that the attitude of Holland and other neutrals toward the league hinges largely upon the action of America. He says the neutrals find the general outlook favorable, and he is firmly convinced from the discussions in Brussels that the league intends to establish the rule of right rather than of might.

"The entrance of neutrals, however," he says, "depends largely upon the attitude of America. If America does not join, the position of the neutrals will become difficult, though I do not contend that it would be impossible for them to join. It would not, however, be the same league without America."

He expresses the opinion, however, that America will join after all, in which case "the neutrals can join with a clear conscience."

BRUSSELS, Dec. 5.—The Committee of the Conference of the Associations for the League of Nations decided today that the Holy See could not be regarded as a nation, but expressed the view that it was a power, and that there was no important reason for the exclusion of the Vatican from representation in the League of Nations. The question was referred to a special committee.

The draft of statutes to be the subject of discussion at the next session of the conference was adopted. A resolution was also carried providing that members of the States determine their own method of appointing delegates to the League of Nations Assembly.

ALLIES DIVIDED ON ULTIMATUM'S TERMS

ready army at 400,000. However, the Allied equipment is much superior.

It is, of course, the hope of the Allies that a military threat will bring Germany to terms. But it is understood that the nature of the ultimatum proposed is such that the Allies must be prepared to make it good should Germany not come to terms. It is said that the ultimatum may be sent Sunday.

"Pertinax," in today's Echo de Paris, says that at yesterday's secret session of the Allied chiefs with Marshal Foch, both Premier Clemenceau and the Marshal declared that, in view of the defiant attitude of Germany and her evident intention to avoid abiding by the treaty, it was necessary to act boldly and strongly.

"Only an ultimatum to Germany can get us out of our embarrassment," says the writer. "Marshal Foch proved yesterday morning that to issue and stand by this ultimatum proper means are not lacking. He said he was in a position to carry out the plans made by him last June, the threat of which brought to Versailles the envoys of Germany.

"We hope that our Allies, and even our associates, since the League of Nations is not involved, will give the support which is asked of them and which they virtually accorded when they signed the note of Nov. 1."

Marshal Foch contended yesterday that the present situation showed necessity for the continuation of some central military authority to be ready to bring pressure on Germany when the need arose. The Americans have always opposed this plan.

The Echo de Paris says that to bring Germany to terms in the present instance will not solve the allied difficulties. "Forced to sign the protocol and put the treaty into effect, the Germans will renew their resistance on other lines. Either the treaty will remain a dead letter, or for the next twenty years we must be ready for action. We have never ceased to denounce the weak point of the treaty of Versailles—the lack of means of execution. The moment has come to put into effect the proposal for a military council at Versailles which Marshal Foch proposed to the conference Oct. 28. If we prove by our attitude that we renounce all idea of military coercion, and if we content ourselves with technical debates, the treaty of Versailles is only the greatest mockery of all the ages."

Our Delegates to Quit Paris Tuesday.

The entire American peace delegation will leave Paris on Tuesday. Instructions to this effect were received today from Secretary Lansing. This reply from Washington comes after the request of France and England that the American delegation be kept in Paris. Frank L. Polk, Chairman of the delegation, delayed his departure from today until Tuesday at the request of Premier Clemenceau, so that an appeal might be made to Washington.

The decision of the American Government causes considerable regret in allied diplomatic circles and gives rise to the opinion that the United States has withdrawn completely from association with the Allies. It is true that Ambassador Wallace will sit at the sessions of the Supreme Council, but it is understood that he will have very limited powers and will not take a determining part in reaching decisions, rather devoting himself to keeping his Government informed of developments. This arrangement does not please the Allies.

Furthermore it is reported today that if the Allies decide to make a military movement against Germany, should she continue to refuse to sign the protocol, American troops will not be used. In fact, it would now cause no surprise if these troops were removed from German territory in the very near future.

It is difficult to overestimate the importance which the Allies attach to the departure of the whole American peace delegation and what they regard as America's withdrawal from the work of arranging the peace she helped to win. It has lately been the allied position that until the treaty came into effect the international situation was under the armistice regulations to which America was a party, and therefore, whether or not America ratified the Versailles Treaty, the American delegation should stay here while the armistice remained in effect.

The position of America is far from clear in view of the statement by the British Government that at a diplomatic conference soon to be called at the suggestion of Premier Lloyd George all the Allied and Associated Powers would be represented. If any such arrangement has been made, it was without the knowledge of the American peace delegation, which, in view of its new instructions from Washington, frankly doubts if America will be a party to the proposed conference. However, the last word on this subject is, of course, to be spoken at Washington.

It is the general opinion in both allied and American circles that the United States has definitely quit the Peace Conference and will remain away from European negotiations unless the Senate ratifies the Versailles treaty.

This is the outcome that the Allies feared would give new hope to Germany in her desire to evade the provisions of the treaty, and to meet that it is probable that the Allies, without American participation, will send a firm ultimatum to Germany and will stand ready with French and British troops to back it up. It is not believed that England will interpose any objections to Marshal Foch's proposal for a military threat, inasmuch as England fathered the demand for the Scapa Flow indemnity which gave Germany a peg on which to hang her present resistance to the Allies.

There are, of course, many reasons for not using Italian troops.

While the Allies are facing this crisis the Americans are packing up. The entire force at the Hotel Crillon will depart Tuesday night. With the exception of about twenty-five clerks and experts who will be installed at the Embassy, the American mission will sail from Brest Wednesday on the America.

German Customs Barrier on Rhine.

It was reported here this afternoon that the German Government had ordered the establishment of a customs barrier along the Rhine against goods coming from France, England, and Belgium. A statement published in the Echo de l'Exportation says:

"Berlin has given secret orders to all authorities of custom houses and railroad stations along this frontier to observe a strict watch and to allow to enter into German territory no goods from Entente countries or occupied territory. The purpose of this move is to raise the value of the mark and at the same time lower the value of foreign money. All merchandise going from France, England, or Belgium will be stopped at the border.

"We are persuaded that the French Government will take notice of this situation and adopt prompt and energetic measures to protect French commerce."

This move, taken at this time, probably means another effort on the part of Germany to drive a wedge between the Allies and Germany. Four months ago the Berlin Government issued a decree that all import duties must be paid in gold, or, if in paper money, with due regard for the depreciation of the mark. The French military authorities issued an order annulling this decree at the Minz bridgehead, and soon after the interallied high command annulled it at all the Rhine gates of entry into Germany.

At the time the Americans protested that this was unfair to American trade, inasmuch as American merchants could not use the Rhine gateways as France and Belgium and, to a less extent, England could, but must send their goods through ports where duties must be paid in gold or at a five times greater rate than goods going across the Rhine. But the allied order stood.

It was predicted at the time that Germany would establish a customs barrier along the Rhine within the bridgehead line, both in order to prevent the penalizing of American business and also to increase her revenues. That is evidently what she has done. If she collects the same rate of duty along the Rhine as that paid at the ports, the French, Belgians and British will no longer enjoy an advantage over American traders.

It is regarded as significant that Germany should pick this time, when she is seeking an advantage from America's failure to ratify the treaty, to take a step which looks like a favor to American commerce.

Jugoslavs Sign Two Treaties.

PARIS, Dec. 5 (Associated Press.)—Jugoslavia became a party to the peace treaties with Austria and Bulgaria by the act of her plenipotentiaries here today. The Jugoslav delegates signed the Bulgarian treaty at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at 5 o'clock this afternoon. At the same time they signed the financial annexes to the Austrian treaty and the clauses providing for the protection of racial minorities.

Early in the day the Supreme Council, in agreement with the Jugoslav delegation, conceded certain modifications in the peace terms with Austria affecting Jugoslavia, notably the advancing of the date for payments to the Jugoslav State on reparations due it. These modifications were embodied in a declaration signed by the principal allied and associated powers and by Jugoslavia, serving to meet the objections of Jugoslavia to the Austrian peace terms in sufficient measure to enable her delegates to sign the two treaties.

Ready to Sign Hungarian Treaty.

The Peace Treaty between the allied and associated powers and Hungary is ready for signing, the Supreme Council having adopted economic, financial and reparation clauses today.

The Supreme Council also approved treaty provisions regulating the frontier between Poland and Czechoslovakia, which places Western Galicia within the boundaries of Poland.

Plenipotentiaries, among whom was Count Albert Apponyi, were recently appointed by the Hungarian Government to sign the treaty when completed by the council.

Immediate measures to remedy the financial difficulties of various countries, involving international credits of great magnitude, are under consideration by the Supreme Council, according to the Intransigeant today. Strong representations have been made to the Washington Government regarding such credits, the newspaper says.

The countries to be aided include former enemy nations, it is added, and particular attention is being paid to the case of Austria, where the need of aid is urgent.

The Supreme Council, according to the Intransigeant, decided to agree to the exchange of goods between several countries free of duty.

The recent reference of Premier Lloyd George to the probable settlement of the Turkish Empire's future at a conference of representatives of allied and associated powers in London has caused much comment in French official circles here. However, it is learned that the French Government has not yet consented to the transfer to London of peace negotiations affecting Turkish and Asia Minor questions.

Berlin Says Parleys Will Go On.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—A wireless dispatch received here from Berlin says the newspapers in that city have been authoritatively informed that the Government authorities know nothing whatever of reported impending forcible measures by the Entente, such as an ultimatum, with reference to the signing of the protocol and new notes prohibiting the manufacture of arms. The dispatch says that negotiations with Paris are about to be resumed, and that the Foreign Office denies the report that Herr Mueller, Minister of Foreign Affairs, has resigned.

Another wireless dispatch from Berlin says that the German Government agrees with the recent statement of Philip Scheidemann, former Foreign Secretary, that a successful monarchical campaign against the Government is possible, and that the activity of the monarchists is due to the severity of the Entente in handling German questions.

"An understanding of disputed points and a speedy ratification of the Peace Treaty would, however, take the wind out of the sails of the reactionists," says teh dispatch, "and also paralyze the agitation of the Independent Socialists against an understanding with the Entente."

This dispatch says that the Government has decided to preserve the imperial castle in Berlin as a monument to art and convert it into a museum.

GENEVA, Dec. 5.—An exodus of wealthy Germans from the right bank of the Rhine has begun in the fear that military intervention is imminent, according to travelers arriving in Basle from Germany. The number of Germans awaiting permission to enter Switzerland is increasing daily.

There was a persistent rumor on the Stock Exchange this morning that the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference had threatened Germany that, unless the final peace terms were agreed to allied troops would occupy Essen and Frankfort.

Official announcement that Field Marshal Wilson has gone to Paris in response to "an urgent summons to consult Marshal Foch in connection with the Peace Treaty" is regarded by some morning newspapers as of considerable significance. It is printed alongside of the address made in Glasgow last evening by Andrew Bonar Law, in which he said he believed the Allies had the power, and, if necessary, would exercise it, to insure ratification of the Versailles treaty by Germany. It is suggested that steps to exert pressure on Germany may be imminent.

"There has been enough solemn finger-wagging at the Germans, who have come to believe it safe to defy the Allies," says The Daily Mail, in commenting on the situation. "A wise and merciful course would be to tell them plainly that if within a fixed time they do not comply with the allied conditions and fulfill the treaty terms the blockade will be renewed."

FAST TRAINS STOP; FREIGHT SERVICE CUT

loading coal at Halifax, Louisburg and Sydney were inadequate. One steamship which put into Louisburg recently was ten days shipping 2,000 tons of coal.

The Touraine of the French Line, which was scheduled to leave for Havre on Thursday will sail some time today and has fuel to carry her to Havre. The Lorraine of the same company, which arrived yesterday, has sufficient coal, it was said, to carry her to a Canadian port. The Italian liner America has no coal to carry her to Gibraltar, but may manage to get to Havana or the Azores to have her bunkers filled.

The city traveled in cold cars during the rush periods, yesterday without complaint of suffering. Subway crowds furnished what President Hedley of the Interborough calls "sufficient latent animal heat," to keep the cars warm. On the elevated and surface cars it was colder, but by snuggling up pasengers were able to endure it.

The next step to reduce consumption of coal by transportation lines will be the cutting off of heat during the entire day, and then the reduction of service as a last resort.

Discussing the need for saving coal, Public Service Commissioner Nixon said that in addition to reducing railroad service and street lighting the public should lend a hand in helping hotels to get along with less light, and in seeing that the expenditure of gas and electricity in homes for cooking, heating, and lighting should be reduced to the last cent's worth.

Mr. Nixon said he did not believe the public suffered through cutting off heat during the rush hours, and he explained that the order to cut it off was not issued until after Health Commissioner Copeland had been consulted. Concerning street lighting, he said:

"Where there are large multiple lights, providing a brilliant illumination, it may be found that some of the group can be turned off without interfering with the safety or convenience of those using the streets."

It was shortly after noon when Mr. Nixon went to a window in his office and pointed to the illumination in several public buildings, notably the Municipal Building. All of them were apparently trying to outshine the big office buildings in point of illuminated windows. Mr. Nixon said many of the lights were clearly not necessary, and that unless everybody helped to save fuel the time might soon come when even necessary light would be hard to get.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company announced yesterday that it had a reserve supply of coal sufficient for about thirty days. It consumes about 1,500 tons a day for all purposes, about one-third of the amount being used for heating.

OHIO COAL FACTIONS NEAR COMPROMISE

Gov. Cox, After All-Day Session, Hopes to End Tieup in the State's Mines.

TENNESSEE CALLS PARLEY

West Virginia Union Convention Urges 10,000 Miners to Accept the 14 Per Cent. Increase.

Special to the New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 5.—Through a long day of conferences on the coal strike situation in Ohio, the situation seemed to grow steadily brighter today, and when the last of the conferees left the office of Governor James M. Cox, who took the initiative in bringing the conferences about, it was announced officially that there was good reason to believe that an amicable settlement would be arrived at to resume coal operations.

The end of the day's work came at 5 o'clock with a statement that sessions would be resumed at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Until then a truce is being observed. Both sides are anxious for the meetings to continue. If Ohio operators and miners agree it is the opinion here that similar action in other States will follow.

Throughout the day mine operators and miners' union delegates met separately, coming into the office of the Governor in turns for statements. The sessions began at 1 o'clock with the operators. Prior to that A. A. Augustus of Cleveland, head of the Cambridge Collieries Company, employing 3,000 men, said:

"I have told Governor Cox that I am willing to leave everything in his hands. This is without any reservations whatever."

The acid test of sincerity in coming to a settlement was applied by the Governor, and it was ascertained that the factions are willing to do much to restore peace in the coal fields. This phase encouraged the Governor.

Governor Is Optimistic.

"I am really hopeful that something will come of it," said the Governor. He had been delegated to make public the pogress of the session, the others maintaining silence. "I am impressed very much with the fact that both sides are anxious to end the strike. Both parties are very anxious to have the conferences continued."

The final session was with a committee of operators, consisting of A. A. Augustus of Cleveland, C. E. Mader of Cleveland, M. F. Gallagher of Cleveland, Fred Ebersbach of Pomeroy, George F. Barker and John S. Jones of Columbus.

In the first session with the operators the Governor pointed out the responsibility of all to the public, which is nearing distress from the coal shortage. He urged a spirit of compromise. The operators then went out for their own session, and the miners came in. They remained with the Governor until 3 o'clock, when the operators committee came back. The two factions did not meet. No one on the outside had an indication of what the Governor proposed, but every one was impressed with his insistence on settlement.

For the miners, Secretary George W. Savage expressed the opinion that nothing less than 31 per cent. increase would be satisfactory, but this was only an opinion prior to the meeting. After the sessions both sides refrained from comment. Should the factions agree national miners headquarters must ratify.

Cox Said to Have Offered 25 Per Cent.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 5, (Associated Press.)—Efforts of Governor Cox through conferences today with operators and officials of the miners' union to reopen the mines in Ohio were declared by the Governor to hold encouraging prospects this evening, when all negotiations were postponed until 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Though all conferences were held behind closed doors and no statements as to the proposals for a compromise were made public, it is believed that the Governor proposed an increase to the miners of approximately 25 per cent. This is about 6 per cent. under Secretary of Labor Wilson's proposal, which the miners indicated they would accept, and 11 per cent. more than the Federal Government's proposal, which the miners rejected.

No announcement was made as to the miners' attitude toward the Governor's proposal, but it was generally believed the offer would be accepted by them. That some of the operators also will accept the Governor's proposal was believed to be indicated by the statement of A. A. Augustus, President of the Cambridge Collieries Company, that his company would be willing to abide by any settlement the Governor may make with the miners.

It is not believed that Governor Cox entertains any hope of having all the mines opened immediately as a result of his efforts, but that at least some of the larger ones will resume under proposals advanced by him. With some of the larger mines operating, he is confident that others would resume also after a short period.

Tennessee Threatens to Seize Mines.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 5.—Speaking with reference to the conference of miners and operators which he has called for tomorrow at Nashville, Governor Roberts declared that he would make one more effort to settle the strike amicably and that if it failed he would go into the courts.

Representatives of operators and miners of Tennessee have been called by Governor Roberts to meet in Knoxville Saturday to consider steps to end the bituminous coal miners' strike in Tennessee without action by the State to seize the mines.

Governor Roberts in calling the meeting declared if an agreement was not reached by the contending factions that the State would attempt to operate the mines.

GRAFTON, W. Va., Dec. 5.—Ten thousand striking miners in Randolph, Taylor, Preston and Monongalia Counties were today urged to accept the Government's offer of 14 per cent. increase and return to work at once, by a delegate convention of sub-district No. 3, District Number 17, United Mine Workers.

The convention, which was held here last night and its proceedings made public today, was made up of delegates from all over the district.

CONGREGATION MINES COAL.

Faced with Shutdown, Pastor Calls for Volunteers to Relieve Situation.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—The Rev. Hargis, pastor of a Methodist Episcopal Church at Houstonia, Mo., whose church faced a shutdown because of the coal shortage, called upon his congregation for volunteer miners. His appeal met a ready response and he and members of the congregation dug eighty bushels of coal in a nearby mine so that services might be held.

Texas, according to reports, is endeavoring to overcome the fuel situation by getting all available fire and cord wood. About 1,000 tons had been purchased for Dallas.

While the general restrictions were ordered for Chicago yesterday the full effect was not felt until today. The Public Utilities Commission also revised its orders and beginning Monday retail stores will have their doors open from noon until 6 P. M., and 9 P. M. on Saturday night. It was announced that a four-hour day might become necessary.

The Mayor of Cheyenne, Wyo., has ordered the domestic and industrial life of that city placed on a conservation basis.

Efforts in Michigan and Iowa to resume work in the mines were in vain with the miners' representatives standing pat.

EMPOWERS GOVERNOR TO TAKE OVER MINES

North Dakota Legislature Adopts Bill to Prevent Disaster in Event of a Strike.

BISMARCK, N. D., Dec. 5—Power to "take over and operate any coal mine or other utility in any emergency when necessary for the protection of life and property" is vested in the Governor of North Dakota in a bill passed today by the House at the special session of the North Dakota Legislature. The measure already has passed the Senate. It will become effective July 1 next.

In the event of any strike or lockout, or "any pending disaster or calamity which threatens to destroy life or property in this State," the Governor is authorized to call upon the military forces of the State or take other necessary steps to avert such "disasters and calamities."

Langdon Davies, a member of the British Labor Party, was reprimanded in the House tonight by Representative O'Connor after Davies had made an address to the House. Davies defended the presence in the State Library of works on free love, socialism and anarchy and condemned as narrow those who would expel such books. He referred to the attack upon this literature as an attempt to suppress free discussion and freedom of speech, thought and opinion.

"You have abused the privileges extended to you and violated the courtesies of this House by talking on a matter under controversy," said O'Connor. Davies insisted that he was not aware of this.

"You must have known it was under discussion," said O'Connor. "In fact, I am of the opinion that you were asked expressly to talk on this subject."

Davies said the Nonpartisan League movement, Bolshevism in Russia, and England's Labor Party are the "three great examples upon which the eyes of the world are resting."

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY TO PROTEST AT CAPITAL

Governors, Mayors and Business Men Leave Today to Press Demands on the Government.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—H. H. Merrick, President of the Mississippi Valley Association, announced tonight that 250 business executives of the association and Governors, Mayors, and other officials of some of the twenty-two States represented in the organization would leave for Washington tomorrow in an effort to obtain relief from the virtual coal famine in many communities in those States.

Mr. Merrick blamed the Railroad and Fuel Administrations at Washington for the serious conditions prevailing in most of the States from the Ohio west to the Pacific Coast.

but the rain, which retarded operations yesterday, ceased early. Five mines were in operation this morning loading coal, a gain of two over yesterday, and nine mines were in operation later in the day. The mines are scattered over a wide area, and communication is difficult.

The Patten mine, which opened this morning, sent its first pit carload of coal to the tipple at 8:15 o'clock, and the volunteers gave three cheers as the pit car dumped and the coal routed down into the freight car waiting below to receive its load. The Fleming No. 3, in the southern district, also reported that it was under way. Fleming No. 3 is one of the big mines of the field which was put out of commission by water and by broken machinery. The opening of this mine is one of the encouraging signs of the progress being made.

This morning troops and volunteer workers were sent to four other mines. This will increase the number of mines to sixteen, all of which, it is expected, will be running full force by Monday morning. The Kansas University boys at Carbin No. 2 went into the mine this morning with the intention of beating their record of yesterday, when they loaded three cars of coal. Five cars a day is the capacity of the mine. But five cars a day includes the work of the big steam loader, which is still out of commission. All the coal mined up to date has been dug out with picks and hand shovels. Every steam loader in the district has been put out of commission by the loss of important parts carried away by the strikers. This morning a grading outfit reached Coalvale, where work began at once for opening a new shallow strip mine. Troops were sent to guard the operations. Another crew will arrive tomorrow at Coalvale.

A miner reported last night that one grievance the union men were urging against the volunteers was that they were "working those poor mules to death."

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 5.—Production of coal started in Oklahoma today. Governor J. D. A. Robertson, and J. A. Whitehurst, President of the State Board of Agriculture, donned overalls and rubber hip boots and dug coal in the Hawley strip pits near McAlester. Three hundred volunteers from all sections of the State worked with them and 300 more volunteers are ready to enter the mines as soon as the forces can be organized for operation.

Martial law was declared today for Pittsburg, Latimer Le Flore, Haskell, Coal, and Okmulgee Counties by Governor Robertson. The entire State National Guard has orders to be ready to move to the coal fields to do guard duty. Company D, First Separate Battalion, of Oklahoma City, will leave tomorrow morning for the McCurtain fields, accompanied by fifty volunteer workers.

Bank clerks, newspaper men, and druggists are among the volunteers. All workers must pass a physical examination by National Guard physicians before they are permitted to enter the mines.

Passenger trains out of Oklahoma City are to be reduced from 43 to 28, in keeping with the order to curtail service issued yesterday by the Southwestern Regional Fuel Director at St. Louis. Sleepers have already been discontinued. All the night life Oklahoma City ever had is ended. Drug stores and movies may remain open, but drug store soda fountains must close. It is impossible to obtain a cigar or cold drink except from 9 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, business hours prescribed yesterday by the County Council of Defense.

Many persons joined wood-cutting parties and spent the day preparing fuel for the next cold wave. Hundreds of acres of uncut timber are offered free to persons needing fuel. Hardware stores are besieged with orders for oil and wood burning stoves.

UNION LOCAL CHIEFS HELD FOR CONTEMPT

GUARDS LEAVE COLLIERIES

Indianapolis Hears Men Left to Run Pumps and Protect Property Are Quitting.

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 5.—An information for contempt of court was filed today by L. Ert Slack, United States District Attorney, and Dan W. Simms, special Assistant Attorney General, against officers of two local United Mine Workers' unions of Clinton, Ind., charging them with having violated the injunction of Judge A. B. Anderson by paying strike benefits.

It is said the men will be arrested and will appear in court at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the same time the general and district officers of the United Mine Workers of America, who are defendants in another contempt proceeding, are to appear.

Bond for the Clinton unions' defendants was fixed at $5,000.

Miners designated by the union officials to guard the mines are reported to be quitting their posts. These men are engineers, firemen, and pumpers, and a concentrated movement from the mines by these workers would cause heavy losses.

Reports from Terre Haute and Clinton, the heart of the coal belt in Indiana, declare that a union organizer is canvassing that field to get the engineers, firemen and pumpers to leave their posts. The reports, however, have not been confirmed. Operators are said to have declared that a few of the men have quit their work.

The coal situation in Indiana is about the same today as it has been for a week. More factories are closing daily and more measures to conserve coal are being attempted all over the State. Where the coal supply is extremely low many families are resorting to the burning of wood and oil.

CABINET GETS FACTS ON COAL SITUATION

Calls in Garfield and Hines, but No Announcement Is Made—Output Is 45% of Normal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The general coal situation was discussed again today at a meeting of the Cabinet, but there was no intimation of what new step was contemplated by the Government to meet growing appeals from various sections of the country for enough fuel to keep the big industries in operation.

Fuel Administrator Garfield, summoned here from his home in Massachusetts to take up some of the big problems developing in the last few days, and Director General Hines told the Cabinet what had been done. Dr. Garfield later conferred with Department of Justice officials and the Executive Committee of the Bituminous Coal Operators of the United States, members of which remained here to watch the situation.

The operators' committee issued a statement characterizing as "vicious and misleading" published reports to the effect that they were considering proposals to compromise with striking mine workers by paying more than the 14 per cent. increase suggested by Dr. Garfield and increasing the price of coal. There will be no compromise on the demands, they said.

In connection with the action of the Federal Court at Indianapolis ordering the Grand Jury to investigate their actions with a view to bringing indictments under the Lever act, the operators sent a telegram to District Attorney Simms at Indianapolis asking that the hearings be expedited.

"Operators welcome Grand Jury investigation of the charges that they are in conspiracy with the miners," the message said. "We urge that investigation be handled vigorously and that full publicity be given. The operators are anxious to be heard. Will you advise if they will be given opportunity?"

Coal production has continued on the upward grade for three days, it was said, and is close to 45 per cent. of normal.

LOWDEN WILL NOT TAKE OVER MINES

FEARS FOR UNTRAINED MEN

Special to the New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Governor Lowden in a statement issued today said that he would make no effort to break the mine strike by State operation, declaring that it would be murder to send green hands into the shafts. As soon as a break comes in the situation he intends to call a conference between miners and operators in an effort to work out a settlement.

"I have talked with operators, with our State officials and with everybody whom I could reach who knows anything about the mining of coal in Illinois," he said, "and I have not found a single man who thinks it is practicable to attempt to operate deep mines at this time with inexperienced men without entailing a great loss of life and property, and even then without failure. I have combed the State to learn how many men of sufficient experience to go into deep mines there are who are not now members of the union and on strike. I find that the number is negligible.

"Therefore, the only way in which it seems so far possible to alleviate the deplorable situation is to insist in every way upon the conservation of coal. No doubt, even more drastic measures will have to be taken toward this end."

Governor Lowden said he had dispatched Lieut. Gov. Oglesby to Washington to urge upon the Government a more equitable distribution of coal.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5 (Associated Press).—Governor Lowden telegraphed Fuel Administrator Garfield tonight at Washington suggesting immediate appointment of the commission proposed by Dr. Garfield to take up consideration of the miners' wage question.

REDS NO MATCH FOR FIGHTING LETTS

Baltic Landwehr, Backbone of Army, Is Led by Dashing British Officer.

BARONS DOING FINE WORK

By WALTER DURANTY.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

RIGA, Dec. 3.—On the Lettish front the Bolshevist Army is beneath contempt from a Western military standpoint.

On the invitation of an English Colonel, Alexander, commanding the Baltic Landswehr, which forms the principal Lettish bulwark against the Reds while the greater part of the army is occupied with Bermondt and the Germans, I have just spent two days visiting the front-line positions, for there is no continuous trench system as in France.

The Bolsheviki appear to be well supplied with ammunition for both artillery and rifles or machine guns. Their troops are numerous and fairly courageous, but exceedingly deficient in training and not well led.

As matters are today, with a wide front, thinly held by the Lettish forces, there is undoubtedly danger of a Bolshevist break through by sheer weight of numbers, especially if, as is not improbable, an armistice on the Esthonia front releases more Red troops.

Riga is seething with rumors about the Bolsheviki coming, and the allied missions are continually appealed to for protection by the frightened inhabitants, but there is reason to believe that a lot of this talk is spread and encouraged by dealers in second-hand goods, who are doing a thriving trade buying valuables from people anxious to escape.

As far as the Landwehr front is concerned, its rupture by the Reds is out of the question. Whatever one may think of the Balts as a political or social factor in Letvia, it must be admitted that, as soldiers, they are first-class. Under Colonel Alexander they have recovered their morale lost in the local squabbles, intrigue, and fighting of the Spring and Summer, and are now a well-trained and highly disciplined force, with confidence in themselves and their leaders, who have established a thorough ascendency over the enemy.

Defense System a Simple One.

Their system of defense, which is the same with a few modifications along the whole anti-Bolshevist front from Narva to the Polish frontier, is quite simple. It consists of the occupation of all points where roads or railroads would make an advance possible. These points are protected by a belt of barbed wire, backed by machine guns, heavy and light, arranged in nests, according to the German plan as employed in the great war—for instance, against the Americans during the advance from the Marne. They are further supported by artillery and minenwerfer.

Where a wood or the nature of the ground gives cover for the defenders there are no trenches between the machine guns, each of which, however, has a small trench system around it. Where there is no cover, one deep, narrow trench permits the troops to move up in security from dugouts a little further back.

Men are constantly on duty night and day at all machine-gun points, and the defense is further maintained by incessant patrols in groups of three to fifty or more all over the immediate zone where transport is impossible and in the mostly deep belt of No Man's Land between the lines. This intermediate zone consists of marshes now frozen but still impossible for artillery or even light transport.

The Reds shell the greater part of the front very little, but at one or two points where their lines approach the Landwehr within a half mile, and where they have direct observation from tree tops there is an average of a hundred shells daily. The aim is exceedingly poor, and, on the whole, nearly half the shells are "duds." The defenders have lost only five killed and thirteen wounded altogether during the last two months, and of the eighteen casualties only seven were due to shellfire.

About a month ago a solitary Red airplane came over very high, and one day a week later a sausage balloon was seen a mile behind the Red lines. Neither reappeared and prisoners declare that both were injured beyond repair.

The day I visited the lines near the Dvina River the Reds attempted to attack there with a force of some 300 men, outnumbering the defense fully four to one. The defenders held their fire until the enemy should have crossed the belt of open ground between two woods across which they had a flanking fire at a distance of some eighty yards with heavy machine guns. They intended simultaneously to turn light machine guns and rifles on the enemy in the nearest wood, less than forty yards away, confident that, even could they emerge from it, they would be checked by the wire ten yards ahead of the trenches.

But the Bolsheviki, who had doubtless learned from scouts that the position was strongly held, did not dare to push the attack home. They were seen to enter the farmost wood in straggling groups of twenty or so. The ominous silence then proved too much for them. A few minutes later the whole force retired, pursued this time by a volley from the Landwehr, which brought down five or six, whose comrades carried them off.

All Foe's Attacks Futile.

Throughout the two months that the Landwehr occupied the position the Reds have never made an attack which succeeded in passing the wire at any point. Their patrols have passed the defense line four or five times through the intermediate zone, but have never captured any prisoners, done any damage, or killed any one. Two slightly wounded is the total of their achievement in this respect on the thinly held front, thirty-nine kilometers long.

On the other hand, prisoners made a report, which is confirmed by scouting parties, that two new Bolshevist regiments have recently arrived and others are expected. This looks as if they contemplated an offensive, though it may be as a precaution against a possible Lettish drive when the Bermondt affair is finished. These new troops are said to consist of the famous Red Letts, who rank as the best of Bolshevist soldiers. Some have been identified on the front already and fight with great bravery, if with little skill.

If the Reds do attack it will almost certainly be in the region of the junction of the Lettish-Esthonian front, about sixty miles due east of Riga. Here the line is held by Lettish soldiers, who are of good quality, but not of the same [illegible] Landwehr.

Colonel Alexander, whose own record as a Colonel of Irish guards at the age of 28 is sufficient guarantee of his military capacity, claims that the Baltic Landwehr are the [illegible] troops in any anti-Bolshevist army. They are all volunteers, over 70 per cent. belonging to the educated classes and fully 20 per cent. being ex-officers, mostly of the Russian, but some of the German Army. They are trained according to the German method and their snap and efficiency were certainly a revelation to me after the more easygoing methods of the French.

On the other hand, the intimate social relations which exist in many cases between officers and men as is bound to be the case when formerly rich landowners, business men, bankers, &c., are serving in ranks, have prevented the rank and file from being automata, unable to act without the direction of officers, as was often the case with the Germans. The spirit of individual initiative has been further fostered by continual raids into the enemy territory, sometimes miles behind his lines.

As an organization the Landwehr are divided into three detachments, each about a thousand strong, and each really a division on a small scale, with its own artillery, machine-gun companies, cavalry, trench mortar companies, and staff signal corps, transport and hospital service. Up to the present they have all worn the German uniform, originally supplied by von der Goltz, which is unfortunate as liable to cause friction with the Letts. But British uniforms will soon be provided.

There is also an independent detachment of cavalry, some 400 strong.

Fifteen Barons in One Company.

In one company of Letts, twenty-five strong, there are fifteen authentic Balt Barons, all enormously wealthy before the war, who can trace their ancestry back without a break for 500 to 700 years or more. These men are now coatless and mostly gloveless in cold of thirty degrees frost, their boots are full of holes, and they are without money, save their daily pay of five Russian rubles (about 2 cents American). Their property has been sequestrated by the Lettish Government, but the latter has formulated a proposal to allow the landowners to retain part of their estates and give compensation for the remainder and for other property they may retain. This, of course, applies only to such Balts as were not guilty of intrigues with Bermondt or the Germans. The proposal must, however, be passed by a Constituent Assembly which is expected to be elected early next year, and it is rather doubtful whether the latter, representing popular sentiment, which is exceedingly bitter against the Balts, will agree to vote it.

Meanwhile the Balts seem to have realized that their only chance lies in fighting their hardest for Letvia against the Reds. Nearly all of them are dead shots, whereas the Reds invariably fire high, which accounts for the trifling casualties.

Above all the Landwehr were exceedingly fortunate in their dashing young commander. Colonel Alexander shows extraordinary skill in steering through the thousand and one difficulties, disputes and misunderstandings which constantly arise, and if the Balt problem, on which the future of Letvia principally depends, is to be settled satisfactorily a very great part of the credit will be due to him.

The weakness of the Bolshevist army against good troops like the Baltic Landwehr may be judged by the following story of a big raid conducted by the latter a few days ago. It was told to me by Captain Zackert, who planned and executed the operation, in his dugout on the Red front. The purpose was nothing less than to "cut out" a Red battery situated near the railroad station, five kilometers behind a strongly fortified line running eastward two and a half miles from the Dvina River, and including three parallel villages, each about half a mile apart. It was held by about 1,000 Reds, and the Landwehr knew that the enemy had also an armored train at a point within easy call further south along the railroad. It was necessary therefore, that the assailants should cut the railroad south of the battery to prevent the arrival of reinforcements.

The party which did this successfully actually penetrated eleven kilometers behind the Bolshevist front—altogether twenty-three kilometers ahead of their own line, as the intermediate No Man's Land here is very wide owing to the marshy nature of the ground.

Captures Battery and 120 Men.

The whole operation was carried out with complete success. The raiders returned with two guns composing the battery and 120 prisoners, including a Red Commissaire. They rolled the Red front off the three villages westward on to the river, killed eighty Bolsheviki for certain, not counting the wounded; caused the derailment of a train bringing reinforcements, and, most amazing of all, did not lose a single man themselves.

Captain Zackert is 27 years old, but this is his sixth year of fighting. Until 1917 he was an officer of the Russian Army, and subsequently fought against the Bolsheviki. He has been seven times wounded, but enjoys war, and told me he did not know what he would do if there were universal peace. He said:

"We set out with 150 men, all volunteers belonging to a shock troop detachment, at 2 A. M. It was bitterly cold, 30 degrees of frost, and very few of us had gloves or coats—though we got both all right from the enemy for the return journey. Three hours before, two officers had made a diagonal reconnaissance southeastward along the course we were to follow—the enemy position was due south of our point of departure—in order to get round behind him through marshy ground on his right front.

"They reported the coast clear, so, under cover of darkness and a snow storm, we crept forward across the frozen marsh. The going was very bad all broken up by hummocks and tufts of matted rushes frozen solid. The men had great difficulty to carry a small store of bombs and light machine guns which formed our only 'artillery' other than rifles or revolvers. The cold too, was so great that our bare hands were almost unable to hold anything.

"Nevertheless, we made good progress and by dawn had reached a point southeast of the enemy's line of villages, almost exactly opposite the battery position. We were then on thickly wooded moorland interspersed with frozen morasses where the enemy had no line, though there was always danger of meeting patrols. After a short rest we moved on at 9, this time facing southwestward toward the railroad so as to reach the enemy's rear.

"Taking advantage of cover and helped by a driving snowstorm, we successfully crossed in small groups the broad plank military road linking the Bolshevist positions near the river with a line further east. I may add that our scouts had surveyed the whole area carefully beforehand and located all the enemy posts, owing to a habit the Reds have of continually blazing away at an imaginary enemy, especially during the night—a sign, by the way, of their greenness.

Raiders Split Into Three Groups.

"We had left a detachment of fifty men north of the road to proceed slowly northeastward and at noon—the zero hour—to attack the easternmost of the three villages and if possible roll up the whole Red front before them toward the river. From a little wood just south of the road thirty more struck due west to tackle the railroad station some 150 yards west of the battery that was our objective. The rest of us continued southwest along a deep ditch, which provided excellent cover.

"By 11 we had reached the high road—parallel to the plank road above mentioned—at a point five kilometers behind the enemy's line and almost due south of the eastern village. We found this road patrolled by enemy sentries, so hid in bushes beside it and slipped across in twos and threes when the sentry's back was turned. In a little alley here the Red Commissaire alone ran right into our hands and immediately surrendered. As the mark of his rank he wore a big red star on the left breast surrounded by a silver wreath of oak leaves. We also picked up a few peasants, with their charts, whom we took with us to prevent their giving the alarm and to swell our apparent numbers when the attack began. Then I sent a score of men in two parties to blow up the railroad at two points further south, and when they had done it to move swiftly north to support us.

"With the remaining fifty deployed in skirmishing line, with their faces north-northwest, I moved to attack the battery at noon precisely. The first shots were fired about half a mile south of the objective, but the enemy's surprise was complete, and we progressed rapidly. A heavy machine gun delayed us for a moment, but it jammed owing to the cold and we bombed the crew and captured it before 12:30.

"The storming of the battery began, assisted by a detachment on our right who had occupied the railroad station accounting for twenty-five Reds defending it. The enemy gunners fought bravely, but there was much confusion. They had not had time to slew the gun around to meet us, and after inflicting heavy casualties with a pointblank volley we rushed them easily enough. The hardest job of all was harnessing the terrified horses, which were in good condition.

"While thus occupied we were rejoined by the twenty men sent to cut the railroad. They reported the work done and that they had seen a train approaching at high speed and then heard a terrific smash as it reached the broken embankment and had seen a great cloud of steam, so the damage was probably serious.

"My force now numbered 100 equipped with two captured heavy and two light machine guns in addition to our own, which was just as well for there followed almost immediately a heavy attack by some [illegible] men from the north. We thought it a counterblow, but it was really a desperate attempt to cut a way through by the survivors of the Bolshevist front line, which had been completely rolled up by our fifty men, who had surprised them utterly, and evidently given the impression of an attack in strong force. Indeed, the enemy was certain that we were making a mass attack, we learned later.

"Our assailants came on most determinedly. They were mostly Red Letts, who form the backbone of the Bolshevist Army and were led—or rather encouraged, for he kept well in the rear—by a Commissaire uttering ferocious howls to exterminate us without mercy. We opened fire at 200 yards—my soldiers can nearly all bring down their man at that distance—and the enemy gave an excellent target for the machine guns, because as usual they bunched in groups instead of spreading out in a skirmishing line. Fortunately they followed their invariable custom of firing high and the bullets only damaged the twigs above us. None of them got nearer than fifty yards and their losses must have been very heavy, as the ground was covered with bodies.

"When the attack melted we at once started home in a northeasterly direction at first, as we were uncertain whether the line right ahead of us had been rolled up. After about half an hour's going we were met by a messenger from the detachment which had attended to that, saying all was clear. So then we moved straight north along the main road.

"We were not molested during the return though at one point about two miles from our own lines, a party of 100 Reds, coming from the east, actually crossed the road ahead of us. With prisoners and wagon loads of material and guns we made an imposing array, and the Reds promptly hid in a wood and did not even fire a single shot. Our rear guard finally entered the lines at 11 P. M. We had covered sixty kilometers altogether, a good part of it behind the enemy's line.

"Our men were so delighted that the whole detachment had a great celebration, letting off guns, grenades, and firing Very lights. A detachment on our left had not yet heard the news and thought a night attack was in progress. They all stood to arms all night and were dreadfully annoyed when they learned the truth."

HAPGOOD COMING HOME TO TELL ABOUT RUSSIA

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Norman Hapgood, the American Minister to Denmark, who is returning immediately to the United States, has neither resigned his position nor been asked to resign, according to authoritative information obtained from high officials of the State Department late today.

It was made plain that Mr. Hapgood was coming back to this country of his own volition, and that his request had been approved by the department. It was authoritatively explained that Mr. Hapgood thinks he has important information to communicate to the State Department regarding conditions, political, military and economic, in Russia, and that this information is of a confidential character.

The other great powers also are collecting information regarding conditions in Soviet Russia, and a canvass of this information may have an important bearing on future policies toward Russia. One of the first questions to be decided is whether, and to what extent material as well as mere moral aid is to be given to the anti-Bolshevist elements in the future in an effort to enable them to crush Bolshevist military power.

DENIKIN CAPTURES 4,000 BOLSHEVIKI

Moscow Soviet Asserts the Red Forces Are Advancing on Entire South Front.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—An official communication received from General Denikin, the anti-Bolshevist commander in Southern Russia, says that on Nov. 27 his cavalry defeated four Red regiments eastward of Duturlingvka and that 4,000 prisoners were taken.

On the other hand a Bolshevist official statement received here says that Red forces are making a general advance along the entire Denikin front and have captured the towns of Koseletz, Romny and Boremcia, while fierce fighting is proceeding for the possession of Bielgorod. These towns are in the Governments of Tchernigov, Poltava and Kursk, northeast and east of Kiev.

On the eastern front the statement declares that Bolsheviki captured on Dec. 1 the city of Kainsk, 160 miles east of Omsk. Many prisoners were taken, it is said. Southwest of Omsk the Bolsheviki are said to have repaired the Siberian railroad near Akmolinsk and are advancing toward Slavgorod.

Austria Won't Surrender Bela Kun.

VIENNA, Dec. 4, (Associated Press.)—Bela Kun, Hungarian Dictator during the Soviet régime, will under no circumstances be surrendered to Hungary, according to a declaration made by Dr. Karl Renner, Austrian Chancellor, in answering an interpellation in the National Assembly today. He said that to surrender Bela Kun would be to jeopardize the lives of all Austrians now in Russia.

OTHER PARTIES AT ODDS

General Strike Comes to End and Workers Go Back—Order Restored in Mantua.

ROME, Dec. 5.—Socialists personally and through their organ, Avanti, declare it to be their chief purpose to discredit Parliament and create all the disorder possible to prevent parliamentary progress. This threat, it is believed in circles opposed to the Socialists, may result in the unification of all the constitutional groups, or that otherwise the Cabinet will be compelled to resign and again appeal to the country through a general election.

Premier Nitti is still hopeful of persuading the Socialists to co-operate with the other parties with a view to obtaining peacefully a portion at least of the reforms expected by the proletariat.

"A union of all the best citizens is an imperitive duty," said Tomasso Tittoni in a speech delivered on his assumption of the Presidency of the Senate today. "Concord in the Senate would be setting an example for the country, thereby inducing the latter to consider the irreparable losses caused by suicidal abstention from voting," he continued, after alluding to the small number of constitutional electors who went to the polls in the last general election.

"The work of the Peace Conference was slow and uncertain, not always coherent and not always considerate of the ideals which made the peoples enter the war or of their legitimate aspirations, for which they endured enormous sacrifices," Signor Tittoni added. "This attitude of the Peace Conference produced discontent and unrest, which has been especially felt in Italy, whose war aims found the greater opposition."

Signor Tittoni was interrupted by cheers for the King when he said: "Let me express the deep loyalty of the Senate to our august sovereign." He concluded:

"Italy is a great democracy, a true and genuine democracy without the least touch of plutocracy. She is animated only by ideals of equality and justice. Viva the King! Viva Italy!"

The entire Senate rose and joined in the vivas.

The Chamber of Deputies adjourned today until Tuesday, when the reply to the speech from the throne will be discussed.

Political attention is centered in the Chamber, where it is expected that the Government soon will ask a vote of confidence from the new Deputies on the occasion of the discussion of the reply to the speech from the throne. While it is certain that the Socialists will oppose this, it seems that the Catholics are favorable to the Cabinet.

The greatest efforts are being made to form a bloc with the remainder of the constitutional elements, but the difficulties being encountered are enormous, owing to past differences and political hatreds, and it appears impossible to have in the same compact both Signor Giolitti, former Premier, who was opposed to the war and favored the radicals, and Signor Salandra, who was at the head of the Government at the time of Italy's entrance into the war and who is favorable to the Conservatives.

The Socialist Deputy Misiano, who, before his election and while he was absent from the country, was condemned by an Italian military court to be shot for desertion, and who for a time had been imprisoned in Germany on a charge of participating in revolutionary movements, made his first appearance in the Chamber today. When asked to take the oath he said: "I swear, wishing for a social revolution soon." Some Socialist Deputies applauded this utterance, but the remainder of the Chamber hooted.

The order for the discontinuation of the general strike called after the recent disturbances following the opening of the Parliament has been generally obeyed. The strikers as a unit have resumed work here and in the other towns affected by the strike. In Rome the tram lines have resumed operations, the shops have all opened and the city presents its normal appearance.

Quiet has been restored in Mantua where disorders had occurred.

During recent disorders at Padua the famous Pedrocchi Café was virtually destroyed by the mob. This café, several centuries old, had wonderful marble halls and beautiful decorations. It was a popular rendezvous for officers.

The Popolo Romano attributes the greater part of the responsibility for the recent troubles in Italy to the Allies, saying that "owing to a mistaken idea of Italy's international policy they denied Italian aspirations, thereby arousing the resentment and mistrust of the Italian population."

PARIS, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Milan reports the coming trial of Professor Benito Mussolini, the Socialist leader and editor of the Milan Popolo Italia, on a charge of raising troops for the purpose of bringing about a revolution. Captain Ferrucci Vecchi, President of the Arditi Association, and Dr. Marinetti, the Futurist poet, are mentioned in connection with the case.

SAY D'ANNUNZIO PLANS RAID ON THREE PORTS

Jugoslav Delegation in Paris Hears Attack Will Be Made by 10,000 Men.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—The Jugoslav delegation in Paris is informed that Gabriele d'Annunzio, the Italian insurgent leader, is planning to raid Cattaro, Spalato and the territory opposite Laibach, according to a statement issued by the delegation today. Ten thousand of d'Annunzio's forces will be used in the enterprise, it was said.

The delegation announced it had already notified the Supreme Council that the Jugoslav troops had been ordered to repulse with arms any attack on Jugoslav territory.

Plans for the new enterprise, as received by the delegation, say d'Annunzio's troops will be joined by regular army contingents in agreement with several Italian military chiefs, and that after landings at Spalato and Cattaro are effected the attack on the front facing Laibach will follow.

CZECHOSLOVAKS MOBILIZE.

21 Divisions Reported Advancing Toward the Hungarian Border.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 5.—The Czechoslovakian Government has ordered the mobilization of three military classes, says a dispatch from Vienna to the National Tidende here. A Prague dispatch, dealing with the same situation, says that twenty-one divisions of Czechoslovaks are advancing toward the Hungarian frontier.

The issuance of orders to twenty-one Czechoslovak divisions to proceed to the Hungarian frontier was reported in a news agency dispatch from Vienna on Thursday. It was added that six regiments had already started for the border.

Czechoslovakia apparently has been exercised by the reported monarchical developments in Hungary, following the evacuation of Budapest by the Rumanians, and the aggressiveness reported displayed recently by Hungarian frontier forces. Recent advices from Prague announced an attack by a Hungarian frontier detachment upon Czechoslovak troops. The Hungarians were ultimately driven back across the border, it was stated.

EX-KAISER FAR AFIELD.

Goes Hunting with Dutch Prince—Question of His Taxes Raised.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 5.—Accompanied by the Prince of the Netherlands, the ex-Kaiser went hunting yesterday in the neighborhood of Niersen and Gortel, which is much further afield than the ex-monarch generally ventures.

The question of levying an income tax on the ex-monarch and his son was discussed yesterday in the second chamber. The Minister of Finance, De Vries, declared that should the ex-Kaiser's residence at the house at Doorn be of a permanent character, the monarch would certainly be taxed, but that it was not yet known whether the ex-Kaiser had actually bought the house.

The matter of taxing the ex-royal exiles was brought up in the chamber by the Socialists. The Socialist organ, Het Volk, declares the municipality of the Island of Wieringen has decided to tax the ex-Crown Prince on an income of 800,000 florins (about $320,000).

LT. MAYNARD FLIES SOUTH.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, Dec. 5.—Lieut. Belvin W. Maynard, the preacher-aviator who won the transcontinental air race, left Mitchel Field at 10:12 this morning on a flight to Savannah, Ga., where he will speak before the Southern Commercial Congress on Sunday. He used the De Haviland-4 plane in which he crossed the continent twice. He was accompanied by Sergeant William E. Kline, who was with him in the 5,400-mile ocean-to-ocean race.

Lieut. Maynard carried copies of THE NEW YORK TIMES addressed to Governors Kilby of Alabama, Catts of Florida, Dorsey of Georgia, Pleasant of Louisiana, Cooper of South Carolina, Roberts of Tennessee, Hobby of Texas, Clement of Virginia, Stanley of Kentucky, Bilbo of Mississippi, and Bickett of North Carolina.

"Trixie," Maynard's Belgian police dog mascot, was to have gone, but after sniffing the brisk morning air she went back into the house and could not be induced to come out again.

STATES' RIGHTS ISSUE IN GERMANY

BAVARIA MOST OUTSPOKEN

Her Representative Protests Against Robbing States of Financial Sovereignty.

BERLIN, Dec. 4 (Associated Press).—That encroachments by the central German Government upon the prerogatives and integrity of the Federated States are provoking increasing impatience and mistrust among the delegates to the National Council was again indicated at today's discussions of the national tax measures drawn up by Dr. Mathias Erzberger, Minister of Finance.

Representatives of the six Federated States who are taking part in the Council made known to Dr. Erzberger their disapproval of the manner in which he was attempting to force the tax, saying that they were not permitted to inspect the measures with respect to their infringement of State rights. The delegates say it is the avowed tendency of the measures to establish a system bringing about a unitarianism in the national Government administration.

Paul Hirsch, Prussian Premier, speaking for Prussia, said that, while Prussia did not come under the national tax measures, this instance would receive Prussian approval in view of the political and economic situation. The State in the future, Herr Hirsch said, would expect the Finance and other Governmental departments to abstain from the practice of permitting national legislation calculated to encroach upon the constitutional rights of individual States.

The Bavarian delegate was even more outspoken in his protest against the tax measures, declaring that the Berlin Government's "aspirations for a unified State warrant the greatest misgivings." He said he opposed the present measures on material grounds, and warned against what he said was depriving the States of their financial sovereignty.

Delegates from Saxony, Württemberg, Baden, and Hesse were less outspoken in their criticism. An amendment introduced by the Baden representative, empowering the States to levy a supplementary income tax, was rejected.

Dr. Schiffer, Minister of Justice, had a conference today with the Ministers of Justice of the Federated States, with respect to reforms in the judiciary. He told the Ministers thta he did not believe Prussian influence on the nation should be curtailed.

"It would be an act of injustice to destroy Prussia, without which German thought would not have blossomed in the past," asserted Dr. Schiffer. "It is the duty of the Government to restore the confidence of the States."

JUDGE WOULD SAVE COHEN.

Recommends That Governor Commute Baff Slayer's Death Sentence.

Judge John F. McIntyre of General Sessions wrote to Governor Smith yesterday recommending commutation of the death sentence of Joseph Cohen, who was convicted of complicity in the murder in 1914 of Barnet Baff, the West Washington Market poultry dealer. Cohen had been reprieved seven times by Governors Whitman and Smith. His case attracted national attention early this year when Senator James A. Reed appealed to Governor Smith to order an investigation of the testimony that brought about the conviction. Judge McIntyre has since conducted a John Doe inquiry, principally regarding the deposition of Joseph Sorro, and the results of his conclusions resulting from that investigation are embodied in his letter to the Governor, which in part reads:

"At the trial of Cohen the principal witness called against him was Antonio Cardinale, who was himself at the time under indictment charged with the murder of Baff, but who, before his indictment, had fled to Italy. Cardinale was returned to this country by the Italian Government under an express agreement that he was not to be prosecuted, but was simply to be used as a witness, and was then to be returned to Italy. Cardinale by his testimony in the Cohen case was clearly an accomplice in the murder of Baff, hence his testimony requires corroboration before any conviction could be had.

"The principal corroborating witness called by the people was the aforesaid Sorro, whose testimony was of a very damaging nature. It is extremely doubtful in my opinion if a conviction could have been obtained against Joseph Cohen without the testimony of Sorro. In his seventy-five page deposition referred to above, he retracted practically every item of testimony given by him upon the trial of Joseph Cohen. He declared that all such testimony was false, and that he had been suborned to give such testimony by one Philip M. Musica, an ex-convict, who, at the time of the prosecution of Cohen, was employed as chief investigator by the Attorney General, who previously by the executive order of Governor Whitman had superseded the District Attorney of New York County for the purpose of prosecuting all indictments arising out of the Baff murder."

Judge McIntyre concludes the letter with the statement that both Sorro and Cardinale "declined to answer most of the questions addressed to them by both the District Attorney and myself," and that "the very shifty andevasive attitude adopted by these two witnesses in the light of the detailed retraction Sorro had previously made on oath, are among the principal elements for the conclusion that the sentence of death should be commuted."

CHICAGO WORKDAY REDUCED TO 6 HOURS

Fuel Committee Orders Restriction Because of Coal Strike Crisis.

BUSINESS BEGINS AT NOON

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Chicago's workers, and business men and women had today their first experience of a six-hour and a half working day, and so great was the business disturbance, coupled with the curtailment of production, that the Fuel Committee decided that beginning on Monday, as a necessary step in the conservation of coal, retail business throughout the city will be limited to six hours daily—from 12 o'colck noon until 6 o'clock.

This order applies to all alike, department stores and retail stores of all sorts, downtown or outside the loop. Groceries, meat shops, drug stores, and bread bakeries are not restricted.

Today the workers in factories were employed only from 9 A. M. to 3:30 P. M. Department stores and retail establishments in the downtown district were open only from 11 A. M. to 5:30 P. M. Office buildings were open from 9 in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon, at which hour electric light and heat were shut off and elevator service reduced to one car per building. Retail stores were open outside the "loop" or downtown district from 10 A. M. to 6 P. M., but all over the city the use of electric lights was ordered reduced 50 per cent. Illuminated advertising signs were extinguished and no shop lighting was permitted.

The banks were open as usual from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., but, following action by the Clearing House, banking hours are to be curtailed. Beginning Monday the banks will be open for the transaction of business from 9 A. M. to 1:30 P. M. only. On Saturdays banking hours will be from 9 A. M. to 12 noon, but retail establishments in the "loop," including the big department stores, will be permitted to remain open on Saturdays until 9 o'clock at night.

Unless the coal situation is relieved in Chicago within forty-eight hours, the Public Utilities Commission and the Federal Fuel Administration will be asked for more drastic restrictions, according to a statement made today before the Utilities Commission by Harry H. Merrick of the Committee of Five appointed by the commission to make recommendations.

KIPLING ISSUES AN APPEAL.

Asks Visitors to Battlefields to Show Reverence for the Dead.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—Rudyard Kipling, on behalf of the Imperial War Graves Commission, has written an earnest appeal to those visiting or intending to visit the French and Flanders fronts to observe reverence for the dead. In part he writes:

"It should be remembered this is holy ground—consecrated in every part by the lives of men, and for that reason not to be run over with levity. It is inevitable that the handling of such multitudes of sightseers as are expected next year must be managed along ordinary tourist lines; so it rests with the individual tourist to have respect for the spirit that lies upon that land of desolation and to walk through it with reverence.

"It is said there is a tendency on the part of some visitors to forget this obligation. Nothing would be gained by giving specific instances of what, after all, is more in the nature of unthinking carelessness than intentional disrespect; but the Imperial War Graves Commission has asked me to express our earnest hope that all who visit the battle areas will bear in mind that at every step they are in the presence of those dead through the merit of whose sacrifice they enjoy their present life and whatever measure of freedom is theirs today."

OLD CARNEGIE MEN MEET.

Philanthropist's Ex-Partners Pay Silent Tribute in Schwab Home.

Twenty-eight members of the Carnegie Association, made up of former partners and business associates of the late Andrew Carnegie, got together in the Riverside Drive home of Charles M. Schwab last night at the annual meeting of the organization. Mr. Carnegie himself was wont to attend these affairs. Last night the members sat in silence about the dinner table for fifteen minutes in tribute to his memory. Then a Metropolitan singer sang "Dusk and the Shadows Falling."

There were brief speeches by Mr. Schwab, Senator Phipps of Colorado, and George Lauder, eldest of the iron master's former partners, who was elected President of the association for the ensuing year. Mr. Schwab was elected Vice President and Charles V. Taylor Treasurer.

SOCIALISTS AID STRIKERS.

Meeting in Harlem Raises $25,000 for Steel Workers.

The Socialists of the Seventeenth Assembly District met last evening in the New Star Casino, Lexington Avenue at 107th Street, and raised more than $25,000 for the striking steel workers. The money was mostly in large subscriptions by trades unions.

The principal speaker was W. Z. Foster, leader of the strike. He recited the causes which, he said, led to the strike and the difficulties of organizing the men.

The United States Steel Corporation had a fund of $20,000,000 with which to stamp out unionism, he said, but he predicted that the strike would cost the corporation ten or fifteen times that amount.

of the windows were broken. The windows on th first floor of the Stetson Hat Company's building, at 1,157 Broadway, were shattered, and several hats were blown into the street. The cornice ornamentation on the fourth, fifth, and sixth floors of a building at 48 West Twenty-seventh Street was ripped off, and most of the windows were broken.

Two men were cut by flying glass at Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street and were taken to Bellevue Hospital, but were able to go home after treatment.

The firemen's theory was that a spark inside a conduit near Twenty-seventh Street started the trouble when it exploded gas which had accumulated by leakage inside the tube.

Chief Kenlon said last night that electric service in the explosion neighborhood would not be resumed for some time and that today only the larger buildings, such as hotels, office buildings, and public buildings, would be provided with current.

Chief Kenlon estimated that at least $75,000 damage had been done to windows by the explosions. The extent of interior damages will not be known until this morning when offices are opened for the day.

COL. GREEN'S WARD ARRIVES

Henriette Turpaud, Aged 12, Comes from France on Lorraine.

Mlle. Henriette Turpaud, petite and pretty, walked straight from the gangway of the French liner Lorraine yesterday to grasp the welcoming hands of Colonel E. H. Green, son of the late Hetty Green, who had been for some time impatiently awaiting the docking of the liner. Henriette is 12 years old and the Colonel has brought her from France to be his adopted daughter and grow up into a good American. She is the eighth French child to whom the Colonel is acting as foster father.

The little girl is the daughter of Roger Turpaud, who was killed in the early part of the war. Her mother, who works in a factory in Paris, was perfectly willing to let her daughter come to America and grow up.

Colonel Green had to remain on the pier some time, as his protegé was detained because her passport was mislaid. Henriette was also met on the pier by Miss Mary Alcott, the Principal of the Wilkesbarre Technical School, where Henriette will be educated.

COPELAND IN ANGER THREATENS TO QUIT

SAYS WORK IS HAMPERED

After threatening to resign at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Estimate because Controller Craig would not vote for an appropriation of $38,000 with which to carry on the work of caring for drug addicts at Riverside Hospital on North Brother Island, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, informed Mayor Hylan that he would remain in office when the Mayor agreed to call a special meeting of the board for next Monday, and to try again to get the appropriation through. Twelve votes were necessary to pass the appropriation yesterday, but only ten could be mustered. When the matter is on the calendar the second time only nine votes will be required, and the money is expected to be forthcoming despite the Controller's opposition.

Dr. Copeland told the Board of Estimate that the $38,000 was needed to pay the salaries of nurses, as well as to provide hospital supplies. The money, he said, would enable him to take proper care of every addict in the hospital. Controller Craig objected on the ground that the request contained commitments which had not been authorized by the board, and because he had not had time to consider the matter fully. One member then suggested that the amount be reduced to $30,000, but the Controller still objected. When the Health Commissioner stated that the nurses had not yet been paid for November, the Mayor suggested that the amount be limited to $11,000, just enough to pay the nurses. Still the Controller objected, and the Health Commissioner, with some heat, remarked:

"You are against every matter involving the health of the community that comes before this board."

"That is ridiculous," snapped the Controller.

"Well, your action today means that we will have to close the hospital for drug addicts," said the Commissioner.

"And you will do the public no injury by shutting down the drug addicts scheme," replied Mr. Craig.

"Mr. Mayor," said Commissioner Copeland, flushing angrily, "I accepted the Health Commissionership at your urgent request as a matter of patriotism. There are two threads holding my interest, the milk and drug situations. If there is not enough stamina in this board to support my efforts I don't want the job, and I hereby respectfully tender my resignation."

The Mayor sought to mollify his Commissioner, and asked him to call at the Mayor's office later. After a conference with the Mayor the Commissioner said:

"I have just returned from a conference with the Mayor, which was held at his request. We discussed the vital public health problems that seem so pressing at the present moment, particularly the narcotic drug campaign and the efforts of the Health Department to lower the cost of milk. I suggested to the Mayor that it was possible that my particular manner of conducting the Health Department might be an embarrassment to him, and that I could not under any circumstances remain in an office if I felt I was interfering with the larger work of the Mayor's office.

"I stated to him a thing he already knows—that I am holding the Health Commissionership at the sacrifice of my personal affairs, that the monetary loss is considerable, and that energies taken away from my own practice will be reflected in time to come. As a conclusion of the whole matter I said it certainly would be better for me to retire and possibly for him, too, if I did retire. It was gratifying, of course, to have him tell me in the strongest possible language, that he could not consent to accept my resignation, and insist that it was my duty to continue my campaign against the drug evil, and the high cost of milk.

"The controversy in the Board of Estimate this morning was over the question of funds which are absolutely necessary to continue the operation of our hospital for drug addicts on North Brother Island. We have the beds and facilities there to take care of 700 patients, but in the absence of funds to operate the establishment, it has been necessary for us to look forward to its closing, and the number of patients has dwindled to 200. We have sent no patients there for the last week or ten days, and many patients in the clinic have been brought down to the irreducible mimimum. The operation of the hospital and conduct of the clinic are in a sense one and the same problem. If we have no place to send our patients when the minimum dose has been reached, we might as well close the clinic and abandon the enterprise.

"The Board of Health has signified to the medical profession its readiness to receive every drug addict requiring hospital treatment. It certainly is the duty of the city to provide beds and medical care for such patients. Without funds the work cannot be done, and without an appropriation from the Board of Estimate the splendid work carried forward to a point where its successful termination is in sight must be abandoned.

"New York has demonstrated to the entire world a successful method of dealing with the drug addict. It would be a crime against humanity to have the enterprise fail for want of $38,000. I do not believe that the community desires any such thing to happen, neither do I believe the Board of Estimate desires or intends to have it happen. The Mayor has called a special meeting of the board to take action on my request. Meantime I shall continue as Commissioner of Health, and to do the best I can to conserve the health of the City of New York."

Justice Tierney Rebukes Alleged Draft Evader—Flays Bolsheviki.

Supreme Court Justice John M. Tierney, in the Bronx, yesterday denied the application for citizenship of Michael Curnan, 31 years old, of 799 East 150th Street, on the ground that during the war Curnan evaded his duty by claiming exemption from the draft. Curnan declared himself as an alien before the Draft Board, and also claimed that he was the sole support of an aged mother living in Ireland, whom he had not seen in ten years. He has lived in the United States since 1909.

In refusing Curnan's application, Justice Tierney said:

"You are the first Irishman I've ever come across to show the white feather. Your application is denied, and you cannot become an American citizen."

"I believe as far as the Irish people are concerned, their knowledge of the fact that I subscribed would at least help as much as any money subscription of mine. But as matters stand in Ireland, none of our newspapers dare publish the fact of my subscription."

Erectors Show No Disposition to Recede from Stand on 1920 Agreement.

The governors of the Building Trades Employers' Association meet regularly on the third Wednesday of each month.

While open warfare is threatened which might hamper the Spring building boom, there is no disposition on the part of the erectors to give up the open shop in spite of the fact that failure to do so will result in the forfeiture of the $1,500 bond of all members of the Building Trades Employers' Association not living up to contracts made by their Board of Governors.

CONTESTS VALIDITY OF 'DRY' AMENDMENT

BRINGS ACTION IN CAPITAL

Special to the New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A suit to contest the validity of the national prohibition amendment was begun today in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in behalf of the Vigilance League. Richard S. Harvey of Washington appeared as attorney for the league and Everett V. Abbot, George W. Tucker, and Benjamin Tuska of New York City are associated with him in the prosecution of the suit, which is the first of its kind.

The suit is brought by Robert A. Widenmann of West Haverstraw, as a member of the league and a citizen who has a pecuniary interest in the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages. It is hoped to establish the fact that all citizens of the United States, regardless of their business interests, are vitally affected by the Eighteenth Amendment, which it is held was never properly submitted to the several States, was not legally ratified by two-thirds of the State Legislatures and is void as being in direct conflict with the purpose of the Constitution of the United States.

The league is an association of citizens of New York, who assert that they are in no manner connected with any liquor interests. Among its members are Professor Franklin H. Giddings and Richard Morse Hodge of Columbia University; Ellwood Hendrick, President of the Chemists' Club; Edward J. Shriver, President of the Reform Club; John Drew, President of the Players; Henry Bacon, architect of the Lincoln Memorial; Dr. John P. Davin, Dr. William S. Gottheil, Oliver Herford, Charles A. Platt, Louis W. Frothingham, and John Wolcott Adams.

The proceedings are in the form of a petition to the court for a writ of mandamus directing Secretary of State Lansing to recall and cancel the proclamation issued by Acting Secretary of State Frank L. Polk, on Jan. 29, 1919, certifying that the Eighteenth Amendment had been duly proposed and ratified. If the suit is successful it would have the effect of arresting the enforcement of the amendment. In the event that an adverse decision is given in the lower court, an appeal will be taken to the United States Supreme Court, thus providing a way for an early review.

It is contended in the suit that the States cannot be deprived of their sovereign rights without their unanimous consent; that the people of the United States cannot be deprived of their inalienable rights, even by a majority vote of the people; that the members of Congress and of the States Legislatures act only with delegated powers and that these powers do not include the authority to surrender the sovereign rights of the States or to impair or abridge the inalienable rights of the citizens.

HOLDUP MEN ROB FIFTEEN.

Take Jewelry and Money at Brooklyn Party—Flee in Auto.

Fifteen members of the Florida Social Club, 149 Ralph Avenue, Brooklyn, were playing cards or chatting at midnight when three men suddenly dashed into the room. The club members looked up to find three revolvers covering them. Everyone obeyed the command to hold up his hands. While one of the bandits stood guard near the door the other two went along the line searching pockets and dropping valuables into a hat which one of them held. The thieves got about $300 in cash and jewelry roundly valued at $1,500.

Warning the club members against giving an alarm, the three men backed from the room, ran down the stairs and jumped into a blue automobile that was waiting across the street. One of the clubmen ran out in time to take the number of the car's license plate. Half an hour later a policeman came across the car at Broadway and Howard Avenue. The chauffeur was taken to the Ralph Avenue Station. Early this morning he was still being questioned by the police. He is said to have admitted that he picked up three fares and took them to the club. They were in the club some time. When they came out he took them to East New York. He denied that [illegible]

MAYORS OPEN FIGHT ON TELEPHONE RISE

TO WRITE TO LEGISLATORS

Plan That Service Corporation Shall Pass on Rates—Plea for Women Workers.

Special to the New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Confident that the increase in telephone rates outside of New York City may yet be thwarted by action of the Legislature, the State conference of Mayors and other city officials met today and decided to carry on a campaign to the end that the New York Telephone Company will never again be permitted to file a change in rates and put it into effect without first showing to the Public Service Commission the necessity for such action.

It is proposed to introduce this bill the first day of the session of 1920 and to urge its passage through the Legislature. The proposed law would be retroactive to Nov. 1.

The campaign will start at once, and every member of the Legislature will receive a letter from the State conference of Mayors on the subject, urging him to get behind the movement.

Boards of Supervisors in every up-State county, Chambers of Commerce, civic organizations and others will urge the legislators to give their speedy attention to an amendment to the Public Service commission law. They also will urge that an additional appropriation be given to the Public Service Commission in order that it may make an appraisal of the property of such public utility corporations as are necessary and not be forced to take the appraisal by the company.

It was reported to the meeting this afternoon that a committee of the State Conference of Mayors will have a standing in the Public Service Commission when the time comes to try the rate case. Already sixty-three villages and -nine cities have filed complaints against the increase in rates which went into effect on Dec. 1.

It was said that there probably will three test cases, Buffalo, which already has a rate case of its own; Binghamton, and Syracuse. The Buffalo case is set for a hearing on Jan. 8 next, and the two actions there probably will be consolidated. One of the Buffalo cases was begun before the war and was suspended when hostilities broke out. Then, when the Government took over the wires, another increase was made and complaint was filed against it. Now comes the new increase.

Dr. Milo R. Maltbie of New York is to be the expert for the up-State communities. He is to receive $3,000 for his services, to be paid by the various communities on a basis of population.

Miss Theresa Wolfson told the corporation counsels and village attorneys present today that while they were investigating the New York Telephone Company it might be well to look into the matter of hours and wages [illegible] to the women employes of the company. She said the Consumers' League had a lot of data on file showing how poorly paid the women were.

FAVOR AIR DEPARTMENT.

Senate Committee Reports Bill for New Cabinet Official.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Favorable report on a bill providing for the establishment of a separate department of aeronautics was ordered today by the Senate Military Committee. The vote was nine to two.

Senators Hitchcock of Nebraska and Fletcher of Florida, Democrats, voted against the measure on the ground that it would complicate the Governmental machinery and increase costs of operation.

The bill, which has been opposed before the committee by both Secretaries Baker and Daniels, would place the department under the direction of a chief of the air service who would be appointed by the President with the Senate's approval, and would be a member of the Cabinet at a salary of $12,000 annually. The department would have control of the air services of the army and navy, the Post Office Department and other Government departments, and would be charged with the development of the science of aeronautics, both commercially and from a military standpoint.

Glenn, of the mountains, grew up lithe and beautiful, and two men who came there, one to bury a grief, the other "on business," both loved her. DAY GETS RECORDS FOR GRAND JURY

As Special Process Server, He Is Sent for Files of the Markets Department.

O'MALLEY LOATH TO YIELD

Hirshfield, in Reply to Ousted Commissioner, Accuses Him of Misrepresentation.

Following his third appearance before the Extraordinary Grand Jury, the Rev. Jonathan C. Day, who was ousted as Commissioner of Markets by Mayor Hylan, was sworn in yesterday as special process server by the Grand Jury and sent to get for that body all the books and papers in the Department of Markets relating to transactions as far back as January, 1919. The documents were sent to the Grand Jury room in the Criminal Courts Building late yesterday afternoon.

The former Commissioner of Markets was called as a witness by the Grand Jury the day after he was removed from office last Tuesday, and was questioned regarding certain allegations he had made regarding graft in his department, especially as related to the sale of army and navy food supplies here. In this connection Dr. Day declared that there had been rank profiteering in the prices charged on some of the articles distributed at the school building sales.

Accompanied by James McNamara, Warden of the Grand Jury and a process server of the District Attorney's office, Dr. Day went to the Department of Markets rooms in the Municipal Building, arriving there shortly before 4 o'clock. The new Commissioner, Edwin J. O'Malley, who had been a Deputy Commissioner under Dr. Day, and had been dismissed by the latter on charges of unfaithfulness and disloyalty, was in his office when his former chief got there.

"The Grand Jury wants all the papers and books in this office," was Dr. Day's greeting to Mr. O'Malley.

At first the Commissioner agreed to allow the visitors a free hand. Then, he demanded a search warrant, and finally, after a short argument, he declined to even allow them to look at a figure until he could get advice from the Corporation Counsel.

O'Malley Finally Submits.

At this, Dr. Day immediately got into touch by telephone with Raymond J. Almirall, Grand Jury foreman, and told the latter of his difficulty. Mr. Almirall asked for Mr. O'Malley, and when the Commissioner came to the telephone, threatened to issue a body warrant against him if the papers were not delivered at once.

In the meanwhile, Assistant Corporation Counsel, Charles J. Durhan arrived on the scene and advised Mr. O'Malley to give up anything the Grand Jury wanted. Two clerks were assigned to help Dr. Day pick out what was required, and the material was all sent to the Grand Jury before 6 o'clock.

Dr. Day would not comment on the nature of the documents he selected from the files of the department, although it is known a great many of them relate to the food sales.

Process servers also visited Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield and demanded that he send at once to the Grand Jury all documents in his possession relating to his investigation of the Department of Markets. Mr. Hirshfield promised to give up the documents as soon as he could get them.

"We've been working mighty hard," the Commissioner of Accounts told the newspaper men, "and I don't think I can lay my hands on the papers immediately. However, the Grand Jury can have them just as quickly as I can get them over to the Criminal Courts Building."

Mr. Hirshfield also gave out a statement in reply to the accusations made against him by Dr. Day on Thursday to the effect that the Commissioner of Accounts had tried to "frame" him. Dr. Day said that Mr. Hirshfield had attempted to induce a poultry dealer named Harry Baff to swear that he, Day, was taking graft in connection with the issuance of permits for stands in the Washington Market.

Tells of Market Deal.

Mr. Hirshfield said that in this matter Dr. Day had not told the truth.

"Were it not for the respect I have for the cloth the gentleman is supposed to wear," he said, "I would almost be tempted to apply to him that short epithet usually applied to those who handle the truth carelessly and to refer to him by the name of those who perform feats with their hands quicker than the eye can follow."

With regard to the Baff story, the Commissioner of Accounts told how a dealer in Washington Market, William Jacobs, had told him of a deal whereby Harry Baff and a partner came to him to buy a share in three stands he had in the market. Jacobs, according to Mr. Hirshfield, said that Baff had agreed to pay $1,850 for the property, but that after the agreement was drawn up and signed, Day canceled his permit and gave two of the stands to Baff for nothing and the third stand to his own friend.

"The testimony of Baff's partner, Barnett Cohen, before me," said Mr. Hirshfield, "was to the effect that when the stock of merchandise and the money of the firm of Baff & Cohen had disappeared, he retained an accountant to go over the firm's books and that among the canceled checks he found a check for $500, payable to the order of 'Cash' and bearing on the back of it in the handwriting of Harry Baff the words 'for D. D.'

"It was but natural that in the performance of my duty I should want to examine Harry Baff. In response to my subpoena he attended before me and answered questions freely up to the time when I began to ask him concerning the $500 'for D. D.' check, but as soon as I brought up the subject about that check he jumped up, shouting that he refused to answer further questions without first consulting counsel, and when I directed him to answer he got in a rage and left my office.

"I then invoked the assistance of the Supreme Court, which issued an attachment against the body of Harry Baff to the Sheriff of New York County, with a direction to bring him before me.

"On his second examination Baff testified, in substance, that in spite of the fact that the $500 represented by the 'for D. D.' check was charged to 'Profit and Loss,' that the 'for D. D.' on the check meant 'down town,' and when I asked him whether he knew how to spell 'downtown' he answered yes, that he knew that it was spelled with a T, but that he spelled it that way, 'D. D.'"

NEGROES ASK PROTECTION.

National Association Writes Senator Lodge Regarding Mob Killings.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People made public yesterday a letter it had sent to Senator Lodge calling attention to the unpunished killing of negroes in this country.

While approving the demand for protection for American citizens in Mexico the association inquired of the Senator if this Government is going to require such protection in Mexico and is not going to etxend the same protection to one section of her citizens in their own country.

The letter stated that while nine Americans have been killed in Mexico since July 31, thirty-six negroes have been killed by mobs in the same time in this country. Attached to the letter is a list of mob killings in which negroes have been the victims.

SCHOONER SUNK, 4 DROWNED

Mary E. Lynch Rammed in North River by Unidentified Tugboat.

The two-masted schooner Mary E. Lynch of Stonington, Me., was rammed and sunk about 5 o'clock yesterday morning by an unidentified tugboat while she was at anchor off Pier 68, foot of Thirty-second Street, North River.

Andrew M. Francis, the skipper, was saved, but the remaining four members of the crew, all negroes, were drowned. They were asleep in the forecastle of the schooner when the collision took place and as the vessel was loaded with stone Captain Francis knew she would not float long. He shouted a warning and the hands came on deck. A boat was lowered with two men to keep it clear of the sides of the sinking craft, but the main boom split it in two and they were thrown into the water. The captain and his two sons, Carroll R. and Revius Francis, jumped overboard.

The father caught the main boom and was rescued later by the New York Central Railroad tugboat 13, in charge of Captain Harry Lynch, which circled around for half an hour looking for the four missing members of the crew of the schooner without finding any trace of them.

The schooner was to have been towed up the river today to Ossining, N. Y., to discharge her load of stone.

For public health work $1,255,990 was spent, including the hookworm, malaria, and yellow fever campaigns, the anti-tuberculosis work in France, after care of infantile paralysis cases, studies and demonstrations in mental hygiene, the School of Hygiene and Public Health of Johns Hopkins University, the study of dispensaries, the National Organization of Public Health and nursing.

THE BUILDERS

"The big test of the novelist is the ability to grow with the times. Miss Glasgow has demonstrated that she has that ability. American to the core, she studies her country's development with a singularly passionate intensity and translates it into romance after the fashion of the artist who is so sure of his medium that its mechanical necessities are wholly lost sight of in the purely spontaneous expression of his inspiration."—The Philadelphia Press.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT HALTS DEPORTATION

WILL BE HEARD ON MONDAY

Anarchists Speak Lightly of Going Away, but Fear Falling Into Anti-Bolshevist Hands.

Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman were taken to Ellis Island yesterday for deportation to Soviet Russia, but while their photographs and pedigrees were being recorded, writs of habeas corpus were issued by Federal Judge Julius M. Mayer, which will be heard on Monday afternoon a 2 o'clock.

Berkman seemed to have little doubt that he would soon be on his way to Russia, regardless of legal efforts in his behalf, but Emma Goldman said she expected to be free in this country in a few days.

Harry Weinberger, counsel for the two, had received reports, he said, that the immigration authorities had a ship ready to sail yesterday afternoon with his clients and about sixty other Reds on the island. Berkman and Goldman were slightly worried over this possibility, so they exchanged embraces and last words with a small flock of disciples who accompanied them to the island on the boat. On Ellis Island, Acting Commissioner Byron H. Uhl said he had received no instructions for the deportation of Goldman and Berkman or any of the other Reds. Congressman Isaac Siegel said the immigration authorities had given assurances at Washington last week that they would have a ship ready and all arrangements made to deport the eighty-two convicted anarchists to Libau, on the Baltic Sea, from which place they were to be taken by special arrangements with the Lett Government to Soviet Russia.

Admitting that he was somewhat concerned over their route to Russia, because he felt that they faced certain death if they fell into the hands of anti-Bolsheviki, Berkman said:

"I am not afraid to die, but I think it would be an outrage for this Government to send us where we would fall into the hands of reactionary Russians.

"Soviet Russia is the most progressive State in the world today. The policy of repression which this country has adopted is hastening the day when the people here will demand a more enlightened form of Government. For instance, I was not originally an anarchist, but I was made one when I witnessed the judicial hanging of anarchists in Chicago in 1887. The measures of the Government today are making anarchists of many more."

Emma Goldman said the attempt to deport her and Berkman and many others was a forerunner of the revolutions which would call them back to this country.

"I would not say there was any danger of a revolution," she said. "I would not call it a danger. It is an evolution and a blessing. The great change will come when the Government takes violent action against those working for progress. I have great faith in the American people, especially in the younger generation. The best sign is the fact that the professional men and women of this country are beginning to realize their duty toward labor. They are starting to do what the Russian intelligensia has done."

Miss Goldman said there would be no bloodshed, if the ruling class made no resistance to the revolutionary forces which she saw coming, but that a continuation of present methods would mean bloodshed.

On entering the ferry at the Battery and on leaving the ferry at Ellis Island, Miss Goldman shielded her face from time to time with a newspaper against snapshots. After arriving at the Immigration Building, however, she was persuaded to go out and pose for a time exposure, when it was explained that the overcast sky would probably make the snapshots indistinct. Later she and Berkman sat for official photographs for the Ellis Island records.

Berkman was not put with the main group of Red prisoners, but was sent to the quarters occupied by Peter Bianchi and other ringleaders of the late hunger strike. Miss Goldman was placed with Dora Lipkin and Ethel Bernstein, two leaders of the hunger strike who have been ordered deported.

Immediately after the ferry had landed Mr. Weinberger telephoned to an assistant to submit before the Federal District Courts the applications for writs of habeas corpus which had already been drawn. They were placed before Judge Mayer, who sentenced the pair after their conviction for advocating resistance to the draft and who ordered that they be turned over to the immigration authorities for deportation on the expiration of their sentences.

Conviction of a criminal offence automatically renders an alien subject to deportation, and Berkman admitted yesterday that there seemed to be little hope for him in the habeas corpus proceedings. Miss Goldman's case is somewhat different, because she insists that she is a citizen. Legal proceedings may consume some time before it is finally settled whether she lost her citizenship years ago, when the citizenship of her husband was canceled.

Magistrate McCloskey in the Bridge Plaza Court, Brooklyn, denied yesterday the plea of counsel for five Communists to dismiss the charge of criminal anarchy against them and continued the hearings until Monday. The defendants, who were arrested in recent raids on Communist headquarters in Brooklyn, were Irving Potash, John Janschuky, Michael Zwarwich, Taft Noyach and Robert S. Freil. Dealing with the contention of counsel for the defense that the accused men had only advocated striking, the Magistrate said:

"Concededly the strike is a quite legitimate economic weapon of labor, if lawfully used, that is, if not accompanied by violence. But the mass strike, with its revolutionary implications, is an entirely different matter. That, in my judgment, is economically and legally indefensible."

Agents of the Lusk Committee searched unsuccessfully yesterday for Oscar Tywerowsky, Secretary of the Russian Socialist Federation, and several other officials. Dr. Michael Mislig, until a few days ago Treasurer of the federation, told the committee on Thursday that he had drawn out of bank all the federation's funds, turned the cash over to Tywerowsky and relinquished his office.

The committee held only a brief executive meeting at the City Hall yesterday and then adjourned until next Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Government will contest the habeas corpus proceedings instituted to prevent the deportation of Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman, Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner General of Immigration, said today. Mr. Caminetti at the same time made public a telegram he had sent to Harry Weinberger, counsel for the anarchists.

"In answer to your question," said the telegram, "the bureau stated that if you had a client ordered deported to Russia who had a family, suggestion of permitting family to accompany him would be considered if presented, but bureau did not decide the question in advance and does not say it will permit family to accompany deported alien. I have given this message to the press, since you seem to have given out for publication an erroneous statement."

POMERENE DEMANDS BOLSHEVISM CHECK

Senator Also Calls for Americanization of Every Foreigner Desiring to Remain.

CENSURES LABOR LEADERS

Speaker Tells Life Insurance Presidents Men Who Called Strikes Disregarded Public Welfare.

"In the present industrial crisis two facts stand out as guiding principles, namely, that Europe shall not transplant Bolshevism here and that America will Americanize every foreigner who comes to the United States or he cannot remain in our midst," Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio yesterday told the members of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents on the second day of their convention in the Hotel Astor. Senator Pomerene, who spoke on "Strikes and the Government," declared that under our form of government the right of revolution does not exist.

"The seat of the Government of the United States is and always will be at Washington under the dome of the Capitol," he said. "It never will be transferred to a place under the hat of any would-be-autocrat, whether he be a leader of capital or labor or of any other class.

"Years ago the American spirit was startled because a Vanderbilt had said 'The public be damned!' But Vanderbilt seems to have had no patent upon the phrase, or if he had, it is being infringed today by men who have as little regard for the public welfare as he himself had. There is no difference in kind between him and a Foster, who, aided by the extreme Socialists and I. W. W. classes of the country, aims to enlist under his leadership the iron and steel workers of a nation and to paralyze industry; or a Lewis, who, to further his own ambitions, aided as he has been by the same elements, calls four hundred thousand men out of the mines and says to the public, 'Freeze and starve!'

"I do not wish to be misunderstood. I recognize that labor has not always received its portion of the product of its hand.

"I would resolve all doubts in its favor. I would deal with it not only justly but liberally at all times. If the American people have one characteristic that shines out brilliantly over and above all others, it is its innate sense of justice and liberality."

Discussing the recent industrial controversies, Senator Pomerene declared that no strike within a generation was more unwarranted than the coal strike. He said in justice to the miners themselves he wanted to acquit them of being responsible for the demands which, he asserted, were formulated by radical and ambitious officers.

"Must men, women, and children freeze and starve while the leaders of the miners take advantage of the approaching Winter season to strike and force increased and unreasonable demands?" he asked. "It is sufficient to say that 110,000,000 free Americans are not living in Russia, and they will not be terrorized by the methods of a Trotzky, a Lenin, or a Lewis."

Senator Pomerene censured the Boston police for going out on strike a few months ago and congratulated Governor Coolidge on his stand. The steel strike, he believed, ought to have been settled without being allowed to continue. The course chosen by Judge Gary of the United States Steel Corporation in refusing to reply to the letter sent to him by Samuel Gompers was unwise, Senator Pomerene believed. The employers as well as the employes were open to a great deal of censure for not doing more to avert industrial disagreements, he contended. He believed in the principle of collective bargaining but would add as a corollary that collective bargaining did not mean collective dictation either by capital or by labor, he said in conclusion.

Ecker Would Build Houses.

The housing famine which he said had spread to every town and city in the country was discussed by Frederick H. Ecker, Vice President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. He said that the funds of life insurance companies would be found responsive in helping to relieve the situation wherever requisite security was offered. The speaker read statistics showing that of six and a half billions of dollars of invested assets, the insurance companies had outstanding one billion and fifty millions in real estate mortgages on city and suburban property. He urged greater building activity, pointing out that a mere cessation of building operations was as certain to render more people homeless as was war's destruction of homes already built.

Edward Duffield, Vice President of the Prudential Insurance Company, read a paper on "Life Insurance as an underwriter of Americanism," in which he dwelt on the opportunities offered the forty or fifty thousand representatives of the insurance companies everywhere in the country to spread the gospel of Americanism and to counteract radicalism. Papers were also read by Houston Thompson, Federal Trade Commissioner, whose object was, "Protecting the Public by informing the Investor," and Joseph G. Brown, President of the national convention of Life Insurance Commissioners on "Departmental Attitude toward Readjustment."

At the close of the session tributes to the memory of John R. Hegeman, George B. Ide, and John B. Lunger were given by John M. Holcome, Alton B. Parker, and Charles Evans Hughes, respectively.

THE RELEASE OF JENKINS.

In ordering the release of Consular Agent JENKINS from custody the Mexican Government cannot be accused of panic haste in responding to the demand of the State Department, for several days have passed since that demand was made. President CARRANZA has been wise with deliberation, it would appear. It had always been the contention of the Mexican Government that there was no casus belli in the Jenkins case, which officially was treated as a police court matter. Apparently there was never an intention to make it a pretext for defying the United States and risking a rupture, and it may be that the Mexican authorities could not at first understand the peremptory note of the State Department. A legal argument was expected in reply to the Medina brief and an indictment of bad faith in the nature of an ultimatum was received.

The Mexican Government failed to see that the Jenkins incident was cumulative, the last straw of a long series of outrages upon American citizens in Mexico; and it was intolerable because the State Department had investigated and had been convinced that the Consular Agent was a victim of judicial collusion, and not a conspirator against the Mexican Government, as it charged. Mexico had the choice between releasing him and a rupture with the United States that might precipitate war. Sober second thought has happily relieved a tense situation.

The action of the Mexican Government may be regarded as a confession of wrongdoing, or as a recognition of the truth of the defense of Consular Agent JENKINS as presented by the State Department. President CARRANZA and his advisers should have the benefit of the doubt. They certainly would not desire to go to war with the United States on a trumped-up police court case. In official circles, probably not in the highest, there was a plot to discredit JENKINS because the bandit CORDOVA had gloried in his attempt to put the Government "in a hole," to compromise it, to bring its relations with the United States perilously near the verge of ruin. But it is conceivable that President CARRANZA and his most trusted advisers were kept in the dark. Whether they were victimized or not, there was only one thing to do—remove the cause of disturbance with the United States by releasing the Consular Agent, who had not received the protection to which he was entitled.

It may now be expected that the Mexican Government will make amends to him for the dual outrage upon his person—his seizure, detention, and robbery by bandits on the one hand, and on the other a perversion of justice for which the Puebla prosecutor was responsible. The release of JENKINS should clear the air in the Senate Chamber at Washington. Mr. FALL's resolution requesting the President to recall his recognition of the Carranza Government ought to be dropped, and the voice of Senator SHIELDS demanding war with Mexico should be stilled.

FAILURES OF THE FAT.

The Romans are always with us, because they anticipated almost every one of our problems; and since not very many people take the trouble to find out what their experience with these problems may have been, Rome is dragged in to furnish evidence in support of almost any theory as to the reasons for the unsatisfactory state of our own civilization. Now comes Dr. WATSON S. RANKIN, President of the American Public Health Association, who tells us that

> Rome taught the world law and government until prosperity brought indolence, and indolence social inertia and obesity with loss of endurance of physical and moral stresses; and with these came licentiousness, and with licentiousness disease, and along with disease unhappiness, envy, suspicion, intrigue, conspiracies, and civic disorganization.

Hence good government is impossible without good health, and good Americans must be healthy Americans—an excellent conclusion, and one which could have been reached without misquoting the record of Roman history. In the pristine days of Rome, when there was no prosperity and no indolence, the Romans were a somewhat unlovely race. They were a conquering race; the skinny Roman, with his belt buckle knocking against his backbone, went out to dispossess those who had enough food to make them fat, and he did dispossess them. But he did not teach them law and government; not just then. The colonial administration of the Roman Republic was at most times and in most provinces a crying scandal.

Eventually Rome did teach the world law and government, but in what our modern reformers would call the centuries of her degeneracy. Eventually the countries comprised within the Roman Empire got a better government than any of them had had before, and better than some of them have ever had since; and they got this honest and beneficent administration from men who were prosperous; who were indolent when occasion offered, but not during business hours; even, let it be said with due caution, from men who were fat. The hungry proconsul of the second century B. C., who bathed in cold water if at all, regarded a public office as opportunity to leave a fortune to his family; the imperial legate of the second century A. D., who spent several hours a day in the hot bath and was apt to be somewhat portly unless there was a campaign on hand, established a tradition of orderly government which is living yet. Gauntness is not yet next to godliness.

BUSINESS AND THE TREATY.

The joint report and resolution of the Executive and Finance Committees of the Chamber of Commerce in favor of the immediate ratification of the Treaty of Peace, a resolution and report adopted almost unanimously, are a sharp reminder, one of many reminders from similar sources, to the Senate of the sentiment of the business community in regard to the Treaty and the covenant which have been treated as matters of politics. Of the peril abroad, of the new insolence of Germany, made defiant by what it supposes to be the American defection from the cause of the Allies, it is not necessary to speak. The demoralization and the danger there, portentous as they look, may be too far away to arouse the interest of politicians who are, or pretend to be, seeking to restore the United States to an impossible isolation from the affairs of Europe. But when the representatives of the trade and commerce of New York dwell, as other commercial bodies have dwelt, on the moral and the commercial loss which the rejection of the Treaty has caused, it would seem that prudent and reasonable Senators of the majority party would see both the moral duty and the political necessity of reviving the Treaty, arranging an honest compromise, and passing it.

The Chamber of Commerce's recital of the facts is temperate, complete, unanswerable:

> The Senate of the United States, faced with the specific provisions of a compact which demanded some departure from the well-settled practices of the Government, hesitated, debated, and delayed. And finally, to the grave concern, and even alarm, of the country at large, not only was the Treaty rejected, but no compromise Treaty was left for discussion. This has created what we have called a crisis in morals and trade. As a consequence of this unhappy condition we are losing moral leadership; the legitimate commerce which victory assured us is slipping away. The prosperity of America's export trade is largely dependent upon the extension of credits to our customers abroad. But, pending the ratification of the Treaty, thus establishing a known basis for the continuance of international trade, no adequate credit plans can possibly be established. The alarm of the whole world of business over this protracted delay is evidenced by the continued and wholly unprecedented fall in rates of exchange—a fall almost as detrimental to us as exporters as it is for the unfortunate people of Europe who are unable to buy from us the food and materials which they so sorely need.

That is the case, the case of the United States and of Europe, a case in which American honor and American business are both intimately interested. We must have "an honorable peace," as the Chamber says. To let the Treaty fall and make a separate peace with Germany "would "not only imperil American business "interests, but would be a base abandonment of our allies and of our "own principles. The only alternative is by mutual concession by both "the President and the Senate." The Chamber puts no partisan face upon the matter. If we have referred specially to the Republican Senators, it is because in the Foreign Relations Committee, which they control, they have defaced, mutilated, and defeated the Treaty. Yet among them there must be enough reasonable and patriotic men to agree upon and, with Democratic aid, pass the Treaty with the covenant of the League preserved in its essentials, with such declaratory reservations as do not destroy, but merely interpret, and do not have to be submitted to the other Powers.

There should be, and no doubt there will be, a spirit of concession on both sides. This is no time or subject for private opinion. The whole non-German world longs for the ratification of the Treaty. If the Senate is deaf to the general sentiment in favor of the League of Nations, it can hardly afford to be deaf to the voice of American business.

IS THE WAR AT AN END?

General LUDENDORFF, when asked for his opinion about the Senate's refusal to ratify the Treaty, observes: "I see, not without a certain sym-"pathy, that with your people over "there it is still primarily statesman-"like, sober calculations and realistic "political considerations that have the "decisive word. Sound and healthy "national egotism directed by a con-"scientious hand is the strongest "guarantee that exists." No wonder the General sees it not without a certain sympathy, and he must look with still more sympathy on the resolutions declaring the war between the United States and Germany at an end. Those resolutions are not taken very seriously in Washington, but can anybody familiar with German political thought doubt that they are taken seriously in Berlin?

The Germans refuse to sign the Treaty protocol. They deny responsibility for the sinking of the fleet. The orders from the Chief of the German Admiralty to the Admiral commanding the fleet at Scapa Flow make it clear that the Government of the German Republic can evade responsibility only by admitting that it is unable to control its naval officers. The Germans are trying to browbeat the Supreme Council into giving up its demand for the surrender of officers guilty of atrocities during the war; they seem to be ready to risk a renewal of hostilities to protect these criminals. It is far from certain that the war is at an end.

Why are the Germans so willing to run the risk of a new advance into their territory? They may be relying on the million men whom Marshal FOCH says they have under arms; an army whose existence is inconveniently admitted in Germany itself by Die Freiheit, the Independent Socialist paper. Here is a large army, a trained army, but it lacks war material, of which so much was delivered up under the armistice. Why, then, do the Germans even play with the idea of provoking another advance? Obviously, because they think that they will have to deal with France alone, or perhaps with France supported at a distance by England. They think America has drawn out of it and will have nothing to say if the French go east from the Rhine and meet with resistance.

Mr. POLK has done his best to assure them that America is not out of it, but Germans who, like LUDENDORFF, have regarded with a certain sympathy the recent display of "sound and healthy national egotism" at Washington will perhaps not be convinced by the declarations of a representative of the Executive. The Peace Treaty and the French alliance are yet to receive final consideration by the Senate; the ultimate enforcement of the terms of peace imposed upon Germany will depend upon the action which the Senate takes. Meanwhile we have an immediate problem, which is to convince the obdurate German mind that the alliance has not broken up, and that France does not stand alone in demanding observance of Germany's promise. One single sentence from Senator LODGE would go far toward enlightening those Germans who have overestimated the influence of their friends here in the fight on the Treaty.

POST OFFICE PROFITS.

In six out of seven years of the present administration of the Post Office there has been a profit, according to Postmaster General BURLESON's report. Last year's surplus of collections over expenditures was $2,342,851, and the total of the profits for six years was $35,000,000, compared with a loss of $59,000,000 for the preceding similar period. It is necessary to accept the statement on the authority which makes it, but it would be interesting to have the details of costs as well as the total of profits. For example, we are told that the air mail earned $194,831 at a profit of $28,428, with a record of 96.54 per cent. of efficiency, although 30 per cent. of the trips were made in bad conditions of weather. It may be doubted that there has been a larger practical experience in commercial air work, and the Post Office is entitled to credit for its enterprise. Those who know what airplanes cost to produce and to operate will be glad to know where the Post Office got its planes, at what cost, and what the cost of operation has been. One "crash" might easily wipe out all the profit of the year, if the department includes its plant in its costs or allows anything for overhead for this particular service.

The Postmaster General renews his plea for a postal rate for second class matter proportioned to distance, because it is "fair." As applied to New York it is not fair in comparison with other districts whose zone radius is all inhabited. New York's zone radius lies in about equal portions over land and ocean. The profits of the Post Office on the zone principle cannot be exactly known until the costs of the railway service are known, and they are in dispute. If the Post Office makes a profit by underpaying the railways, and charging to the taxpayers the deficiency in payment to them, the profits will be dearly got. The Postmaster General wants $1,500,000 to build a tunnel between the Grand Central and Pennsylvania Stations, although he is unwilling to use the tunnels or tubes already existing for a greater mileage. The proposal comes just when there is agitation for a passenger tunnel over the route proposed, and it might easily be that it could accommodate the postal parcels even better than an enlarged tunnel. The old tubes were sufficient for letters, but not useful when the Post Office went into the express business. Mr. BURLESON asks for a detail of army engineers to make surveys, but their cost would not be charged against either the department or its profits.

In short, in proportion that the Post Office emphasizes profit rather than service it is desirable that its accounts should be independently vouched for as kept on a commercial basis, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission requires of the railways, for instance. When the Post Office claims an economy of $15,000,000 in the carriage of second class mail it is clear that the savings have gone to fatten the accounts of unprofitable ventures, or the profit of a fraction of the economy could not be shown. The Interstate Commerce Commission requires the railways to earn a profit on all of their activities, disapproving the support of some services by the profits of others. If the Post Office is a commercial business, competing with other enterprises in the carrying trade, why should it not also be regulated in the public interest? That would relieve the Postmaster General of the burden of some of his unpopular acts, and would not reduce his credit for achievement.

WHAT GERMANY WANTED.

Some days ago THE TIMES commented on the memorandum of German peace terms presented by Count VON BERNSTORFF to Colonel HOUSE "for the personal information of the President" on Jan. 30, 1917, one day before the declaration of intensified submarine war. The German Government at that time asserted that these were the terms which it had in mind when making the peace proposal of Dec. 12 previous. In that proposal no terms were mentioned; the belligerents were to get together and engage in a trial of wits around a table. Naturally the Allies refused. The German terms as given to Colonel HOUSE fully justified this refusal, although themselves so vaguely phrased as to admit some latitude of interpretation.

Now, however, it appears that the Germans themselves would have read into these hazy phrases far more than the most suspicious allied statesman might have feared. German newspapers arriving with further details of the Parliamentary inquiry at which these facts were disclosed give us the real terms. The memorandum of Jan. 30 was not made public, Count VON BERNSTORFF explained, "for fear of giving an impression of weakness." The real reason, it seems now, was that it was a deliberately falsified document intended to deceive President WILSON.

For when BETHMANN HOLLWEG came up for cross-examination Deputy SINZHEIMER, a member of the committee, read apparently from Government archives a schedule of peace terms which BETHMANN admitted was the one which Germany would actually have demanded had the Allies agreed to a parley in December, 1916. What appeared in the Bernstorff memorandum as "strategic and economic rectifications" on the French frontier meant really the acquisition of the Longwy and Briey districts—together with the outright absorption of Luxemburg—and France was to pay indemnities besides. "The restoration "of Belgium, with definite guarantees "for the security of Germany," as presented in the Bernstorff memorandum, meant probable annexation up through Liége, with still further "guarantees" of a nature not described. On the east front "the ob-"taining of a border that would give "strategic and economic protection" to Germany and the puppet Kingdom of Poland set up by the Central Powers really meant the annexation of Courland and much of Lithuania, together with the compulsion of a Russo-German commercial treaty, in which all the advantage was to be on one side. The Germans were willing to give up the colonies occupied by Japan, no doubt hoping in this way to effect an alliance; but by way of counterpoise they wanted to annex the Congo State.

HINDENBURG besides would have demanded an indemnity from England as compensation for the evacuation of Belgium; but BETHMANN HOLLWEG held out against this, and apologized for the terms as a compromise between civilian and military ideas. The Austrians also presented their terms, which included "strategic rectifications of frontier" on the Russian, Rumanian, and Italian borders, an Austrian protectorate over Albania, and economic union of a much reduced Serbia with the Dual Monarchy. Very naturally, the Germans regarded these demands as a little too much, since the Russians held much Austrian territory and the Italians a little, and Austria had been saved from disaster only by German arms.

It was characteristic of the German Government, of course, to present false terms in the hope of influencing the United States Government; equally so to fear that these false terms, providing as even they did for a substantial German victory, would seem weak to the German people; but most of all to suppose that the program presented to Colonel HOUSE must impress non-Germans by its magnanimity. It was a piece of statecraft worthy of the men who conducted the affairs of the German Government during the war.

THE STIMULANT OF DRESS.

When Dr. COPELAND, in the round of his duties as Health Commissioner, assured us that women can not only survive on high heels, tight corsets, and openwork stockings, but positively thrive on them, mere man threw up his hands, confessing that his comparatively puny powers of resistance would succumb to such treatment. It remained for a woman to meet the assertion in the serious mood of science.

Dr. FLORENCE L. MEREDITH, while admitting that the vagaries of feminine attire seldom prove fatal, asserts that they very seriously diminish vitality and impair efficiency. "The self-crippled girl is only 75 per cent. alive." As Dr. MEREDITH has been health expert for four years at Wellesley College, and also has examined many thousands of factory workers, she speaks, no less than Dr. COPELAND, out of the fullness of professional knowledge. Nor are the two statements, when properly sifted, contradictory. Length of life and what one gets out of it are quite different matters.

An interesting but generally neglected point in Dr. COPELAND's statement is that fashionable clothes, however hampering physically, enable women to get much more out of life—more, that is, of the sort of thing they are after. It is a matter of "mental attitude." Most women when unfashionably, however sensibly, dressed suffer something akin to mental anguish. It is as if they were, as they conceivably may be, pitied by their own sex and ignored by the other. All the world is against them. The opposite sensation of commanding feminine admiration and masculine notice is a stimulant so strong as to be little short of intoxication. What matter a tottering gait, an organ squeezed dry, and a boreal blast upon the ankles, so long as the spirit soars? It is a sensation to be reckoned with, even in the humdrum efficiency test.

As for man, proud man, he has only to consider the Eighteenth Amendment to attain humility, and with it its priceless boon of understanding. When he feels the need of a stimulant transcending the forces of his own mind and body he feels it in vain. To put a ban upon high heels, low gowns, and perforated stockings might confer upon women certain crude physical gains; but this life, once possibly mellow and expansive, would in most ways be only the poorer. It would be prohibition for women, nothing less. So let the high heel endure! Men and women alike will guard it as the last citadel of personal liberty. It is even more, for as long as this feminine intoxication of dress endures we shall have a monument to the immemorial difference, eternally soul-satisfying if also eternally intriguing, between the two partners in creation.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Where Did He Learn His Heresy?

Entirely legitimate was the special interest taken by the Congressional investigator who found on Ellis Island, waiting deportation as an active and avowed anarchist, one THOMAS BUBOKANOK, who came here from the Ukraine in 1912 and is now 17 years of age. He was a boy of 10, therefore, when he arrived. He was at once sent to public school. How long he remained there is not stated, but it was long enough, before he went to work in a machine shop, to become an eager reader of books and a persistent haunter of the branch public library near his home.

That he turned, or was turned, into an enemy of all government instead of into a good citizen, appreciating the opportunities and advantages so freely offered by the United States and accepted by him, is a fact well calculated to excite uneasy questionings in regard to our public schools and our public libraries.

Both are imperfect institutions, doubtless, but it is far from necessary to condemn either as useless, or worse, merely because they failed to incline this grafted twig in the way it should have grown, and it would be hasty to conclude that this particular twig was turned by them to the left instead of the right. BUBOKANOK was subjected to other influences than those of his school and his library. Among the others he mentioned were the campaign speeches of MORRIS HILLQUIT and the exhortations of EMMA GOLDMAN. Evidently he learned in school only how to read. Other teachers told him what to read and inspired his ambitions. Upon them rests the responsibility for perverting his taste and for sending him to the public library in search of confirmation and amplifications of their evil doctrines.

That was a pity, for he seems to have been—and to be, for that matter—a boy with enough intelligence to have carried him far in better directions than Bolshevist Russia, and though he has more self-confidence than is good for him, that is the exaggeration of a virtue, not a vice, and at his age it is deserving of praise rather than condemnation.

Censorship Is Not the Remedy.

That young BUBOKANOK learned, or says he learned, anarchy in the public library is certain to excite comment, some of which is sure to take the form of demanding the exercise of a stricter censorship over both the library books and the library readers. It even may be asserted that the works of anarchist authors should be excluded altogether from the shelves or that none be allowed to read them whom they are capable of hurting.

Such demands should be met with firm refusals, and those who make the assertions should be asked by what tests, by whom applied, immunity from injury can be discovered.

Government is only one of innumerable subjects on which opinions differ widely, and the library that contains no books to which for one or another reason objection is made by somebody will be a very small and quite worthless collection. Some degree of censorship there should be, as regards both books and readers, but unless kept within narrow bounds it becomes vicious or absurd, and produces evils greater than it prevents.

The same volumes that had something to do—probably it was not much—with making this boy an anarchist might have saved him from that sorry fate had he not been depraved before he read them. He found what he sought, as anybody can in any large library, and that must always be possible if libraries are to be anything more than engines of propaganda for particular sects and parties and schools of thought. That they can be used involves the possibility of their misuse, and there is no help for it.

Do Crowds Warm Themselves?

Reports as to the efficacy of "natural heat" as a substitute for the kind called "artificial," in keeping at a tolerable temperature the morning and evening crowds in our public conveyances, cannot be expected to be definite and conclusive after a single day of trial. Nobody was frozen to death, we know, and the travelers took their new experience with the patience that characterizes a population long since wont to treat as inevitable the many discomforts of urban journeyings. One more discomfort increased the total inappreciably and the aggregate growling remained about the same as it always is—more humorous than resentful.

The "natural heat" theory somewhat inadequately explains the selection of the morning and evening "rush hours" as those in which to effect the highly desirable saving of coal. The transportation companies do not hate their passengers, even though the latter are getting, nowadays, more than they pay for. On the contrary, they are regarded with the degree and sort of affection always felt for a source of income, and it is not at all remarkable, in existing conditions, that opportunities to cut expenditures are seized with eagerness by corporations whose accounts have the settled habit of balancing on the wrong side of the ledger.

No Separate Party for Them.

In addressing the Woman's Municipal League, this week, Dr. KATHARINE BEMENT DAVIS wisely advised her hearers to reject the advice of the counselors who would have them form a party of their own and vote as a sex instead of citizens among citizens. But that course she commended, apparently, only as concerns national affairs; in city politics she seemed to think that they should stand apart from the old parties.

The difference is not easy to understand and the suggested segregation will be difficult or impossible to maintain. No more in municipal than in national questions do or should all women think alike. In truth, a woman's party is impracticable anywhere or at any time, and the women who urge or implore their sisters to stand alone in politics expose themselves to the suspicion that they want to keep the prominence and power which a separate party could bestow upon its leaders.

By getting the franchise they lost that chance. Now they must win or lose in a wider and sterner competition.

But This Was Long Ago.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read your comments relating to the dispatch from Chicago announcing an all-round reduction of rates by one of the hotels there. By way of a further novelty, I submit a newspaper comment on hotel rates of the vintage of 1837—a first copy of the Baltimore Sun of eighty-two years ago:

"The Public Hotels in New York, with the exception of the Astor House and the Clinton and American Hotels, have reduced their prices from two dollars and two and a half dollars, to one dollar and fifty cents the day—and most of them are empty at that. We are glad of it. For the last two years the New York hotels have rioted on the necessities of travelers."—Baltimore Sun, May 17, 1837.

The man who wrote that is fortunate to be dead. Prevailing rates would surely finish him if he were not. E. L. M.

Christmas Dolls Wanted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several hundred dolls for Christmas time are sorely needed by the little girls who are inmates of a State training school up-State. The State does not supply dolls, and most of the children are wholly without that highly important part of child life.

The Prison Association of New York, 135 East Fifteenth Street, asks for gifts of these dolls. About six years ago we made a similar appeal, resulting in a doll for each inmate of the institution. Those inmates have gone out. The dolls lasted for years, but there are no more now.

In order to get the dolls to the State Training School by Christmas time, speed is necessary. Please send dolls to 135 East Fifteenth Street, or telephone Stuyvesant 1470 about them. This is a chance to bring great joy to little children, away from their homes in the training of the State.

O. F. LEWIS,
General Secretary, Prison Association of New York.

A Correction.

By a typographical error in a small number of papers of the issue of Nov. 25 of THE NEW YORK TIMES it was made to appear that the Mayor of Columbus, Ohio, had been removed by the Governor. It was the Mayor of Canton, Ohio, who was removed for failure to maintain order during the steel strike. The error was promptly corrected.

AT THE WATER TANK.

Crossed by a shining track,
There's never a sound in the biting air
That blows by my lonely shack,
Except when the trains come thundering through
From coast to coast, and are lost to view
In a long, faint trail of black.

Each night the mighty mail roars in
On its way toward the sea,
The earth shakes with its merry din
And the sparks mount, gay and free;
Love and Life and Luck sweep past—
Peer from the windows, and, fading fast,
They leave the dark to me.

O giant friend, I wake to hear
Your nightly passage by,
Your red eyes flash, and in my ear
Your voice clangs loud and high:
"Man, the days of youth are few—
How many times must we call to you,
Life and Love and I?"

PLAN BIG CHURCH DRIVE.

Methodists to Seek 1,000,000 Converts Between January and June.

A campaign for 1,000,000 converts will be waged by Methodist Episcopal churches throughout the world between January and June, it was announced at the opening session yesterday of the annual meeting of the Board of Foreign Missions at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Dr. Edgar Blake, Executive Secretary of the Centenary Conservation Committee, reported that Methodism lost 60,000 members in 1918. He declared it was largely due to the fact that the Church entered, so whole-heartedly into the prosecution of the war that it had no time to give to keeping up its membership.

More than $2,000,000 additional has come into the church coffers since the close of the centenary campaign, Dr. Blake reported. The centenary campaign raised $113,000,000 for a five-year program of church expansion. The Foreign Board, at its present meeting, will appropriate $10,500,000 for centenary projects and war construction work abroad during 1920. The drop in foreign exchange in Europe, Asia and South America cost the Foreign Board approximately $215,000 during 1919, said Dr. George Fownes, Treasurer. Miss Elizabeth Lender reported that the same condition had cost the Women's Foreign Missionary Society approximately $250,000. She said the women's organization pledged $1,837,873 for foreign missionary work.

Bishop Luther B. Wilson, Resident Bishop of New York and Chairman of the Foreign Board, is presiding. A dozen Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, including Bishop Camphor, the negro Bishop of Liberia, Africa, as well as many prominent laymen from all parts of the country, are in attendance.

START BLUE BIRD CAMPAIGN.

Four Charities to Receive Fund—Ball and Opera Planned.

The Blue Bird Campaign for Happiness was launched at a tea at the home of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., yesterday afternoon. Four charities are to be benefited by this campaign. They are the Queen of Belgium's Fund, Fund for French Children, Milk for Children of America, and the Big Sisters. On Dec. 26 a Blue Bird ball will be given at the Waldorf-Astoria, with Maurice Maeterlinck as the chief guest.

On Saturday night, Dec. 27, at the Metropolitan Opera House, with Maeterlinck present and Albert Wolff, the composer of the opera, conducting, will be given the world's first performance of the Maeterlinck opera, "Blue Bird."

Those who have purchased boxes for the performance, as announced yesterday, include Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, Mrs. E. H. Gary (2), Mrs. George Blumenthal, Mrs. Otto Kahn, Mrs. Charles V. Alexander, Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr.

BILL TO LOWER MAIL RATES.

Measure Reduces Charges Without Changing Zone System.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Reduction of second-class mail rates on publications without changing the zone system of computing charges on advertising contents was proposed today in a bill introduced by Representative Fess, Republican, Ohio, who said it was submitted to him by the American Newspaper Publishers Association, of which Victor Rosewater of Omaha, Neb., is President.

An investigation by Congress of the cost of handling second-class mail and the system of assessing charges also was proposed. Reading sections of publications would be charged 1¼ cents a pound under the bill and the advertisement charges would be graduated, according to the parcel post zones, beginning with 1¼ cents for the first zone and increasing one-quarter of a cent for each zone traversed.

CANAL DELIGHTS BAKER.

Thanks Employes, at Reception, for Their Part in War.

PANAMA, Dec. 4.—Delight with the complete equipment and smooth operation of the Panama Canal was expressed by Secretary Baker in an address given at the public reception held here tonight in his honor. The Secretary said he brought the thanks of the Administration and the American people for the service rendered by employes in the Canal Zone and for the part they played in the war.

"It is impossible," he said, "to express the wonder and admiration which one experiences on seeing the Panama Canal for the first time."

The audience was assured by Mr. Baker that, as a result of the war, the freedom enjoyed by Americans would be made possible for all the people of the earth.

PROBLEM IN AUTO TUNNELS.

Release of Poisonous and Inflammable Gases is Sought.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Ventilation of tunnels and subways for motor vehicles now planned by a number of cities presents "an unprecedented problem," Van H. Manning, Director of the Bureau of Mines, told Congress today in asking for an appropriation of $100,000 to conduct investigations.

Mr. Manning said the details of plans for an 8,000 foot tunnel under the Hudson River, between New York and New Jersey, depended on the solution of the problem of removing poisonous and inflammable gases from motor vehicles, which are expected to pass through the tunnel at the rate of 2,000 an hour.

Motor vehicle tunnels are planned for Chicago, Pittsburgh, Boston, San Francisco, and New Orleans, Mr. Manning said.

Senate Committee Reports Bill Benefiting Nearly All Branches.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—A blanket bill providing for increases in the pay of officers and noncommissioned, warrant or petty officers of the army, navy and Marine Corps was ordered today favorably reported by the Senate Military Committee.

A 10 per cent. advance for officers and a 20 per cent. increase for the enlisted ratings is proposed, increases to extend to officers of the Coast Guard and Public Health Service and to the Army and Navy Nurse Corps. Estimates show it would add $59,000,00 a year to the army and navy payrolls.

The pay of privates in the army and apprentice seamen of the navy would remain as it was fixed during the war.

PARIS, Dec. 4, (Associated Press.)—Empress Eugénie is once more visiting Paris, traveling as usual, under the name of Countess de Pierrefonds. After consulting a specialist as to her eyes, she will go to her villa at Cap Martin for the Winter. The former Empress's sight is slightly affected.

The windows of her apartments look out on the Tuileries Gardens, the site of the palace where she played such a brilliant rôle and from which she escaped nearly fifty years ago when the Empire fell.

SEES NATION FACING 9 BILLION BUDGET

WILL CUT THE ESTIMATES

Army and Navy to be Reduced—Plan to Drop 40,000 Emergency Workers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—This nation must contribute $9,000,000,000 in taxes and bonds in the next eighteen months, according to the Republican leaders of the House, unless the most rigid economies are enforced and department activities and personnel reduced to the minimum consistent with efficient government.

This statement was made tonight by one of the House leaders following an all-day conference on taxes, revenue legislation and policy. The conference was participated in by Speaker Gillett, Chairman Good of the Appropriation Committee, Republican Leader Mondell, and members of the Steering Committee, and Chairmen of committees which recommend big appropriations, such as the Army and Navy Committees.

Representative Good informed his colleagues that it was imperative for this Congress to save wherever possible, as even the high taxation proposed and another large bond issue would not meet the proposed expenditures and take care of the deficiency already accumulated in this fiscal year.

It was estimated by Mr. Good that $9,000,000,000 would be required to run the Government upon the basis of estimates recently submitted by Secretary of the Treasury Glass. According to Mr. Good, the deficiency bills for the fiscal year already amount to $3,150,000,000. The estimates for the fiscal year ending June, 1921, reach about $5,500,000,000. The latter amount includes all the obligations of the Government and the estimates submitted by the heads of departments for the fiscal year. This includes $900,000,000 for the army and $542,000,000 for the navy.

Decide to Reduce Estimates.

As a result of the conference it was decided to reduce the estimates considerably, eliminate many of the war activities, and increase salaries only where absolutely necessary. It became known that the size of the army and the navy will not be made as large as expected, even by the conservative members of the Army and Navy Committees, and it is the hope of the leaders to keep the appropriations for these branches of the service to half the estimates. That means that money for carrying out many recommendations made by the experts will not be granted by Congress, and that the size of the army may not exceed 250,000 officers and men.

In connection with the budget conference, the leaders discussed revenue legislation in a general way. No specific agreement was reached. In general however, there will be no amendment to the present law, which reduces drastically the income to the Government, compared with the past year. Many members of the Ways and Means Committee do not look with favor upon Secretary Glass's recommendation that the exc[illegible] tax [illegible] normal income tax on individuals be increased. While they recognize the force of the argument, they are averse to lessening the taxes imposed upon corporations while increasing the burdens on the masses.

Representative J. W. Fordney, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said that the committee had not considered Secretary Glass's recommendations and would not do so until the committees making the appropriations had decided the amount of money that would be expended in this and the next fiscal year.

Predict No Tax Reductions.

The opinion of revenue legislators is that there will be no reductions in taxes and that no material changes will be made in the present revenue laws, except a simplification which will make it easier to prepare tax returns. Commissioner of Internal Revenue Roper and Secretary Glass have made many recommendations looking to a simplification of the tax laws.

Members of the Senate Finance Committee, accepting the position of Senator Penrose, gave it as their opinion that the only tariff legislation that will be enacted this session would be an anti-dumping law and a bill increasing the duties on dyestuffs.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—As a first step toward economy, Chairman Good of the House Appropriations Committee announced today that efforts would be made to reduce the number of Government clerks in Washington.

Work on the Clerk Hire bill was begun today, with some members favoring a legislative rider which would place all clerks on the statutory roll and end the system of paying them from lump sum appropriations granted as war emergencies. A drive also will be made to eliminate between 30,000 and 40,000 of approximately 100,000 employes.

PROTEST ELEVATED SPUR.

Loughman to Ask Removal of Forty-second Street Structure.

Borough President Michael F. Loughman obtained permission from the Board of Estimate yesterday to open negotiations with the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for the removal of the elevated spur through Forty-second Street from the Third Avenue elevated railroad to the Grand Central Station. The removal of the spur has been advocated for a long time by the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association, which declares that the presence of the spur is the only thing preventing Forty-second Street from being the world's greatest crosstown street.

If the Interborough should refuse to remove the structure the Public Service Commission will be asked to hold public hearings to the end that the city may be able to remove it in accordance with legislation passed last May. It is stated that the spur is unnecessary and that it serves only to obstruct traffic and to hinder business. It is also claimed that passengers wishing to reach the Grand Central Station from Third Avenue can walk the distance in less time than it would take them if they used the spur.

TO BLAST IN CENTRAL PARK.

Commissioner Seeks to Shatter Subsoil for Trees' Benefit.

Commissioner of Parks Francis D. Gallatin has announced that this morning at 9 o'clock, in conjunction with the du Pont Powder Company, experiments in subsoil blastings will be made in the vicinity of Ninety-fifth Street and West Drive in Central Park.

This experiment is intended to shatter the subsoil which underlies the greater part of Central Park, and if it is successful will improve the drainage facilities of the roots of many of the large trees in the park. It is also intended to plant a tree in a hole which has been blasted and to compare its growth with that of a tree planted in a hole not blasted.

Commissioner Gallatin said:

"This subsoil hinders the growth of trees in two ways. First, it stops the roots of deep-rooted trees from penetrating and also makes an artificial water level, keeping the top soil flooded during the wet seasons and abnormally dry during the dry seasons."

TO MAKE AMERICA KNOWN TO BRITONS

PRINCE OF WALES PLEASED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—In response to an appeal of the Anglo-American Society Sir George Watson has given £20,000 required for the foundation and endowment of a chair in American history, literature, and institutions in order to promote such studies in all the British universities. The chair will be named after the donor, although Sir George suggested, in view of the Prince of Wales's visit to America, that it should bear the name of the Prince.

The foundation of the chair forms the principal educational proposal of the British program for the tercentenary celebration of the Mayflower and Pilgrim fathers. It is not intended that the chair shall be exclusively attached to one university, but that it shall be used for the general purpose of stimulating interest in the study of America in all British universities. Neither will the chair be held permanently by one scholar of a single nationality, but for a period of one or two years alternately by an American and a British scholar or public man, thus drawing upon the best intellectual resources of the two countries and securing a variety of treatment of the subjects dealt with.

This novel kind of foundation has been selected by a special committee of the Anglo-American Society under Chairmanship of Lord Glenconner and including Viscount Bryce, Professor Sir Sydney Lee, Professor Sir Israel Gollancz, Sir Donald Macalister, Sir William Collins, Dr. J. Estlin Carpenter, H. G. Wells, and others.

The proposal says:

"As a permanent memorial of America's loyal partnership with Great Britain in the war, as well as of the historic ties of kinship which unite our two peoples, and of which the Mayflower celebration reminds us, nothing could be more fitting than the establishment of this educational foundation."

Sir George Watson, in a letter conveying the offer to the Duke of Connaught as President of the Anglo-American Society, said:

"I share the committee's belief that as a permanent memorial of America's loyal partnership with the British Empire during the war, as well as of the historic ties which unite our two peoples, nothing could be more fitting than the establishment of such an educational foundation. It would have considerable effect in clearing away the ignorance and resulting prejudice which should be frankly recognized on both sides of the Atlantic as the real stumbling block in the way of closer union between the two nations.

"In spite of the brotherhood of arms during the war, there is still a call for much discriminating labor to banish this prejudice. Diplomatic relations between the two countries would enter upon a smoother path if the far-seeing efforts of statesmen on both sides were aided instead of hampered by the man in the street, and commercial relations, which as a consequent natural development must vastly improve, would do so with far more rapid strides if business men were to realize the fact that mutual knowledge means better trade.

"The present juncture, when the echoes of the wonderful reception to the Prince of Wales by the American people are still reverberating throughout the world, seems to me a felicitous occasion for expressing the hope that his Royal Highness will graciously accept this farewell gift in the spirit in which it is given for the intended purpose, and allow the chair to be named the Prince of Wales Chair of American History, Literature, and Institutions."

The Duke of Connaught in his reply refers to the Prince's journey thus:

"This journey marks, we believe, a momentous epoch in the relations of America and Great Britain. The remarkable and generous manifestation of sentiment which his visit evoked among all classes in America shows how recent events and common ends, pursued in fraternal union on the fields of battle, have effaced all disturbing memories and brought the English-speaking peoples into closer touch than at any time in their previous history."

The Prince of Wales has also written to Sir George Watson, saying:

"My all too short visit to the American Continent has convinced me of the common underlying sentiment which resides in all sections of the English-speaking world. Such differences as must naturally exist are more those of form and habit than of substance, and no purpose can be higher than the one to which your beneficence has been directed, of endeavoring by educational effort to remove those false impressions which erroneous interpretation of the past history of the varying forms of our democratic communities have created, and which still unfortunately prevail."

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, has issued a pastoral letter asking Catholics not to use the post, telegraph, or telephone on Sundays except in cases of absolute necessity. Sugar Dearth Shuts Candy Plants.

The sugar shortage has compelled the Charms Company to lay off 1,200 candy makers and other employes and to close three of its four factories in Newark. At its offices at 8 Lafayette Street it was said yesterday that there was no promise of relief from the shortage. The company manufactures fruit tablets and cough drops, in which only white granulated sugar can be used.

GETS MARKEWICH CASE.

Assistant District Attorney Faces Appellate Division.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday received charges against Assistant District Attorney Samuel Markewich to the effect that in a speech on the east side, following the suspension of the four storage battery lines, he had attacked Federal Judge Mayer and had otherwise conducted himself in a manner unbecoming a member of the bar.

Arraigned before Judge Mayer several weeks ago to show why he should not be punished, Markewich offered a humble apology and was let go so far as the Federal Court was concerned, but in rebuking Markewich for his conduct Judge Mayer advised that the matter be brought to the attention of the Bar Association. Einar Chrystie presented the charges on behalf of the Grievance Committee of the association. The charges were disputed by Markewich and by J. Van Vechten Olcott, his attorney.

The matter went over for two weeks to allow counsel to agree on a statement of fact, if possible, thus avoiding the time and expense of a reference.

WIFE SUES J. FLEISCHMANN.

Special to the New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Lily Ackerland Fleischmann, wife of Julius Fleischmann, ex-Mayor of Cincinnati and wealthy head of the Fleischmann yeast and distillery interests, entered suit for divorce here today. Mr. Fleischmann is now in New York, where he has made his home for the last year. Mrs. Fleischmann is also there with her son, Julius, a Yale student.

In her petition Mrs. Fleischmann alleges that her husband has abandoned her. She places the act of abandonment in August, 1918, and says he emphasized his action on April 13 last by definitely announcing to her and others that he had repudiated her as his wife and his duties as a husband. She seeks "reasonable alimony" and the custody of the minor child, Julius. The couple had three children. The elder son, Charles, was killed in an airplane accident while in training on Long Island.

HUSBAND LOSES SUIT.

Jury Believes Defendant's Denial of Improper Conduct.

After four hours deliberation a jury in the Essex County Circuit Court at Newark last night brought in a verdict for Police Recorder W. Eugene Turton of Irvington, defendant in a suit for $25,000 damages, brought by Salvatore De Frank, an automobile supply dealer of 9 Marshall Street, Newark, for alienation of his wife's affections and for assault upon his wife. The alienation was not considered by the jury, for it was stricken out by Judge Nelson Y. Dungan on the ground that as both De Frank and his wife had testified that their love was not changed by anything the defendant had done there could have been no loss of affection.

The assault was alleged to have taken place while the Recorder and Mrs. De Frank were traveling in an automobile from Plainfield to Irvington. De Frank, following in another car, said he saw Turton trying to kiss his wife. This the Recorder denied on the stand. He said that his actions had been proper, and the jury believed his story.

F. L. KEATING GETS DIVORCE

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Supreme Court Justice William P. Platt, after hearing testimony in the divorce action brought by Frederick L. C. Keating, a New York lawyer, against Mrs. Stella Hammerstein Keating, an actress, announced today that he would grant a decree as soon as the testimony was written out. The defendant is a daughter of the late Oscar Hammerstein, and was married to Keating in October, 1912.

Keating engaged a private detective to trail his wife, and he raided the apartment of Mrs. Keating, at 54 West Eighty-second Street, Manhattan, on Nov. 7 last. The detective was accompanied by Mrs. Elizabeth Mullin, Superintendent of the apartment house. They testified that Mrs. Keating had a visitor there.

MRS. SHONTS OPPOSES WILL

Mrs. Milla D. Shonts began yesterday her threatened proceedings to set aside the will of her husband, Theodore P. Shonts, leaving the bulk of his estate to his friend, Mrs. Amanda C. Thomas, when she served on the executors formal objections to the probate of the will made July 30, 1919, when Mr. Shonts was ill.

Mrs. Shonts alleges that her husband was not of sound mind at the time, and that the will was not freely made, but that Mrs. Thomas, the chief legatee, practiced fraud either alone or in conspiracy with others.

Surrogate Fowler also signed yesterday the formal order removing Mrs. Shonts as temporary administratrix on the ground that a will was in existence at the time she was appointed.

Archer is alleged to have come to this country in 1916 with a passport made in the name of his employer, and, meeting influential persons, he was introduced into society. He was sent back to England, where he was arrested for forgery, but was discharged.

NEWBERRY A VICTIM, SAYS HENRY FORD

"ONLY PRINCIPLE COUNTS"

All but Eight of Bench Warrants Issued in the Case Served—First Hearing on Monday.

Special to the New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 5.—"I have known Mr. Newberry and all his people for many years and I am very sorry for him and them. The big interests have simply victimized him."

This was Henry Ford's comment today on the indictment of United States Senator Newberry for alleged frauds at the primary and election in which he defeated the automobile manufacturer.

Mr. Ford arrived at the Battle Creek Sanatorium in company with John Burroughs, the naturalist.

"It is principle that counts," he said. "We can't stand for anything else. The foundation of our Government must not be taken out. Money is needed only to work with, and if used in an iniquitous cause it's all wrong."

Discussing the Mexican situation, Mr. Ford said:

"The Mexican situation is something that has got to be settled, and right now. Intervention is nearer than the general public realizes. There are two big interests in this country that we have to take our hats off to. They are the Standard Oil Company and the United States Steel Corporation. They could go down into Mexico and do more to open it up to civilization than could be done in a hundred years. The time has come when these lands cannot lie idle."

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 5, (Associated Press).—All but eight bench warrants had been served tonight on men indicted in connection with the alleged illegal election of Truman H. Newberry as United States Senator from Michigan. United States Deputy Marshals reported they had been unable to locate eight of the men, whose names were withheld, and it was believed the arraignment of a few of them might be delayed until the middle of next week. Most of the respondents sought were said to be out of the State on business. Others who have accepted service were reported ill and unable to appear for arraignment, but this was not expected to delay the hearing set for next Monday, when a date probably will be fixed for the trial.

When court adjourned today 89 of the 135 indicted had been arraigned. Two have filed pleas of guilty to some of the counts, while the others pleaded not guilty or stood mute. Twenty of respondents, including Senator Newberry and his principal campaign leaders, have accepted service of the warrants through their attorneys and will not come here until Monday.

A dozen appeared today in answer to summons, including George S. Ladd, former Master of the Massachusetts State Grange; Elmer O. McLean, Milwaukee; Judd Yelland, former Probate Judge of Lansing, and Charles Tufts, State Senator from Ludington.

SHOW WAR PICTURES.

There was a large attendance at the formal opening of the paintings of the allied armies of the great war by the official painter to the French armies, J. F. Bouchoir, at the Anderson Galleries last evening. Crowds of prominent New Yorkers were present, with naval and military officials. The pictures are all rather small, framed, and give a seemingly intimate view of the war. There are 200 of them, of very even merit, a wonderful number for an artist to have accomplished in so short a time. The paintings as classified in the catalogue, are, first, French pictures, including a number of portraits of French leaders; the American army; pictures of Alsace of the Somme, then scenes in Belgium and Italy, and finally, the longest list: Verdun.

By request the pictures were first exhibited at the Red Cross Headquarters in Paris, where the paintings of the American Army were so much liked by the American men that M. Bouchoir permitted them to be reproduced in post cards, of which 4,000,000 were printed. Again by request, they were brought to this country and shown at the City Club in Boston.

The exhibition will be open to the public from today, to continue through Dec. 20, admission 25 cents. The hours are 10 A. M. to 5:30 P. M., and Sundays 2:30 to 6 P. M. The proceeds, and also a percentage of all pictures sold, goes to the support of The Navy Club, 509 Fifth Avenue, for enlisted men of the Navy and Marine Corps.

RENEW JUNIOR ASSEMBLIES.

500 Attend First of Dances Since America Entered the War.

The first of the Junior Assemblies since the United States entered the war was held last night at the Ritz-Carlton, the first time these fashionable dances, which are the old Junior Cotillions under another name, have been held outside of Sherry's, now no more. It was a very large dance, as the committee included in their invitations the girls who came out two years ago, and who, therefore, had never attended a Junior Assembly.

The plan of having a long list of patronesses with a committee appointed from them has been discontinued, and instead there is a committee that issues invitations, and the mothers of those invited to the dances in accepting become patronesses. This season's committee is made up of Mrs. Richard C. Colt, Mrs. Walter Phelps Bliss, Mrs. James W. Burden, Mrs. James Byrne, Mrs. James Gore King, Mrs. Herbert Lee Pratt, and Mrs. Herbert Satterlee.

The dancing was in the large ballroom, and the seated supper was served after midnight in the dining room of the ballroom suite. Mrs. Colt, Mrs. Byrne, Mrs. James, and Mrs. Satterlee received, and as there were more than a hundred patronesses, over 500 people were present. A number of dinners preceded the ball, and the hostesses included Mrs. B. Ogden Chisolm, Mrs. Beverley Chew Duer, Mrs. Howland Davis, and Mrs. Frederick Wait Lord. The second Assembly will be on Jan. 2 and the third and last for the Winter will take place on Feb. 6.

Junior League Returns to Pre-War Relief Program at Capital.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The small and early dances were revived tonight with great success in the interest of the Junior League, which, with the war over, is returning to its usual relief work in home charities. Although subscription dances, the subscribers were all by invitation and the younger belles restricted to the members of the league.

Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt received with Miss Alys Downing, President of the league, and Miss Louise Delano, Chairman of the Dance Committee.

Among the dinner parties preceding the dance were large companies entertained by Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Downing, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, and Mrs. William Morton Grinnell. The guests of the latter were invited to meet Miss Helen McLanahan.

The Congressional Club inaugurated its entertainments for the season with a general reception and short musical program by the Marine Orchestra, detailed to this duty by the Secretary of the Navy. Mrs. Charles B. Ward, the new President of the club, headed the receiving line, with Mrs. Daniels assisting.

A dance and pageant called the Arabian Nights Ball, in which more than 3,000 young people took active parts, was held last night in the Twenty-third Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, under the auspices of the Guild of the Long Island College Hospital. The pageant was divided into eight episodes in which the adventures of the good caliph Haroun Al Raschid, Aladdin, Ali Baba and many others were depicted in tale, song, and dance to the satisfaction of the assemblage of 5,000.

Mrs. Walter Gibb and the Executive Committee of the guild supervised the pageant and Mrs. Lila Stewart acted as director. PITTSBURGH, Dec. 5.—The body of Henry C. Spencer, leading. Record, 2,290 miles, made by Lawson and Drobach in 1914.

At 10 45 o'clock last night a man arose in the centre of Madison Square Garden, inside the track upon which the bicycle riders have been treading their six-day mill. He raised his arms toward where heaven might have been looking from almost any other place except the Garden, struck the attitude of an exhorter at a Western camp meeting, and bellowed in stentorian tones, "The whole west side is in darkness."

He did not follow with the assertion that the end of the world was at hand. That would have been an anti-climax after the thrill and fervor of his first sentence. He simply yelled that the Garden would soon follow the unseemly example of the west side, and that all those unaccustomed to walk in darkness would be well advised to depart. Everybody did so. There wasn't a sinner in the bunch.

The riders after a hasty consultation decided that they couldn't do themselves justice in the dark. Not one of them felt that he would be at his best unless he could see where he was going. And so the six-day race gave a couple of wiggles, rolled up the whites of its eyes and entered a state of suspended animation.

The blowing out of manhole covers, duly reported in other columns of this issue, was responsible for the contretemps. The race was resumed at 11:07 before empty benches, it having been discovered that light would be available. No spectators were to be admitted, it was announced, before 6 o'clock this morning.

Up to the time of the interruption things were going along speedily, if not swimmingly. The invisible tow rope, which seems to haul the cycle riders around and around the great soup plate track at the Garden for hour after weary hour, was cast to one side on several occasions, and the participants in the grind, known as heroes or victims, according to one's view of the affair, struck out boldly for themselves. There was many a sudden flash of speed, and these outbursts always drew corresponding outbursts from the great assembly which crowded the amphitheatre to the very roof, and which was there for action and for nothing else.

Madden Starts Something.

At about 9:45 Madden started something in earnest. He sneaked upon the outside and slashing from the very top of the track down to the rail cut in ahead of the field and was off on a wild jaunt. His small aim was palpably to pilfer space from his brothers in the field to the extent of one-ninth of a mile, one circuit of the track, sometimes known as a lap. In view of the surprise attack which he staged catching the other riders barely tottering along his vicious purpose bade fair for a time to be attained.

Frantic spectators and even more frantic trainers shrieked warnings and the comfortable nap of the other thirteen riders was interrupted. They sped after the flying Madden, but for a time he continued to gain ground and had over half a lap when Oscar Egg and Freddie Hill shot out from the thick of the pack and struck out in earnest after Madden. His partner, Goullet, was summoned to aid in the desired theft, but Goullet made an imperfect pickup and Hill closed in on him with Egg at his rear tire. The others drew up gradually and so there was no change in the standing. Every other effort to steal a lap made during the evening and the day, and there were many faint ones, was equally abortive.

Tier upon tier of heads massed like thousands of pallid cannon balls through pit and boxes and galleries, up almost to the distant dome; a constant gigantic buzz, crackling into shouts or bursting into a deafening sustained roar as the pumping of weary wheelmen thrashes frantically into a sprint; an all-permeating reek and haze of what passed for tobacco smoke, shot with the gleam of myriad eyeballs fixed intently upon the hypnotic whirl on the sloping track—that's a six-day race scene late in the evening and late in the week.

It is during the dark hours before the Saturday night dawn liberates the riders for a prolonged sojourn in dreamland that the spectators most thoroughly enjoy the scene. They know that there isn't a sound body and probably not a sound mind to be found among the score or more contestants and that many are in constant anguish. That pleasing thought adds savor to the crowd's enjoyment.

A Touch of Paganism.

There is a touch of paganism to the gloating and glutting of the multitude around the cage, if you will, but there is also more than a touch of something which man's brothers, the gray wolf and the tawny puma, share with him—something akin to ferocity.

The above paragraph, redolent of sympathy and brotherly love for the struggling cyclists, having been removed from the writer's chest and placed upon a telegraph wire strong enough to bear its weight, let's peer down once more upon the track. The riders, on close inspection, don't look as if they wanted a kindly soul to sympathize with them. They don't look as if they knew they deserved sympathy, or as if they knew their names or what month it is.

In fact, they don't look as if they knew anything whatever. Not that their faces are expressionless. No, indeed. They have as much expression and of the same quality as a cluster of squirrels whirling in a vast cage. If they think, however, they think of pie instead of nuts—of pie and sleep and money. Some of them will get more money than they would if they had worked with their hands instead of their legs this week.

After all it is not the six-day grind that people throng the huge Garden for nearly a week to see, in spite of all that has been written and rewritten for years past about human spiders drearily weaving their web around the gigantic saucer. It is the flashes of speed which stand out like gold nuggets in the dreary gravel of the customary slow circling of the track. When one of these starts heads are thrust forward over railings, eyes narrow to slits or pop wide open, according to the temperament of their possessors and shouting and tumult reign. The shouting is not all bass and baritone, or even tenor. Lots of it is treble contralto or soprano, for women fans are many and intense in their interest. They sit with tense faces and clinched fists during the dashes and often shriek their approval or their admonitions at their favorites on the track.

Hill a "Darling" to Fair Ones.

It was from one of these fair fans who sat clad in heavy and glossy furs in the box adjoining the press stand that the writer learned that Hill was "a darling." This information was not whispered or slipped over in a perfumed note. It was not, in point of fact, exclusive. It was shouted over the rail of the box in strident tones at the object of the eulogy who was flashing past at the time but who did not, so far as could be seen, respond to the tribute even by the acceleration of his pedal motion.

A young man leaned against the back of the box in which the fur clad young woman sat. In deference to the stifling heat he had removed his overcoat, his coat and his vest and was looking ominously at his shirt. He viewed the massive fur coat and remarked "Br-r-r," shivering artistically as he spoke. The young woman turned and flashed unkind glances at him and offered him a fan.

In the afternoon sprints, Ray Eaton, the Brooklyn cyclist who recently dethroned Frank Kramer as national champion, carried off the lion's share of the honors, winning the third and the last of the five sprints. McNamara captured the first one, Madden the second, and Egg took the fourth.

McNamara and Magin were tied with Hill and Drobach at 23 points each for the speed tests of the afternoon, while the leaders in the point table, Goullet and Madden, got 19 points, and Eaton and Kaiser added 17 to their previous total. Goullet and Madden had a lead of 75 points on their nearest competitors, Hill and Drobach, after the matinée sprints, the respective totals being 336 points and 261 points.

MACY WINS CUE TITLE.

Gains Metropolitan Class C Honors by Defeat of Lange, 200 to 166.

Arthur Macy last night won the metropolitan Class C 18.2 balkline championship of the American Amateur Billiard Association. The threatened second three-handed tie failed to materialize when Macy took the measure of John A. Lange by a score of 200 to 166. When the regularly scheduled games of the tournament were completed Lange, Macy, and E. V. Nadherny were tied for first place. The play-off of this tie resulted in Macy winning the title, Nadherny finishing second and Lange grabbing third place.

For a time last night the game threatened to become an honest-to-goodness cue scrap, but as the innings passed Macy drew into the lead and soon had accumulated a pretty safe working [illegible] Lange tried valiantly to hold his opponent the latter's excellent execution told in the final reckoning.

As usual, Macy played a wide open game. He seldom tries to nurse the ivories, relying almost solely upon his ability to make open table shots. In this style of play he has few peers in Class C billiards. His cushion caroms and his direct shots are all that could be desired. If he ever masters the art of close manipulation Macy will take his place among the leading amateur players of this city in the higher classes.

In defeating Lange, Macy averaged 2 54-73 and made a high run of 28. This run is remarkable when it is realized that most of the points were made in open table playing. Lange averaged 2 20-73, and had a high run of 13.

RICE WIELDS WINNING CUE.

Defeats Robert Steinbugler in Exhibition Billiard Match.

Julian Rice, who a season or two ago promised to become one of New York's best amateur billiard players, engaged in an exhibition 18.2 balkline match with Robert Steinbugler at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. Rice showed much of the same excellent form that distinguished his work when he was in tournament competition hereabouts. He experienced little difficulty in defeating Steinbugler by a score of 150 to 72.

Ever since the recent N. A. A. B. P. Class C metropolitan tournament, Robert Steinbugler seems to have lost his stroke. He showed great promise in the early part of that event, but toward the end his playing fell off perceptibly and he has been unable to recover his form. Rice averaged 7 17-19, while Steinbugler averaged 3 15-19. Rice had a high run of 35 and Steinbugler's best effort was 12.

SCUDDER BEATS McKENZIE.

Latter Loses Chance for Second Place in Billiard Tourney.

Herbert McKenzie lost all chance to clinch second place in the three-cushion billiard tournament at John Doyle's Academy last night when he was defeated by Fay Scudder, 25 to 18, in fifty five innings. While Henry Frantzen has taken first place, a three-handed battle was in progress for the runner-up position. With McKenzie eliminated, George LaRue and Joe Cosgrove are left to battle it out for second place.

In the English billiard tourney Fred Dawson defeated John Rayne, 300 to 272. The winner made a high run of 38 and the loser 28.

PLAN BUSY SEASON ON ICE.

Brockway Is Elected Commodore of Long Branch I. B. and Y. C.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Dec. 5.—Dr. Robert O. Brockway was elected Commodore of the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht Club at the annual election held today, and the Regatta Committee, of which J. von Emmons is Chairman was hard at work tonight mapping out a busy ice yachting season. Other officers chosen were William A. Wagner, Vice Commodore; Captain E. W. Price, Rear Commodore; Jesse Potter, Secretary; John L. Price, Treasurer, and T. Frazer Price, Financial Secretary.

Captain James M. O'Brien, the owner of the Jack Frost, presented a cup to be sailed for at the annual meeting. The ice is two inches on the Shrewsbury and if the cold snap lasts a couple of days longer the first class boats will be put on the ice next Sunday. The boats that are rigged and ready for sailing include the X. L. N. C., Jack Frost, Princeton Hazel L., Imp, and Imp, Jr. Owing to the mild Winter last year but two or three races were sailed. Old prophets declare that there will be lots of ice before the first of the year.

WILLIAMS TO PLAY HARVARD

Will Have Place on Crimson Schedule After Lapse of Six Years.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Dec. 5.—Manager Dana of the Williams football team for next year has announced that Harvard will reappear on the Purple's schedule after a lapse of six years. The contest between the two elevens will be staged at Cambridge early in the season. Williams plans to drop Cornell in order to take its former place on the Crimson's slate. Up to 1915 Harvard and Williams met annually on the gridiron.

It is unlikely that another member of the Big Three will be played by Williams next Fall, but there is a possibility that Colgate will be a second newcomer on the Purple's schedule.

N. Y. U. Eleven Is Honored.

The following tribute to the New York University football team for its work of the past season was made last night when the players were guests at a dinner at the D. K. E. Club. Dr. Munn, the Honorary President of the Athletic Association, was the host of the evening. Following the dinner the team became the guests of the student body at a theatre party. Coaches Gargan and Longwell attended both affairs and spoke at the dinner.

TWO MORE RECORDS ARE ESTABLISHED

NEW ORLEANS, La., Dec. 5.—New records are being established with such frequency at Jefferson Park that they are becoming the rule rather than the exception in a day's racing. Two more marks were lowered here today, making a total of five in a little more than a week. G. A. Applegate's Arnold made new figures for five and a half furlongs when he showed the way to some good sprinters in winning the Baton Rouge Handicap, which was the feature of the day, covering the distance in 1:06 3-5. Sweet Liberty made a new record for five furlongs in the first race with a mark of 1:01.

This wholesale lowering of records at various distances has excited considerable comment and has caused many to wonder at this sudden change in the track. The new records are probably due to two causes, one that there are better horses at Jefferson Park than have ever raced here before, and the other, and most important, that the track has been improved. Jefferson Park was built on swampy land which was so poorly drained that it was a bad track at best and was several seconds slower than almost any other track in the country. Last Summer a wall was built around the course which protected it from the back waters which formerly affected the track, and the result has been a pronounced improvement. The course is now in better shape than it has ever been, and with good weather it is quite probable that many more records will be made before the meeting comes to a close.

The Baton Rouge Handicap in which Arnold scored a record victory was one of the best races seen here during the meeting. It brought out the best field of sprinters that has been sent to the post here. Among the other starters were Youneed, The Boy, Ultima Thule, Ticklish, and Ben Tromp. Arnold closed an even choice with Tacola, which finished second. Youneed managed to save third after being nosed out of the place.

Butwell Rides Cleverly.

Arnold, which was a fairly good performer during the metropolitan racing season, had all the speed of the race, but after breaking in front and taking the lead Butwell had to hustle him along to hold the advantage. Ultima Thule showed a fine flash of speed for half a mile, and was close up on the leader, while Youneed and Tacole were never far away.

Butwell urged his mount so persistently that he had opened up a gap of nearly four lengths by the time he reached the head of the stretch. From there to the end he had clear sailing without much danger of being overtaken, and won by four lengths. When Youneed got into the stretch he began to tire suddenly and Tacola caught him. The two raced closely for a hundred yards, but in the last few strides Tacola pushed to the front to take second. Youneed was nearly two lengths in front of The Boy. Ultima Thule dropped out of the contest after the first half mile and was far back at the end, while Ticklish ran a sluggish race throughout and had no speed whatever.

Sweet Liberty made her five-furlong mark against a field of ten two-year-olds of the maiden class and emerged with half a length to spare in a driving finish with Yaphank. The winner was in front all the way, but was doing her best at the end while Yaphank, which was slow to start, ran around the field and came with a rush in the stretch and was wearing down the winner with every stride. Dolph was third, while the others were strung out and never contenders except for Fledgling, which showed good speed, but ran out at the first turn.

In the other two-year-old event J. H. McDonald's Sugarmint scored handily over Peccant and Burgoyne. This daughter of McGee which raced under the colors of W. R. Coe earlier in the year, showed unusual speed and outclassed her field. She led all the way from the barrier and was two lengths in front at the end, and was never threatened. Peccant got up in the last few strides to take the place from Burgoyne.

Eulogy Wins by a Nose.

The most stirring finish of the day came in the last race, when Eulogy gained the decision over Little Cottage by a nose in a mile and a sixteenth test. The finish was so close that many thought Little Cottage was the winner, and a report to that effect got out of the park. As a matter of fact, Eulogy led all the way, and was two lengths in front at the head of the stretch, when Little Cottage began to move up. The latter made up ground so rapidly that he was nose and nose with the winner a hundred yards from the end, and the two came to the wire so close together that only those at the line could tell which had won.

J. L. Coyle's Shandon defeated a large field of selling platers in the second race, showing the way to Parrish and General, among others, but was hard urged to last.

The fourth race went to Bontelle, with Little Maudie second, and Betsy third, Bontelle leading all the way. Aldebaran was an easy winner in the sixth event, defeating Luther by four lengths. Leta was third.

CORAL WINS IN A GALLOP.

HAVANA, Cuba, Dec. 5.—Coral, the ruling favorite, scored easily in the feature race at the local track today, winning in a gallop by four lengths while Berlin lasted long enough to save the place by a nose from the fast closing favorite, Hocnir. Raven Sea, under a good ride of Pickens, managed to win the first race by a nose from Steve. The latter was off poorly and was forced to make up a lot of ground, but would have won in another stride.

Star Baby, a favorite, had no trouble in winning the second event by two lengths from a good field. Sir Oliver was second, a length in front of Circulate. Baladin proved a big surprise when he won the fifth race. The finish in this race was exceptionally close, the first four horses coming to the wire heads apart. $5,000 PAID FOR A MARE.

CHICAGO, Ills., Dec. 5.—Hackney and Shoeland breeding classes will lead the day card tomorrow at the International Live Stock Show and Horse Fair, which will end with the night performance. Since the start on Nov. 29, the attendance by official figures has aggregated 275,000, the horse show having drawn from 18,000 to 25,000 at each session in the big amphitheatre.

Percherons were the leading breed in today's judging Tourquoise, which won the grand championship for mares, was sold by Dunham Farm of Wayne, Ills., to G. M. Oyster, Jr., of Washington, who breeds draft horses at Walkersville, Md., for $5,000, said to be the record price in America for a Percheron mare.

The grand championship for Percheron stallions was won by Jasmine, owned by Serven & Son of Prairie City, Ills. Hamilton Star, owned by R. Lawrence Smith of New York, and driven by Mrs. Walter H. Hanley of Providence, R. I., won in a class of eight harness horses, the drivers to be ladies, after a brilliant showing.

The high jump, which closed at midnight, had an unusual finish. The Woodin Farm entries, Black Watch and Out West, dropped out at six feet, the former having been rattled by the slipping of his martingale early in the contest. Sunnybrook, owned by R. C. Wheeler of Chicago, and Silver Tip, owned and ridden by William C. Du Pont, Jr., of Foxcatcher Farm, Rosemont, Pa., cleared the bars at six feet three inches, but both failed at six feet six inches. The first place was awarded to Silver Tip on points gained by his excellent style of fencing. Mr. Dupont's victory recalled to old timers the days of the National Horse Show in the old Gilmore Garden, when amateurs frequently rode in such contests, Foxhall P. Keene on one occasion clearing six feet one inch on H. L. Herbert's big hunter Transport.

RICHARDS DEFEATS CARHART AT SQUASH

DANA AND MARTIN WIN

Enter Semi-Final Round by Victories in Hard-Fought Matches—Ells and MacGuire Also Survive.

Anderson Dana, twice runner-up for the national squash tennis championship, and Clyde Martin, former Yale hockey star, won their way into the semi-final round of the open scratch tournament at the Harvard Club yesterday afternoon by victories over Dr. H. R. Mixsell and John W. Lee, respectively. An upset came in the preceding round, when J. A. Richards of Harvard defeated H. W. Carhart of Yale, the present Class B champion of the United States, in three games, 15—6, 10—15, 15—8. Other winners in postponed matches were A. E. Ells of Harvard and C. J. MacGuire of Yale. The former meets Richards this afternoon for a semi-final bracket, while the latter faces Livingston Platt for the same honor, the actual semi-finals being scheduled for Monday.

Richards eliminated Carhart yesterday, chiefly through his astonishing ability to cover court. No shot seemed too hard for him to reach, and generally if he got his racquet on the ball at all he succeeded in making some sort of return. He was tireless in the rallies, going after everything, and wearing out his more experienced opponent by the stubborn persistence of his efforts.

Carhart was not in the best of physical shape, for he has played but little in serious competition this season, and although his shots were generally under good control, he could not keep up the terrific pace set by the Harvard youngster. Richards ran away with the opening game, winning it at 15—6 before his rival was well aware of his danger. The points stood 10—all in the second, in fact before Carhart awoke to the realization that he was being beaten. Then he began a splendid spurt, quite in his old form, running five aces in a row and squaring the match by a score of 15—10.

The Winning Spurt.

The rubber was a curious affair, with Carhart leading up to 8—6, and seemingly on the way to victory. Suddenly the Crimson representative came to life again, and by simply refusing to miss or concede a shot, no matter how great the speed of the ball or how difficult the angle, actually piled up nine aces in two hands, landing the decision without ever giving his rival a chance to mark the score sheet again. It was a most spectacular finish, and stamped Richards as one of the coming stars of the squash court.

Dana had a tremendous fight on his hands in disposing of Dr. Mixsell, the slugging Princetonian, also a former Class B title holder. The latter was the quicker to get started, scoring 4 aces in his third hand in, and running out the opening game in thirteen attempts at the service, with two additional clusters of 3 points each for a brilliant finish. Dana, meanwhile, was not going any too well having to be content with 8 ciphers on his way to a score of only 7, and failing to make more than 3 acres in any one hand.

The Harvard man, however, who recently proved his class again by almost winning the Yale Club's invitation tournament from Charles M. Bull, Jr., had plenty of pull-up left in his system. He scored 5 points in the first three hands of the second game, while he kept his opponent scoreless. Mixsell however, was not to be denied, and came back with two successive pairs which almost tied up the points again. A cluster of 3, two hands later, put the Princetonian ahead once more, and it seemed that Dana's uphill fight was to be in vain.

Finds the Corners.

After two hands of great hitting, however, he began to find the corners for clean kills, squaring the points with a pair of tallies, and then going into the lead with two more. Mixsell equalized by duplicating the feat, and had the first chance for the winning run by putting Dana out without a score. The Harvard alumnus paid him back in his own coin, however, and, getting the service again, made a remarkable stand which turned the tide in his favor. Steadying his shots, and at the same time increasing his speed, he began to count aces all around the court, and did not relinquish his command until he had run 6 in a row and put the second game to his credit at 15—9.

Dana's great streak continued into the opening hand of the rubber, in which he got away to a favorable start with 3 points, making his uninterrupted run actually total 9. He added 2 more before Mixsell got into the game with an ace, and increased his lead to 6—3 several hands later. Then the fighting Tiger made his last and strongest bid for victory. Summoning all his reserve forces and smashing every ball with all his might, he began again to pile up the points by sheer speed, and had run 5 straight before an error stopped his mad career. But this was his final flash. Using all his knowledge of court tactics Dana crept ahead once more, holding the Princetonian safe on his service and eventually tallying 3 in a row on his own delivery.

A Sensational Finish.

For four successive hands Mixsell was unable to score, so perfect was the defense of his rival. Dana picked up one more on service, and then set himself for a supreme effort. Finding the corners consistently, as in his other long runs, he kept command until 5 straight aces had fallen to his credit, this sensational exhibition giving him the game and match at 15—8.

C. J. MacGuire was in top form yesterday against W. S. Seamans, Jr., of Harvard, allowing him only 4 points in the first game and a single tally in the second. Ells also played fast squash in his match with G. N. Richard, winning in straight games, 15—6, 15—8. Martin's victory over Lee, which put him in the upper semi-final bracket, was likewise impressive. The first game was close, the loser scoring 12 points. But in the second the hockey expert used all his speed of stroke and foot and forged ahead to a decision with the loss of only 5 aces.

Third Round—J. A. Richards, Harvard, defeated H. W. Carhart, Yale, 15—6, 10—15, 15—8; A. E. Ells, Harvard, defeated G. N. Richard, Harvard, 15—6, 15—8; C. J. MacGuire, Yale, defeated W. S. Seamans, Jr., Harvard, 15—4, 15—1.

Fourth Round—Clyde Martin, Yale, defeated J. W. Lee, Harvard, 15—12, 15—5; Anderson Dana, Harvard, defeated Dr. H. R. Mixsell, 7—15, 15—9, 15—8.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 5.—With a left hand uppercut to the mid section George Chaney stopped Johnny Drummie of Jersey City here tonight in the fourth round of their bout, which was cheduled to go fifteen sessions. The blow was a terrific one, and while the visitor did not lose consciousness, he crumbled and sank to the floor, where he lay while his handlers claimed a foul had been committed, thus interrupting the count of the referee. A physician was called into the ring by the referee, and after an examination the doctor announced that he found no mark to indicate that Drummie had been hit low.

As a result of the playing in the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players' Class C 18.2 balkline tournament for the national championship at Lawler Brothers' Academy in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon and last night there were several changes in the standings in Sections A and B. By winning two games while Charles Worcester was losing one, Charley Steinbugler advanced to a three-handed tie for the lead in Section A. James Blaisdell, Worcester and Steinbugler are now on even terms for the lead. By winning his game James Langdon is tied with Brussel for the lead in Section B.

In the afternoon, James Langden defeated Edward McGill, 150 to 109, and Charley Steinbugler defeated Charley Worcester, 150 to 107. In the evening Frank Boyd defeated John Low, 150 to 146, and Charley Steinbugler defeated J. R. Johann, 150 to 121.

Langdon had little difficulty in beating McGill in the first match of the day. Langdon was in his normal stroke and soon took the lead. Once in front, he never was headed, and he paraded to the finish a comparatively easy winner.

Steinbugler and Worcester met in the second of the afternoon games. Until he encountered Steinbugler, Worcester had been breezing along in front with two victories and no defeats. In Steinbugler, however, he met sterner opposition than he previously had been called upon to face, with the result that he was defeated and a three-handed tie was brought about in Section A. Worcester dashed off in the lead and the early innings indicated that he would romp home with the victory. But Steinbugler found himself about the middle of the match and finally overcame his opponent. Once he had assumed the lead, Steinbugler remained in front and finally won, 150 to 107.

The match between Boyd and Low was a keen battle throughout. Up to the twenty-seventh inning neither of the players was able to do anything worth while. It was nip and tuck in the safety playing that consumed the early innings. After that round, however, the playing loosened up a bit and the lead alternated back and forth between the rivals. Boyd finally nosed under the wire the winner by 150 to 146. Boyd's best effort netted him 19 points and his average was 2 48-51. Low had a high run of 15 and his average was 2 46-50.

Steinbugler returned to the struggle in the second game of the evening. He was still in stroke, his efforts in the afternoon evidently having failed to detract anything from his ability. For a time Johann was inclined to dispute his opponent's efforts to assume command, but when Johann failed to count in the seven innings from the thirty-fifth to the forty-second, inclusive, while Steinbugler was gathering a total of 29 points in the same rounds, the issue was settled, and Steinbugler ran out the game with an unfinished run of 15 in the forty-fourth inning. Steinbugler averaged 3 18-44 and his opponent 2 38-43. The winner's high run was 22 and the loser's 12.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—In one of the most sensational rallies in the history of championship contests, Bennie Allen, the Kansas City pocket billiard expert, and holder of the world's record high run of 81, defeated Joseph Concannon in the second afternoon game in the national pocket billiard championship tournament by a score of 125 to 119.

Concannon was in rare form and got away with a lead that looked impossible to overcome. The New York man started the fireworks early in the game when he compiled a high run of 40 and followed this up with succeeding runs which placed his total at 92.

With the score standing 104 to 61 in favor of Concannon, Allen realized what a defeat at this stage of the tournament meant to him, and braced up and gave one of the most remarkable exhibitions of uphill playing ever seen in this city.

He started his drive by collecting 12 before the five ball refused to drop into the corner pocket after a great break shot. Concannon came back with 13, slipping up on an easy side-pocket try, and left the balls well spread. Allen took advantage of the slip and cleaned up the table.

Jerome Keogh of Rochester defeated E. I. Ralph of Hightstown, N. J., in the opening contest 125 to 95. The veteran took no chances and played an unusually careful game and landed the victory simply because he outguessed his opponent and used better judgment in the safety play. This gives Keogh three wins and no defeats.

Louis Krueter of New York defeated J. M. Layton of Columbia, Mo., by the score of 125 to 117 in the first of tonight's games.

Krueter made 9 scratches and had a high run of 13. He played 4 safety shots. Layton made 6 scratches, had a high run of 53, and played safe 12 times.

In the second night match James Maturo of Denver defeated Charles Seaback of Hartford, Conn., 125 to 67, in twenty innings. Maturo's high run was 28.

PROMOTERS BATTLE FOR BIG TITLE BOUT

PARIS EAGER FOR MATCH

Would Hold the Event in Pershing Stadium—London Wants It, Too, and New Orleans Enters Claim.

PARIS, Dec. 5 (Associated Press).—Paris today was overjoyed by the victory of Georges Carpentier over Joe Beckett in the boxing contest held in London Thursday evening. From the comment everywhere heard it seems that Paris desired to stage a battle between Jack Dempsey, the American, and Carpentier for the world's heavyweight championship.

M. Decoin, manager of the Wonderland Sporting Club of Paris, told The Associated Press today that he had sent a telegram to Dempsey asking his terms for a twenty-round fight with Carpentier on France's national holiday, July 14. Gaston Vidal and Henry Tate, Members of Parliament, representing the athletes of France, said they would secure the great Pershing Stadium for a battle between the American and the Frenchman.

"A fight between the American champion of the world and the French champion of Europe must take place either in Paris or in the United States," said M. Vidal. "It would be a sad reflection on the sporting spirit of France, and also that of America, if the battle were allowed to take place in England. We understand that there are difficulties in the way of securing a battleground in America. But this matter can easily be arranged here, and we are going to make a bid for the fight."

M. Decoin, who is backed by Prince Murat, and other prominent sportsmen, said today he had telegraphed "Jimmy" Bronson of Joplin, Mo., who organized the American Expeditionary Force bouts, to ask Dempsey for terms, and declared that he was determined to make a strong bid for a fight between Dempsey and Carpentier in Paris.

The Presse de Paris says that a purse of 2,000 000 francs will be posted for a match between Jack Dempsey, the American pugilist, and Carpentier, to be fought in Paris in July, 1920.

ENGLAND EXPECTS BOUT.

Cochrane Says Carpentier Has Signed—Coming Here for Dempsey.

LONDON, Dec. 5 (Associated Press).—C. B. Cochrane, promoter of the Carpentier-Beckett fight, announced today that Georges Carpentier has signed an agreement to fight Jack Dempsey, the American heavyweight champion, next year. The purse will be £35,000, the winner to take 60 per cent. and the loser 40.

George McDonald, Mr. Cochrane's secretary, will leave for the United States tomorrow on board the steamship Baltic. Mr. Cochrane himself will follow on the Mauretania, Dec. 13.

Carpentier's manager said today that his protegé would not sign for any fights in the immediate future, declaring that Carpenter expected to fill a stage engagement immediately.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—British boxing fans are expecting Jack Dempsey to meet Georges Carpentier here on June 7.

Promoter Cochrane today said:

"I have just received a cable from Jack Kearns, manager of Champion Dempsey. He assured me that my offer would be considered first, and I feel that the deal is virtually closed. The fight will be held next June 7 at the Olympia. I am starting for America immediately and am taking with me enough money to induce Dempsey to make the trip to London for the fight. Although Kearns said he would rather have the fight in America, he expressed his willingness to come over here."

TORTORICH IN THE RACE.

New Orleans Promoter Says He Has Dempsey Under Contract.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 5.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, already is under contract to meet in New Orleans the winner of the Beckett-Carpentier fight, Dominick J. Tortorich, fight promoter of this city, announced today. He added that Nate Lewis of Chicago, acting as his representative, was due to arrive in London today to sign up Carpentier, the new heavyweight champion of Europe.

"I have Dempsey's contract to meet the winner of the Beckett-Carpentier fight in New Orleans, and I know Dempsey will keep his word," Tortorich said. "Arrangements have been made to cable to Carpentier 10 per cent. of his guarantee the day he signs the articles."

WILDE TO BOX TONIGHT.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Dec. 5.—Jimmy Wilde, flyweight champion of England, and Jack Sharkey, New York bantamweight, have finished training for their ten-round no-decision contest at the Milwaukee Auditorium tomorrow night. Each boxer has announced himself in the best of condition.

Not since Willie Ritchie and Ad Wolgast met in Milwaukee several years ago has interest in the ring sport been so great.

Under the terms of the agreement Sharkey is to weigh not more than 116 pounds at 7 o'clock, three hours prior to entering the ring. The New Yorker has posted a $2 000 forfeit which he will lose should the scales register higher. The Britisher expects to enter the ring at 106 pounds. The betting up to Friday night favored the Englishman.

GAMES FOR COLLEGE FIVES.

Schedule of Thirty Matches Will Be Opened on Dec. 19.

Announcement was made last night of the completion of the intercollegiate basket ball schedule, with the exception of one game, Columbia vs. Dartmouth, at Hanover, N. H., the date of which will be announced later. Princeton and Cornell will open the series at Ithaca on Friday, Dec. 19. This will be the only game before the holidays, but beginning Jan. 10, when Yale meets Columbia and Dartmouth encounters Princeton, the games will take place with frequency until the conclusion of the schedule on March 19.

The annual meeting for a discussion of basket ball rules will be held next Saturday afternoon, Dec. 13, at the Hotel Astor, and a large representation of players, managers, coaches and officials is expected to be present. The meeting has been called by Joseph E. Raycroft of Princeton, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Basket Ball Rules, and Ralph Morgan of Philadelphia, Secretary of the Collegiate Basket Ball Rules Committee.

It is probable that the Heppe Cup, which goes to the college winning three championships, will reach its ultimate destination this year. Yale, Princeton, Cornell and Pennsylvania have won two championships apiece, and unless Dartmouth should come through with one victory the disposition of the cup will be final.

The schedule contains thirty games, as follows:

March 2, Dartmouth at Columbia; 5, Princeton at Columbia, Pennsylvania at Cornell; 6, Yale at Dartmouth; 9, Columbia at Cornell; 10, Pennsylvania at Yale; 13, Princeton at Pennsylvania; 19, Princeton at Dartmouth.

BENSON NAMED AS COACH.

The position of basket ball coach at Columbia, which was left vacant by the sudden resignation of Fred Dawson ten days ago, was filled yesterday by the appointment of Claus D. Benson, captain of the 1912 team, and one of the best stars developed by Harry Fisher. Benson will take charge of the practices beginning probably on Monday, and will have as his assistants several other former Blue and White players.

Benson's greatest season was in 1912, his fourth year of basket ball at Columbia. He played a guard position on the 1909, 1910, and 1911 teams, the latter being the famous "Lightning Five" that went through the intercollegiate league schedule without a defeat, and was selected as the All-Eastern five for the year. In 1911 Benson was graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree, but returned to the university and captained the floor team.

Before coming to Columbia he prepared at Horace Mann School, where he played forward in 1905, 1906, and 1907, and was captain in his last year. He is a brother of Reynolds Benson, who followed him later at Columbia and was captain in 1915. The latter will be an assistant coach this year, along with Dan Meenan, Charlie Lee, and Ed. Burghard.

With the first game of the schedule, that with N. Y. U., only a week away, the practices yesterday speeded up perceptibly. Jack Wegener and Eddie Kornsand were the graduate coaches in charge. Captain Tommy Farrell was in uniform and lined up with the first team, which consisted of Tynan and Johnson, forwards; Watson, centre; Farrell and Horowitz, guards. Johnson, who was the backbone of the offense last year at the centre position, was shifted to forward to make room for Watson, freshman captain and centre last season. Farrell, usually a forward, was sent to a guard position, with Horowitz, a second string veteran, as his running mate. Sam Weinstein was the only regular player absent, although he will probably be on hand at Monday's workout, when Coach Benson is also expected to make his first appearance.

ED THORP N. Y. U. COACH.

Assumes Charge of Basket Ball Five —Season Opens Next Week.

Athletic authorities at New York University yesterday announced the engagement of Ed Thorp as head coach of the Violet basket ball five for this season. The announcement was enthusiastically received, as the squad had been practicing without a coach.

The new coach was on the court for the afternoon practice. He started work in the rudiments of the game, giving the candidates a long drill in shooting. This he followed with a game between the first and second teams. Thorp put a great deal of life into the work, and, with him as coach, a championship team is looked for. He is the brother of Tom Thorp, the line coach of the columbia eleven.

Preparations for the Violet's first game of the season are being made. This contest is against Columbia on the latter's court next Saturday night, and will mark the resumption of basket ball relations between the two local teams.

With eight letter men from whom to pick, Thorp should have no trouble in finding five stars. The entire crack freshman team from last year is out and giving some of the 'Varsity men a fight for the positions. At present the first team lines up as follows: Captain Storey and Gann, forwards; Mooney centre, and Delaney and Goeller, guards.

Flushing High Defeats Newtown.

Flushing High School's basket ball quintet interrupted the winning career of Newtown H. S. yesterday when it defeated the Newtown quintet on the Flushing court by a score of 26 to 15. Flushing's attack and excellent guarding game surprised the Newtown lads, who were prevented from scoring a field goal until within ten minutes of the end of the contest. Then a rally was started, which, however, failed to change the result of the contest. The score at half time favored Flushing by 15 to 3. In a preliminary game the Newtown second team defeated Flushing's second team by 22 to 17.

Crescent A. C. Five Is Victor.

The Crescent A. C. basket ball team continued its winning streak in the New Moon gymnasium last night by defeating the Cooper Union Institute quintet by a score of 34 to 18. The New Mooners led from start to finish. The score at the end of the first half favored the Brooklyn club team by 16 to 10. This is the fourth straight victory for the Crescent five.

Collegiate School Quintet Wins.

The Collegiate School basket ball team gained a hard-earned victory over the Hoboken Academy five yesterday afternoon in a close, strenuous game played on the former's court by a score of 17 to 16. The result remained in doubt to the end, with Collegiate School having a shade the better of the play. Half time saw the score at 7 to 2 in favor of the winners.

Far Rockaway Five Wins Again.

Far Rockaway High School's basketball quintet trounced Bryant H. S. in a P. S. A. L. game yesterday on the former's court by a score of 35 to 18. The success marked the Far Rockaway team's seventh victory since the start of the season. Sullivan shot eight field goals and five from fouls and Greenwald caged five field goals.

TOREADOR CROWNED KING OF TOY DOGS

A sensation was caused by the victory of Mrs. M. E. This [illegible] decision was [illegible] of the last of the evening and created general enthusiasm.

DECISION TODAY ON BASEBALL MEETING

Justice Samuel Greenbaum of the Supreme Court yesterday received additional affidavits and briefs in the application of the New York Baseball Club for an order restraining President Ban Johnson from holding the annual meeting of the American League in Chicago. Decision was reserved in the case until this afternoon.

The action was brought by the owners of the Yankees to force the annual meeting of the league in this city on Dec. 10, as ordered by the Board of Directors.

Yesterday afternoon Charles H. Tuttle, representing the New York Club, and Marvin W. Wynne, representing President Johnson, appeared in Justice Greenbaum's chambers and submitted papers additional to those which had been handed to Justice Greenbaum on Thursday. They then made oral arguments in support of their respective claims Mr. Tuttle maintaining that the Board of Directors, which had called the annual meeting for Dec. 10, was acting in strict accordance with the constitution of the organization, while Mr. Wynne took the position that Mr. Johnson had since 1910 called the meetings and that he had the authority to call the meeting for the present year.

The argument was prolonged for two hours, and at its conclusion Justice Greenbaum took the papers and announced that he would give his decision this afternoon.

THE OPERA

By Richard Aldrich

"L'Italiana in Algeri."

L'ITALIANA IN ALGERI, opera-buffa in three acts and five scenes; book in Italian, by Angelo Anelli; music by Gioachimo Rossini. At the Metropolitan Opera House.

Mustafa.....Adamo Didur
Elvira.....Marie Sundelius
Zulma.....Kathleen Howard
Haly.....Millo Picco
Lindoro.....Charles Hackett
Isabella.....Gabriella Besanzoni
Taddeo.....Giuseppe de Luca
Conductor—Gennaro Papi.

The second new production of the season was presented at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening. This was Rossini's opera of "L'Italiana in Algeri," which had not been performed in New York for more than sixty years. It was heard by a large audience that gave the greeting of interest and curiosity usually given to a new production; applause for some of the more striking and amusing passages of the opera, and evident admiration for several of the picturesque features of the production. The greeting was friendly, but no more conclusive of the maturer estimate of the public than that naturally given on a first night at the opera. The performance was in many respects excellent, though the cast contained none of the names that stand highest in public favor.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza's adventures in search of a repertory have brought him into some remote and unfamiliar regions of operatic art. His search has resulted in his exploring some dusty nooks and taking down operas long since shelved in most capitals where operas are given, as Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," revived last season; and now Rossini's "L'Italiana in Algeri."

This predecessor of "Il Barbiere di Siviglia" had not been heard in New York for more than sixty years; nor in most other larger operatic centres for almost as long. It had at one time a vogue that has prevented its title from being quite so deeply sunk in oblivion as some of the master's other early works, but it is safe to say that few people in last night's audience had ever heard it, and that many had never even heard of it till the announcement was made of the present season's productions.

"L'Italiana in Algeri" is in truth an opera of a kind that is pretty well passed by. Its kind is kept in memory by the perennial vitality of "Il Barbiere di Siviglia"—that of the old Italian opera buffa; but it must be said at once that "L'Italiana" is far from ranking with her immortal younger brother. In "Il Barbiere" Rossini had a libretto based on Beaumarchais's great masterpiece with enough of its qualities to stimulate him to the production of a music whose irresistible comic power is equal to that of the story itself, power that it shares with Mozart's greater masterpiece drawn from the same source. The story of "L'Italiana in Algeri" is a tenuous piece of fooling that has by no means all of the other's genuine characterization, delineation of comic types, development of adroitly devised situations and sparkling lines.

The Algerian Bey, Mustafà, has tired of his wife Elvira, dismisses her and wishes an Italian woman to take her place. By the wreck of a ship upon his coast he is fortunately supplied with one in the shape of Isabella, who, with her hopeless suitor, Taddeo, is landed in his power and brought to his Court. There Isabella finds her true lover, Lindoro, as a slave. Together they devise a very transparent means of fooling Mustafà, an artless villain, by initiating him into an imaginary order of "Pappataci," whose ritual is a life of gluttony and sensuality. This ritual appears to be such a novelty for an Algerian Bey that, while Mustafà is tasting its first delights enraptured Isabella and her two companions walk away and embark on a ship fortunately waiting to remove them, and Mustafà decides to take back the discarded Elvira.

This improvisation of a plot is matched by the careless flow of Rossini's music; but there is not so very much to be made in musical embellishment of what in itself is so thin. In what Stendhal thought the "mad illusions" of this music it is now difficult, in this age and generation to "lose one's self" as he did It has plenty of fluency and facility. Rossini could shake tunes out of his sleeve, such as they were; and what they were depended not unnaturally on what they were for. Yet there is an abundant gayety and vivacity of a sort in this uninterrupted succession of airs, concerted pieces and choruses, all bearing some imprint of Rossini; all truly vocal and inviting to singers whose throats are oiled by the Italian suavity and grace, even in vehemence. There are some signs of the famous "Rossini crescendo"—that new effect, as it was then, lashing the course of animated concerted numbers to a climax that could delight the souls of listeners of a hundred years ago and still may. There is the all-pervading "secco recitative" accompanied by light chords on the piano—the voluble outpourings and quick interchange of conversation sweetened by musical intonation.

The ensembles in this opera are of more interest and value, on the whole, than most of the airs, which, even those adorned by florid passages, are not of the most brilliant and, though tuneful, seem rather faded. Most notable among such pieces is the trio, "Pappataci," in which the conspirators Lindoro and Taddeo reveal to Mustafà the joys of their newly invented order; a trio that was once rapturously admired and is full of boisterous humor. The long finale of the second act (as it is now arranged for performance, being in the original the finale of the first act) is a characteristic buffo scene, one of riotous excitement, with rapid interchange of exclamation and ejaculation over the mutual recognition of the lovers, the imperious domination of the resourceful lady over the smitten Mustafà, the stentorian confession of the chorus that their brains are swirling at the complication of affairs, and the final joining of all the principals in the noise-making.

A characteristic Rossini touch is heard in the duet of Isabella with Taddeo in the second scene of the first act, "Ai capricci della sorte," and again in a later one with Mustafà, "Ah che muso." An air that attracted notice beyond the claims of its musical value in the days when Italy was under the Austrian domination is Isabella's "Pensa alla patria." But these solo airs are seldom of such striking quality as to linger long in the memory.

The performance was under the direction of Maestro Gennari Papi, who did not inject into it all the animation and rhythmic verve that it needs. Nor do all the singers command unquestionably the vocal style in fluency and smoothness that the music requires. The opera, like others of Rossini's early operas, has a contralto as protagonist. Isabella is the part of Mme. Besanzoni, the new Italian contralto of the company, whose talent does not seem to be so decisively for this style as for that of "Aïda," in which she first appeared. Neither the quality of her voice nor the dexterity of her vocal art in her solos was wholly satisfactory; yet she showed skill and humor in the comedy, even if not the lightest of touch, as an imperious and resourceful lady thoroughly mistress of the situation.

The singer most at home in the opera was Mr. De Luca, who gave an admirable impersonation of Taddeo, full of drollery, and in voice, both in the airs and in his crisp and rapid delivery of the recitative, excellent. Mr. Didur made a capital study of the gluttenous bey, Mustafà, into which he put unctuous and farcical by-play, doubtless in the right vein; his voice gave him some trouble in passages requiring agility. Mr. Hackett's Lindoro was presented with spirit, not always with beauty of voice or vocal style; and Mmes. Sundelius and Howard made acceptable representatives of Elvira and Zulna.

Some elaborately decorative scenes have been provided for the production, in which the artists have gone deeply into the Mauresque style of ornament. The scene representing the grand hall of the harem is vividly picturesque. There is a gorgeous ballet for which the music has been conveyed from Rossini's opera of "Moses in Egypt." In this Miss Galli and Mr. Bonfiglio do the solos with much grace, for which they won applause, and the young ladies some evolutions that do not in all respects recall the Oriental languors and voluptuousness of song and story, but they are highly picturesque and varied and were received enthusiastically.

The Philharmonic Society.

The Philharmonic Society yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall played Mozart's C major symphony. Beethoven's third Leonore overture, a new overture "Prelude to a Merry Play," by Albert Chiafarelli, and Elgar's march "Pomp and Circumstance"; Mr. Edwin Hughes played Saint Saëns's piano concerto in G minor.

Mr. Chiafarelli, the first clarinettist of the orchestra, has before now had orchestral music of his composition played here, including a prelude and fugue by the Philharmonic Society two years ago. This overture is brilliant and tuneful, highly colored in orchestration, a little boisterous, as its title permits it to be. There might be room for suspicion that its principal theme in a jovial rhythm has a touch of Irish in it. Mr. Chiafarelli has written cleverly and skilfully in the development of this theme; perhaps also at a little too great length. Greater consciseness might give the composition greater effect. But it gave pleasure yesterday, and the composer was called forward from his seat in the orchestra to acknowledge hearty applause.

Mr. Hughes's performance of Saint Saëns's concerto was not a very impressive one. It needed, among other things, a more rhythmic character and a somewhat greater brilliancy and security in the passages of display.

MATINEES NET $700,000 FOR THE ACTORS' FUND

Ticket Signed by Prince of Wales Brings $30,000—Goal Is $2,000,000.

Special matinees for the Actors' Fund yesterday yielded nearly $700,000. No official figures were made public, because many of the committees will not be ready to report for several days. Matinees were given in about fifty theatres here and virtually every house was filled.

Reports from the rest of the country, it was said at the offices of the Actors' Fund last night, were "encouraging," but it was said that it was too early to give out figures. Officials said they had reason to believe that the goal of $2,000,000 had been reached.

"The entire United States today reported a tremendous public tribute to the actor that surpassed the most hopeful estimates," said Daniel Frohman. "Though the campaign for a permanent endowment has merely begun it has received such wonderful impetus by today's attendances as to assure the Actors' Home on Staten Island of eventually obtaining the financial basis it needs."

The capacity of New York theatres was sold for as high as $75,000. The ticket for the Empire Theatre which the Prince of Wales autographed, brought $30,000—$25,000 from Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who turned it back, and $5,000 from John H. Flagler. Tickets for many houses were sold twice or more. A committee, headed by Franklin Simon, turned in $52,000 for the Lyceum Theatre, and the Hudson Theatre, through the work of John McE. Bowman and Mrs. Oliver H. Harriman, yielded $40,000.

The usual performances were given at all the theatres, and a speaker was assigned to each house. Some of those who made speeches were Henry W. Taft, at the Gaiety; Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan, at the Hudson; James M. Beck, at the Astor; Mrs. Henry P. Davison, at the Belasco; Sheriff Knott, at the Bijou; Bishop Burch, at the Empire, Admiral Glennon, at the Forty-eighth Street; Rear Admiral Usher, at the Greenwich Village, and Morgan J. O'Brien, at the Knickerbocker.

Thousands of soldiers and sailors, many of them wounded men from the hospitals, attended the performances as the guests of individuals and organizations. Many school children also were entertained, and in some schools exercises were held. The Board of Trustees of the Actors' Fund yesterday adopted resolutions, thanking all who gave the movement their support and assistance.

PIANISTS AT AEOLIAN HALL.

Tamara Lubimova and Olga Steeb Give Interesting Recitals.

Pianists in profusion have averaged two a day of late in Aeolian Hall, where yesterday's pair were Tamara Lubimova, who once played with the Russian Symphony, and Olga Steeb, a newcomer from the Pacific Coast.

Mme. Lubimova, statuesque and classic, gave half her matinee to miniatures of the old school, such as Daquin's "Le Coucou," and an early sonata of Beethoven, done with extravagant gesture. She was interesting in contemporaneous pieces by Rachmaninoff, Prokotieff and Scriabine, and in "Three Ravissement" by a Frenchman, Rudhyar, whose symphony and quartet are in the lists of the Philadelphia Orchestra and the Flonzaleys.

Miss Steeb, who has a gracious stage presence, also performed Daquin's "Coucou" at last evening's Aeolian recital, with more serious music, the Bach-Buconi D major fugue, and Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques." Her later pieces included two of Debussy's, the "Reflets" and "Jardins," watercolors both, pale tinted but persuasive, and a novelty of "Spinning Women" by Rhenée Baton, a present-day orchestra conductor in Paris.

Provincetown Players' New Bill.

The Provincetown Players last night offered their second program of the season in their theatre at 133 Macdougal Street. On the bill were two new plays and a revival. "Aria da Capo," by Edna St. Vincent Millay, and "Brothers" by Lewis Beach, were the new offerings, and "Not Smart," by Wilbur Steele, one of last year's plays, was acted in place of "The 'Eldest," which had been been announced.

WOOD MEN SHY AT CHICAGO.

Fear Gov. Lowden's Boom—Favor St. Louis for Convention.

While not making an open fight, friends and promoters of the Presidential boom of Major Gen. Leonard Wood are using all their influence to prevent the selection of Chicago as the city for next year's Republican National Convention. The National Committee will fix the time and place of the convention at a meeting in Washington on next Wednesday.

With Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois an avowed contender for the Republican nomination, friends of General Wood fear that if the convention is held on Governor Lowden's "home grounds" an atmosphere might be created which might sway the convention in his favor. They contend that in fairness the convention should be held in neutral territory, and are prepared to back the claim of St. Louis. It is unlikely that they will take the risk of making an open fight against Chicago in fear that they might suffer a defeat which would involve loss of prestige for their candidate.

Women for the first time will attend a meeting of the National Committee called for the purpose of issuing the call for a national convention. Mrs. John Glover South of Frankfort, Ky., head of the Women's Division of the Republican National Committee, and Miss Mary Garrett Hay of this city, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Women's Division, will go to Washington for the meeting, as will several other prominent Republican women. The meeting will be open.

It was announced yesterday that Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania and McKelvie of Nebraska would address the committee.

San Francisco and Asbury Park also have bid for the convention, but it was said last night that the fight really was between St. Louis and Chicago. Will H. Hays, Chairman of the Republican National Committee, will leave for Washington on Monday.

Lada at Carnegie Hall.

Lada, the latest of American pioneers in dancing, and the one on whom has descended their mantle, appeared alone on the stage of Carnegie Hall last evening, supported by Nahan Franko's orchestra in the pit. Tschaikowsky's "Pathetique," Shubert's "Unfinished" symphony, may be debatable ground, though other feet have trod their measures, but there was a positiveness in actual dancing to the "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales" of Ravel. Charles Skilton's "Indian Dance" brought a thrill of realism on both sides of the footlights, when the dancer herself, in full Indian war regalia, was greeted not only with hearty applause, but with an honest Indian yell.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

ACTORS' FUND THANKS

At a meeting of the BOARD OF TRUSTEES of the ACTORS' FUND held Thursday, December 4th, a resolution of thanks was voted to the business men of this city and the women for their splendid and self-sacrificing services rendered in behalf of the people of the stage in making December 5th a National Actors' Memorial Day, as an appreciation of the services of the theatrical profession rendered at all times for any worthy cause, and for making Memorial Day such a conspicuous success.

Thanks are also voted to the men and women who subscribed so liberally to this fund, for their patient indulgence, and for effectively filling 53 theatres in this city on this occasion.

Thanks were also voted to the theatrical managers and to all the artists, musicians and stage help who participated in the performances.

It was also resolved that as an appreciation on the part of the Board of Trustees of the Actors' Fund for all those who volunteered their services so unselfishly to help make that day a success, a special performance is to be given at one of our large theatres in January as a tribute of gratitude to them by the managers of New York and the members of the theatrical profession.

McBRIDE'S POLICY

THE extravagantly high premiums that are being charged for theatre tickets at various offices all over town discourages theatre going, hurts theatre management and therefore impels us to repeat our long established policy to our patrons.

Our fixed charge for service of fifty cents per ticket over box office prices is the cornerstone upon which our business was founded forty-six years ago, and we limit ourselves to that moderate amount.

A recent law fixes that amount as the standard. This was our practice long before the law.

With the high cost of living we appreciate the theatre-going public cannot afford unreasonable prices for amusement and we want our patrons to know that so far as McBride's is concerned there is now no higher cost of tickets over box office prices than heretofore.

We are the same people who started this business, father and sons, and we propose to continue to deserve the approval of the theatregoing public and the theatre management by standing for a square deal—a square deal to one and all alike—by making theatre going a real pleasure and not carrying with it a feeling of injustice in ticket buying.

Our policy is to stablize the business for the benefit of all.

EXPECT TO PREVENT LONGSHORE STRIKE

Coastwise Freight Handlers Understood to Have Agreed to Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5. — Coincident with an official statement that strikes had cost the Shipping Board $37,000,000 thus far during 1919 came the announcement today that the National Adjustment Board hoped to avert a strike of longshoremen intended to go into effect next week. This strike, if put into effect, would completely tie up all coastwise shipping, it was said.

Chairman W. Z. Ripley of the National Adjustment Board conferred today with representatives of the coastwise steamship companies and the longshoremen's unions. The longshoremen concerned are not those who struck recently in New York, but are those who handle freight from inbound and for outbound coasting vessels.

The demand of the longshoremen is for an equalization of wages all along the Atlantic coast from Maine to the Gulf. In certain Southern harbors, including Charleston and Savannah, they receive 40 cents an hour as contrasted with 65 cents in North Atlantic ports, such as New York and Philadelphia. The rate for Gulf ports is about the same as in New York.

It is said that from 6,000 to 7,000 men expect to stop work in New York if an adjustment is not made. About 500 to 600 would cease work in Philadelphia and as many in Boston. The proportion was declared to be the same in all Atlantic harbors.

However, while details were not announced by Chairman Ripley, it is understood that the men have consented to submit their demands to arbitration. The deep-sea longshoremen received 80 cents an hour under the settlement made with them.

"The serious economic waste involved in marine and ship yard strikes during the period of reconstruction has recently been investigated by the United States Shipping Board.

"Since the first of January it is estimated that strikes have cost the Shipping Board a total of $37 000 000. There are included marine and harbor strikes, longshoremen's strikes and shipyard strikes. These have occurred on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts, but the results of the coal strike are not included.

"There are not included losses by foreign or privately operated American vessels, nor indirect losses to the public due to interruption of regular movement of shipping. Among such indirect losses are those due to congestion in port and on inland transportation systems, spoilage of perishable cargo, and delays to supplies needed in this country and abroad.

"The marine strikes include that on New York Harbor craft, tying up some 600 boats, with approximately 16,000 men out for thirteen days. A further marine strike occurred in July with a general tieup of shipping on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts; some 25,000 men were out for about three weeks.

"A longshore strike in New York during October involved 40,000 to 50,000 men for about thirty days. A further longshore strike occurred at New Orleans in the same month, lasting thirty-one days.

"Among the 200 strikes in the shipyards, one of the largest was that in the Northern Pacific district, beginning in January, lasting for fifty days, and involving some 40,000 men. A further strike occurred in the San Francisco Bay and Southern district in October, lasted thirty days, and involved 35,000 men. A strike in the shipyards in the New York district began in October, lasted about thirty days, and involved some 20,000 men."

National Association Elects Officers —President Submits Report.

Vice Presidents—J. D. Ellsworth, American Telephone and Telegraph Company, New York; R. N. Fellows, Addressograph Company, Chicago; Mont H. Wright, John B. Stetson & Co., Philadelphia.

Secretary-Treasurer—John Sullivan, New York.

Directors—W. A. McDermid, Mennen Company, Newark? J. S. Wicherd, Mennen's Food Company, Boston; Don Francisco, California Fruit Growers' Exchange, Los Angeles; P. L. Thomson, Western Electric Company, New York; W. T. Chollar, Atlas Portland Cement Company, New York; W. H. Mansh, Burroughs Adding Machine Company, Detroit.

W. A. McDermid, President of the association, in his annual report submitted today, referred to the recent statement of George F. Lord, former advertising director of the du Pont interests. Mr. Lord in his statement said that in all investigations about to be started on the high cost of living it was inevitable that advertising would be attacked as one of the reasons for the high cost of marketing goods. Mr. Lord said there was an opportunity to defend advertising and to greatly advance it in the minds of the public and the nonadvertising concerns.

"In anticipation of some such possibility [illegible] your Directors have authorized a reserve fund to be set aside for the purpose of securing, if necessary, the data which will establish the economic aspects of advertising and which will enable the association [illegible] interests in the presentation of the true facts of the case."

Cut Off Cat's Tail; Fined $15.

Joseph Farrone, a fish dealer, of 179 First Avenue, was fined $15 by Magistrate Edgar V. Frothingham in Essex Market Court yesterday for cutting off a cat's tail. Farrone said that the cat was suffering from mange and that it was an Italian custom in such cases to hang the animal up by the neck and cut off its tail.

Are the Coal Operators Profiteering?

The amazing statement of ex-Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo that the profits of bituminous coal operators ran as high as 2,000 per cent. in 1917, and his implied charge that they still are profiteering at the expense of both the public and the miners, has started a pretty rumpus in the editorial columns of the nation's press. The United Mine Workers' Journal thinks that Mr. McAdoo's statement is vindication for the miners in their claim that the operators "could grant a substantial wage-increase out of their profits without increasing the price of the coal to the consumer." Mr. McAdoo's implications are false, reply the operators, and his "misleading statements and insinuations are the kind of stuff which Bolshevism breeds upon," while the Philadelphia Public Ledger, recalling a clause of the Revenue Act which makes it unlawful for a Treasury official or agent to divulge confidential information which comes to him in his official capacity, asks significantly, "Will William Gibbs McAdoo be able to run for the Presidency if he is in jail?"

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST for December 6th discusses the question as to whether the coal operators have been taking undue profits from the public, and presents opinions from all quarters bearing upon the subject.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The most interesting development of yesterday's stock session centred in a sharp rise of Southern Pacific in response to news that the Attorney General had decided to discontinue Government litigation against the railroad company over oil lands. The advance of 14 points in this stock immediately at the opening of the market stimulated some of the petroleum shares and speculation for the rise was extended among specialties. Shortly, however, considerable selling, presumably in the way of realizing, began in a broad list of stocks and afternoon dealings brought much price irregularity. Profit taking was not unexpected near the end of a week which had brought a persistent if moderate advance in the face of unfavorable events in industry and finance. And yet there were reasons why quotations might have been firm. Considering the day's price movements and those of preceding sessions, the assumption seems warranted that the market of late has acted more or less independently of outside occurrences. Inasmuch as prices had improved when the coal strike and Mexican situations appeared to be approaching critical points, it might have been expected that yesterday's more favorable news would at least have worked to postpone realizing sales. The release of Consular Agent Jenkins from a Mexican prison and reports that the coal strike was breaking up in some localities were received with relief in the Wall Street district at the same time that stocks disclosed more of a reactionary than a strengthening process. Call money was lent at 6 per cent. throughout the day.

The withdrawal of $10,000,000 gold from the Sub-Treasury for transfer to Buenos Aires, an unusually large amount for a single day, imparted a fresh sidelight to the foreign exchange situation. The gold is going out because the balance of trade in favor of the Argentine has carried the dollar down to a level in the Southern market where it is more profitable to send the metal than to remit exchange in payment for goods. We have plenty of gold, enough to lose many more millions without its loss being felt, and the acquisition of gold by the Argentine may be of considerable value in aiding sterling and franc exchange at Buenos Aires. The metal will add strength to Argentine reserves and may prove of advantage in furthering negotiations which that country is understood to be carrying on with England and France in respect to large credits for the purchase of raw material.

A story now familiar was repeated in the European exchanges. Sterling slid down rapidly from the start of business, under a great pressure of bills, until a new low record quotation of $3.84½ was recorded. The recovery was very slight. Francs fell 37 centimes and at 10.74 to the dollar for sight drafts the French unit of currency was worth nearly 10 cents less than before the outbreak of the war. Belgian, Italian and Swiss exchange reacted with the others, but Scandinavian rates, lately decidedly weak, recovered rather swiftly. The need for foreign credits, if the falling exchange market is to be stayed, has become more acutely evident this week than before, and yet it is the fact that less prospect of early steps to credit extension is evident in banking quarters than a month ago, or six months ago for that matter. Quite likely the absence of effort in the Senate to revive discussion of the Peace Treaty is an influence toward lethargy among bankers, but the more probable factor is the discouragement of Government participation in foreign trade matters which the Secretary of the Treasury included in his annual report.

The price of silver declined to 74d per ounce at London, an overnight recession of a full penny. This represented a secondary setback for the quotation since its recent bulge to 76d and the reaction which occurred thereafter to a point under 73d. Bullion merchants predict a rapidly fluctuating market which will be influenced by the demand from the Far East, coupled with discussion at Washington of possible measures to control silver supplies.

Another Exchange Break.

All of the allied exchanges fared very badly yesterday. Sterling was down nearly 6 cents, to $3.84½ at the low of the day and to $3.84¾ at the close; French francs were down 42 centimes, to a new low record of 10.74 for sight bills on Paris; Belgian francs sold at more than 10 francs to the dollar for the first time, and Italian lire went to a new low record of 12¾ lire for a dollar. To say that the market was demoralized would hardly be to speak correctly. This was not the case, so far as the temper of the market was concerned. Rather, it was a sort of "silent panic," where values melted away, but with none getting especially excited over the happening.

Railway Wage Compromise.

News that the conference between Director General of Railroads Hines and heads of the railway brotherhoods was continuing, with rumors current in labor and political circles that a compromise would be reached on the question of time and one-half for overtime, was variously received in Wall Street. In some quarters the suggestion that a compromise might result was taken to indicate that Mr. Hines is exerting himself to clear up this phase of Federal control prior to the return of the roads at the end of the year. On the other hand, there were those who stuck to their belief that the return of the carriers might be delayed beyond Jan. 1, 1920, and failed to consider the conference as a hopeful sign.

Preparing for Private Operation.

Although contradictory rumors are continuously circulating throughout the financial district regarding the relinquishment of Federal control, the corporate managers of a large majority of the local roads are getting ready to operate them. Traffic managers have been appointed in many instances, and the corporate managers who have kept in close touch with the everyday affairs of their individual lines are preparing to resume active management whenever the return is announced. Special committees of several of the representative railroad organizations have been working on the problem for some weeks, and accountants are almost ready to plunge back into the routine of inter-road accounting. Several of the consolidations effected by Federal managers will probably be adopted in modified form and a great volume of unnecessary work will probably be eliminated. How far these reforms will go cannot be estimated now and will only be decided after they are tried out when the roads are privately operated again.

Rail Shares Hold Steady.

As a group, the railroad shares were dominated to some extent yesterday by the advance in Southern Pacific. It was plain shortly after the opening that other rails than S. P. were being bid up in sympathy with the movement of that stock, and later selling was plainly for professional account, the latter having taken advantage of the bulge for easy profits. The late news that the Mexican situation has been materially improved found but little response in this group. On the whole the rails displayed more irregularity than in recent days, although there were fractional net gains in a majority of the issues.

***

Mercantile Marine Shares Favored.

In the shipping group, the Mercantile Marine common and preferred shares found favor with many, presumably on the continued rumors that favorable dividend action on the preferred could be looked for at the coming dividend meeting of directors. On a much smaller turnover, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies Lines also moved into higher ground, while United Fruit gained more than a half point.

New Buying.

While it is undeniably true that the recent forward movement in the stock market is attributable in part to short covering, brokerage houses report a new buying element in the market which has ridden along on the upturn. This is especially true in the case of houses having Western connections, substantial orders having come into the market from this quarter during the last three days. In consequence of this some commission houses are finding their loan accounts expanding again. This, however, does not represent the condition throughout the financial district, for many of the brokerage houses are lenders rather than borrowers. There are few who will predict how much power this new buying will develop. At any rate it is being pointed to as an evidence that the public has plenty of money and is inclined to re-enter the market, firm in the belief that prices are low.

Columbia Graphophone Gains.

There was some spirited buying of Columbia Graphophone shares yesterday and a level of 71 was touched at one time during the day. The close was 1¼ points below this mark, but even then represented a net gain of 1½ points for the trading session. There is an attractive dividend that goes with the stock now, amounting to 25 cents in cash and 1-20 of a share in stock. Reports are current that the Columbia Graphophone and the Victor Talking Machine Company may merge. It is pointed out that such a consolidation would be to the advantage of both concerns as it would bring together two of the dominating companies in the field.

Mexican Issues Strong.

Real buoyancy came to the stock market when word was flashed on the news ticker that Consular Agent Jenkins had been released by the Mexican Government. The entire list moved forward, but the particular point of activity was in the shares of those companies which are operating in Mexico. Pan American Petroleum and Mexican Petroleum were two of the foremost, the former gaining 3 points and the latter 3½. It was the sentiment in the financial district that the release of Jenkins marked the passing of the present crisis in the relations between Mexico and the United States.

Mexican Silver Shipments.

The raising of the export tax on Mexican silver from 7 to 12 per cent. will probably result in a higher price for the metal, according to one mining man whose company is a large producer of silver. It was not expected, however, that this tax alone would cause any curtailment in Mexican production. On the other hand an increase in the demands for silver by the Mexican Government would reduce the supply which normally comes out of Mexico. It has been reported that Carranza would buy more heavily of the white metal. This would be paid for at the prevailing price for silver but it would mean that the silver shortage would be emphasized.

French Francs.

At the low price for French francs yesterday the depreciation was almost exactly an even 10 cents. In other words, against a par value of 19 3-10 cents, francs yesterday were worth only 9 310 cents each. To figure it around another way, the amount of banknotes outstanding at the Bank of France, as reported yesterday by cable, was 37,827,685,000 francs, worth, normally, $7,300,743,205. If these same francs were to be converted into dollars at the rate of exchange obtaining yesterday, their value would be only $3,517,974,705.

Exports.

Exports continue to move in great volume, especially the exports of cotton and grain. On the week the exports of cotton amounted to 157,981 bales, making 2,085,223 bales since Aug. 1. Grain exports, according to Bradstreet's, amounted to 8,534,146 bushels of wheat and wheat flour and 15,520 bushels of corn. The cotton exports were less than half of what they were the week previous, but the grain exports showed a considerable increase. The arrivals of American cotton at Liverpool during the week totaled 148,000 bales, an exceptionally large amount.

"Easy" Money.

After the exciting performances the money market has been seeing for the last several months, the current week has been mild and pleasing. Only on one day did the rate go above 6 per cent., and that was on Monday, when the renewal figure was placed at 7 per cent. Later that same day it got down to 6 per cent., and that, with the exception of a few minutes on Wednesday, when loans were negotiated at 5½ per cent., was the only rate quoted thereafter. All of yesterday's business, which carries over to Monday, was done at 6 per cent.

American Candy Company
Preferred Stock
With Right to Purchase Common Stock

The Candy business—always a consistent money maker, with a record remarkably free from failure—is today enjoying unparalleled prosperity. Prohibition has given great stimulus to the naturally increasing consumption of Sweets. It is estimated that approximately a billion dollars was spent by the American public during 1918. Altogether, no other industry enjoys a brighter outlook for continued high earnings. American Candy Company is one of the leaders in this field. Safety of principal, coupled with liberal interest yield, makes the preferred shares of this concern an unusually sound and attractive investment.

For a limited time purchasers of the preferred stock are offered the right to buy common stock at a low underwriting price. Application will be made shortly to list both classes of stock on the Chicago and St. Louis Stock Exchanges. Write for particulars.

CASH REQUIREMENTS OF I. R. T. MAY BE MET

Attitude of City Administration May Permit Raising of $4,000,000 to $5,000,000.

ESTIMATES SCALED DOWN

In banking quarters it was said yesterday that because of improvement in the attitude of the City Administration toward a readjustment of the present financial difficulties of the local traction companies cash requirements of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company as of the end of this year, which amount to between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, will probably be raised.

Recently there have been strong intimations in the financial district that holders of Interborough-Metropolitan 4½ per cent. bonds would get the money together and avoid serious financial consequences. This has been denied by members of the protective committee representing those bonds, but the rumor persists, and it was admitted yesterday that while it was not based upon any actual movement which has been started along such lines, the general outlook has improved to such an extent that something will probably be done.

Much significance is attached to the scaling down of the estimates of cash requirements of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company at the close of the current year. At first the amount estimated was $12,000,000. Later on this was decreased to $8,000,000, and the report of Day & Zimmerman, Inc., engineers who went over the position of the company at the instigation of the bankers' committee for the first and refunding mortgage 5 per cent. gold bonds, set down the Dec. 31 cash requirements at $5,000,000. Since that report the amount has been cut down to $4,000,000

Between now and the time that the cash must be raised there are three full weeks, and it is expected in authoritative quarters that the actual requirement may be decreased even more by arrangements which may be made regarding the extension of minor claims against the company which fall due at the turn of the year.

It is even possible, it is said, that the company may be able to weather the Jan. 1, 1920, date without aid from the junior bondholders. If the Interborough-Metropolitan bondholders advance funds to the company it is understood that such action will be contingent upon the attitude of the City Administration regarding fare increases. It is hoped that this attitude will undergo considerable change in the next three weeks.

In some quarters attention was drawn yesterday to the fact that the Interborough in 1903 leased the properties of the old Manhattan Railway Company for a period of 999 years. Since that lease went into effect the operating company has added material improvements and extensions to that property which serves a fair share of the electorate of the City of New York. In the event that the Manhattan Company should be returned to the holders of its stocks and bonds the latter would operate it as a separate concern, and thousands of persons in New York who have come to depend upon the extensions made by the Interborough would be seriously inconvenienced.

That something will be done to prevent such an occurrence has been apparent for several days in the strong tone of local traction securities on the New York Stock Exchange. Stocks have registered material advances, and bonds have made heavy gains on buying which has been broad and apparently for good account.

Gaston, Williams & Wigmore Earnings.

Gaston, Williams & Wigmore for the six months ended Oct. 31 report a surplus, after charges and taxes, of $10,572. This is equivalent to 3½ cents a share on the 300,000 oustanding shares of no par value. It is reported that the chaotic condition in foreign exchange contributed to the poor showing, as did the lack of shipping and the longshoremen's strike. The surplus on Oct. 31 stood at $1,481,510.

$10,000,000 IN GOLD GOES TO ARGENTINA

Shipment to Pay, It Is Said, for Goods Which Will Come to the United States.

FILLING DEMAND FOR WOOL

Banking Circles See South American Country Building Up Its Gold Reserves.

Gold coin to the amount of $10,000,000 was withdrawn from the Sub-Treasury for shipment to the Argentina in payment, it is understood, for goods which that country either has started toward the United States or is about to start. The goods it was said yesterday, consist mainly of wool, which is destined to the New England mills and will add considerably to the season's supply. The banking operation of shipping the gold was said to have been undertaken by several banks, with the Chase National Bank one of the larger participants and the Equitable Trust Company and the Columbia Trust Company heavily interested.

The state of the foreign exchange market at present warrants the shipment of gold to Argentina in settlement of trade balances. Further, at this time of year exports of Argentina are usually heavy, and with the big American demand for Argentine wool now beginning to be satisfied, it is considered likely that the exchange rate on Argentina will continue to stand against the United States for several months. This bankers say, will probably result in the shipment of a large amount of gold during the next few months.

The shipment of gold to the Argentina, however, has an especial significance at this time, quite apart from whatever influence the exchange market and the balance of trade may have. In local banking circles the opinion is entertained by some that the movement is designed primarily to allow the great South American country to build up its gold reserves so as to be able better to serve European countries in the matter of granting credits with which the Europeans may purchase South American goods. Germany, according to cabled advices, has already received a credit in Argentina of $100,000,000, and negotiations are understood to be now in process of negotiation whereby England and France will receive a joint credit of $200,000,000.

Argentina is not a large producer of gold and its stocks of the metal are not unusually large. According to the latest available figures, those contained in the Director of the Mint's report, as of Dec. 31, 1917, the total amount of money gold in Argentina was a little more than $500,000,000, with an additional $50,000,000 owned but held in other countries.

During 1918 virtually no gold went from the United States to Argentina, but in the first nine months of the current year the exports have amounted to $32,960,000. It is not known here exactly how much gold the country received from other sources, but it is thought that the amount was relatively small, so that at the present time the total Argentin supply of money gold is believed to be roughly, in the neighborhood of $400,000,000.

Against this there is a large volume of paper currency outstanding, so that the gold position is not strong enough, it is thought, to allow Argentina to extend all the credits Europe is apt to ask unless the gold stocks are built up. Thus American bankers are willing to see the metal exported to Argentina in considerable quantity, because by this movement it is expected that part of the burden of credit extension can be shifted to other shoulders. The stocks of gold in the United States are so large that no apprehension is entertained here over the present outflow. Some leading bankers have stated the opinion that upwards of $500,000,000, and possibly even more, could be spared to other countries provided the metal were to be used scientifically in serving as the basis for credit.

WOOL MARKET ACTIVE.

Prices Firm and Smaller Markets Fairly Firmer.

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: "The market has continued fairly active this week, but more so on the smaller lines of wool, especially scoureds. Prices are firm except for the low crossbred grades, which are still easy. Contracting of the finer clips is reported from Nevada on a basis of about $1.60 or a little better, landed Boston. The primary markets are firm with a slightly stronger tendency. Manufacturers report little change in the situation."

Redfield Joins Wall Street Firm.

William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce, has become associated with H. P. Wilson in the investment security business at 50 Broad Street. The latter has been in this business for fifteen years, having conducted it in his own name. Mr. Redfield will become a full partner on Dec. 10 and the firm will thereafter be known as Redfield & Wilson. The firm will deal in public utility and industrial securities and will also conduct reorganizations and consolidations of going industrial concerns.

ESTABLISHED 1876

If you are looking for a safe and permanent investment we believe this 7 per cent stock will appeal to you. It is an old established business. The net earnings available for dividends after the Federal tax and all other taxes were paid during the past four years have averaged nearly four times the dividends on the preferred stock outstanding. W. L. Douglas name is known throughout the world. The trade mark is a very valuable asset worth millions of dollars, and is the property of the stockholders. It is one of the most valuable trade marks in the United States.

You would make no mistake to order at once as many shares of this stock as you can afford to buy, price $100.00 per share. If you care for more particulars fill out the coupon and mail at once. Application will be made to have this stock listed upon the stock exchange.

This company owns and operates 106 W. L. Douglas shoe stores located in the large cities. W. L. Douglas shoes are also sold by over 9,000 shoe dealers in the United States.

The past few years our shoes have been more extensively advertised than ever before. Stamping W. L. Douglas name and the retail price on the bottom of the shoes before they leave the factory has saved the wearers millions of dollars, and guarantees them the best shoes in style, comfort and service that can be produced for the price.

A great demand for W. L. Douglas shoes has sprung up in leading countries in Europe and Asia. Our domestic business has increased so that our sales have actually doubled in four years. In 1915 the sales were $8,069,628.41 and in 1918 $16,660,343.46. The past six months' business was at the rate of over $20,000,000 per year.

In common with other great businesses we need additional capital to meet the urgent requirements of increasing domestic and foreign trade. The new conditions of business also demand more capital. The cost of labor and material has nearly doubled so that twice the amount of capital necessary under the old business conditions is now required.

ESTIMATE ON CROP HITS COTTON PRICES

RALLIES IN THE AFTERNOON

Trade Not Fully Convinced of the Accuracy of Latest Figures, It Is Said.

Almost from the start yesterday's cotton market was heavy and reactionary. There was a good deal of selling by the speculative interests, and the trade did not supply the usual amount of buying orders, with the inevitable result that prices dropped rapidly in the forenoon, and, while they rallied somewhat in the afternoon, the range for all months other than January never did get up to the level at which the market had ended on the previous day.

The distant months were under especial pressure. December held rather well, and at one time there was a sharp upward spurt in January which carried the option up about a half cent. But the months from March on, even including those which represent next year's crop, were consistently weak throughout the day.

The selling at the start was largely influenced by the National Ginners' Association estimate of this year's crop, which placed the figure at well above 11,000,000 bales and which was entirely out of keeping with what the trade had been expecting. This report, which came out on Thursday too late to have any influence on the market, was made the basis for a concerted attack on values yesterday morning, and before the movement had run its course July was down almost a full cent, May was down 83 points, and March was off 75 points. December and January were off 40 and 50 points, respectively.

That the trade was not entirely satisfied as to the accuracy of the ginners' estimate was evidenced by the subsequent recovery in all months. This recovery occurred in the middle of the afternoon and took the list up about 50 points on the average. The average guess for the final crop is somewhere between 10,600,000 and 10,800,000 bales, and if not more than that is realized there should be no reason to expect any very severe scaling down of values in the early part of next year.

Exports for the week fell off considerably from the high record of the previous week. The total, with yesterday's clearances added, was 157,981 bales, against 320,595 bales last week, 246,058 bales the week before and 206,146 bales for the week of Nov. 14. However, while this week's exports have been less than half of what they were last week, the total is considerably larger than the season's average.

Stock and Bonds Advance When Government Drops Oil Land Suit.

The news that Attorney General Palmer had decided that the Government would not appeal from the decision of the Los Angeles court in the suit of the Government against the Southern Pacific Company, involving title to 162,000 acres of oil land in California, and that the suit would not be continued, made the stocks and bonds of the company outstanding features of the market yesterday.

At the opening it was reported that almost a third of the brokers on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange were crowded around the Southern Pacific post to execute orders. As the result of this crowding the ticker tape reporters sent out three sets of opening quotations. These were printed in letters on the tape as follows: SP—Opened—Twenty thousand—One Hundred and Four to One Hundred and Eight and Five Hundred at One Hundred and One and Two Hundred at One Hundred and Nine." From then on throughout the day trading in Southern Pacific common stock moved at a rapid pace, with a net gain being shown at the close of 11⅝ points.

The turnover in the shares totaled 143,600, which was the greatest for any single issue during the session, while the bonds were a feature of the market also, the turnover amounting to $846,000 and the net gain being 7¼ points.

The oil lands embraced in the action which has been dropped by the Government are considered as probably the most extensive in California, covering some 162,000 acres.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The coal shortage is beginning to find reflection in production lines, according to Dun's weekly review of business conditions, which says, in part:

> A sharp reminder of the existing industrial drawbacks has come with this week's rationing of supplies of coal, which has not resulted from any wartime exigency, as in the Winter of 1917-18, but from the controversy between bituminous operators and miners that failed of settlement after lengthy negotiations. The effects upon general business of an appreciably curtailed output and distribution of an indispensable raw material have not been more plainly mirrored in the partial or complete stoppage of work at various important manufacturing establishments, and in the growing shortage of goods at the very period when one of the most pressing needs is for greater production with which to halt the continued rise of markets.

Bradstreet's says:

> Reports as to trade distribution and those reflecting industrial conditions as affected by the bituminous coal strike show even more of a contrast than has been hitherto noted. In he former, buying both at wholesale and retail is still eager, only cheerful reports emanate from most large centres as to early holiday buying and complaints as yet come mainly from those who have not been able to secure adequate supplies of wanted goods. On the other hand the industrial situation has retrograded rapidly, the pinch of want of coal has caused many shutdowns especially in East and West Central States and zero weather has caused much suffering to Prairie State communities whose fuel supplies have been reduced or disappeared. The country west of the Alleghanies in fact has been practically put on a 75 per cent. or lower basis as to time worked and an increasingly large number of industrial plants, steel mills, furnaces and factories have given up the struggle and closed down completely.

COURT INQUIRES INTO A GRAND JURY LEAK

Warns Body Investigating Hoboken Commissioners That Rumors Must Stop.

ADMITS BEING APPROACHED

Juryman Tells of Talk with Jersey City Official Concerning City Contract.

So persistent have become the rumors that outside influences were at work among the members of the Grand Jury in Hudson County, N. J., that is now considering the case against the City Commissioners of Hoboken who are charged with having padded the playground payroll just before the city election, that Supreme Court Justice Francis J. Swayze began an inquiry yesterday to find out how Grand Jury secrets leaked. It was reported that on Tuesday the Grand Jury stood 14 to 7 to indict, but that instead of handing in the indictments it yesterday moved to reconsider the matter.

After a long talk with Fred E. Tilden, the foreman, the Justice called the jury together and told them frankly that there were so many rumors about that it was time some action was taken to stop the leak from the Grand Jury room. All the jurymen were present with the exception of Eugene Huberti of Union Hill. At first the jurymen denied that they had been approached, but Justice Swayze told them that he had learned from the foreman that some had been approached. He mentioned William Gotthardt, Edward Zieger, and William S. Brown as having been spoken to on the subject of the Grand Jury proceedings.

Tilden told the Justice that Gotthardt had said to him in the presence of a clerk that he had been approached by a Harry Moore, a Jersey City Commissioner. He quoted Gotthardt as having said that Moore had mentioned a $3,000 contract which Gotthardt had just obtained from the city, and followed this up with a mention of the work of the Grand Jury, and informed the juryman that "we know things that go on in the Grand Jury room as soon as you do."

"I will admit, your Honor, that Commissioner Moore mentioned to me that Grand Jury secrets leaked out," said Gotthardt, "but I did not connect that remark in any way with his statement that he had just given me a $3,000 city contract."

"Nevertheless," said the Court, "I hold you blamable, as you ought to have seen that Commissioner Moore was trying to connect your position as a Grand Juryman with the contract you had just received."

Mr. Braun explained that a stranger had spoken to him about the Grand Jury, but he had shut him off, telling him to ask the Court. Zeigler also told the Justice of having been approached.

Later Huberti, the absent juryman, came into court. He told the court that William J. Fanning, a clerk in his office, had asked him whether he understood thoroughly the true status of the case against the Hoboken Commissioners. He had replied that he had a thorough knowledge of the case.

"I did not know what commissioner he was interested in," said Huberti. "He made no further remarks on the subject."

Justice Swayze intends to continue his inquiry and he will issue a subpoena for Fanning, it was said.

SUPREME AUTHORITY DENIED

Power of Board President Over School Superintendent Challenged.

The Public Education Association gave out a statement yesterday challenging the contention of counsel for the Board of Education that the President of the Board had the power to suspend any employe in the public school system, including the Superintendent. It is the contention of the Association that the vote of the Board as a body is necessary for the suspension of the Superintendent and that the Superintendent must take the initiative in the dismissal of subordinates.

"It is difficult to imagine how a single individual on a board of more or less political appointees, which the President of the Board of Education undoubtedly is, could exercise such an arbitrary and tremendous power for political reasons or hold it in reserve for the purpose of coercion," the statement says. "Aside, then, from the fatal confusion that would result in the orderly running of the schools from day to day, because of such a dual control created for the purpose of meeting an extremely remote contingency, the method of handling such a contingency which counsel defends would seem to be improper and dangerous."

SETS ASIDE HURLEY WILL.

Supreme Court Rules Restaurant Man Was Incompetent.

Timothy Hurley, a partner of John Dunstan in Jack's restaurant, was incompetent at the time of his death and his will is invalid, under a ruling by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court yesterday. The higher court reverses a decision by the Surrogate, who set aside a verdict by a jury that Mr. Hurley was not of sound mind. The Appellate Division refuses probate to the will and the estate will be distributed among two brothers in Ireland and a sister in Brookline, Mass.

Mr. Hurley made his will some time before his death in a sanitarium at Stamford, Conn., in 1917, giving the residuary estate of about $40,000 to his "natural sons," James and Timothy Hurley, Jr., whose mother was Mrs. Jennie Brew. Under the New York laws the legatees named, who are described as "natural sons," are not heirs at law.

TO HOLD RIOT INQUIRY.

Police Seeking Hollis Invaders Who Attacked Carpenters.

A John Doe investigation will be commenced Monday in the Jamaica Police Court to determine the identity of the forty or fifty alleged union workers who, it is charged, drove to Hollis, Queens, in automobiles on Thursday afternoon and attacked 100 carpenters and lathers employed there. Two of the alleged raiders were captured, and the Jamaica police are attempting to round up the others.

The police obtained the license numbers of two of the automobiles that carried the attacking party to Hollis, and the owners of these machines will be among those brought before the Magistrate. One of them is said to be a wealthy resident of Forest Hills.

FAVORS ANTI-DUMPING BILL.

House Committee Reports Act to Protect Industries.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—An anti-dumping bill, designed to protect American manufacturers was ordered favorably reported today by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Sale of foreign-made goods in this country at a price less than in the country of their manufacture would be prohibited under the bill, and violations would be punishable by fine and imprisonment.

House leaders plan to call the measure up tomorrow.

Hirshfield Victory Pleases Hylan.

Mayor Hylan yesterday sent a letter to Corporation Counsel Burr congratulating him on the decision of the Court of Appeals that Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield has the right to investigate the financial condition of the Board of Education.

COMMODITIES PRICES

Further advances in several of the more important foodstuffs, notably flour and eggs, featured the transactions in the commodities market this week, as reflected by Dun's list. The added strength of metals and the weakness of the hide market were other features of the list, which showed 76 changes, including 44 advances. Last week's list, with 65 changes, contained 39 upward revisions.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities this week. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

An advance of 25 cents a barrel, bringing it up to $13.50, was registered here this week by Spring patent flour, and Winter straights also were higher. There were no changes in hams or bacon. In the Chicago provisions market there was an equal division between the advances and the declines. Live hogs, live sheep, and mess pork went up, while live beef, Middle Western lard, and short ribs were all lower. The best butter advanced slightly in the local market for dairy products, but the State dairy grade was a bit weaker in price. The various grades of cheese were again unchanged, but depleted supplies, said to be due to the reduction of transportation growing out of the coal strike, resulted in sharp advances in eggs. Nearby fancy stock went up 4 cents a dozen to $1.02, while the best Westerns advanced 8 cents. The latter have moved up 14 cents in the last two weeks, this figure being the margin of excess between this year's current price and last year's. The fancy eggs are 9 cents a dozen higher than at this time a year ago.

Other foodstuffs changes included a decline in Irish salt mackerel, a drop in choice red kidney beans, and an advance in rutabaga turnips. Changes in the fruits for the week consisted only of another rise in raisins. Brazilian coffees were higher, as were nutmegs. Cloves and black Singapore pepper declined. All of the grains changes were advances, they affecting corn, oats and rye. The paint list showed a drop in English vermilion and a rise in white lead. Chinese and Japanese raw silks advanced sharply.

The metals list showed a solid rise in pig iron and an almost similar situation in billets. Wire rods and steel bars were higher at Pittsburgh, and there was also a rise in furnace coke. The changes in the minor metals consisted of advances in antimony and spelter and declines in lake and electrolytic coppers and in tin. While the quoted prices were nominal, the hide list showed a solid drop for the week. The listed leathers were unchanged at the recent decline.

Of the 14 changes contained in the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils, 9 were advances. Important features were lacking. The price of Brazilian crude rubber was lower, and the same was true of turpentine and hemp. Common Hudson River brick advanced.

While the week brought record prices to several constructions of unfinished cotton goods, it was less generous to the burlaps. Both light and heavy standard goods were cheaper in the local market, largely as a result of the lack of domestic demand and the withdrawal of South American buying support. The decline was also fostered by the knowledge that lower prices are being quoted on burlaps to arrive in this market for some time to come.

SEES AMERICANS AS RIVALS.

Sir Hamar Greenwood Calls Us "Fiercest Trade Competitors."

LONDON, Dec. 4 (via Ottawa).—Americans were described as the "fiercest and most efficient" trade competitors of the British by Sir Hamar Greenwood in an address today at a luncheon given by Major Gen. Sir Newton Moore in honor of the appointment of Sir Hamar as Secretary of the Government's Overseas Trade Committee. There had never been in Great Britain a settled policy regarding trade development, he said, and he believed a very small expenditure of money would result in a large development of empire trade.

Colonel Amery, Under Secretary for the Colonies, said it was most important that financial control remain in British hands, adding that if American capital went to Canada it meant more Canadian capital for developing other portions of the empire.

Some Funny Things Happen.

That humor a-plenty is on tap these days in the big retail dry goods stores is vouched for by an executive of one of them, and yesterday he cited an instance to prove his assertion. Recently, he said, he was standing near a counter in the toy department, when his attention was attracted by a girl who was trying to interest a shopper in a game in which movable letters were formed into simple words and sentences. In demonstrating it the clerk worked out the sentence, "Oh, see the puppy," but she spelled the last word "pupey." When she held the board up for the shopper to see, the latter smiled, told her that she had spelled "puppy" wrong, and went on. For an instant, according to the executive, the girl glared after the retreating shopper. Then she turned to the next clerk and asked: "Say, Miss M., how do you spell 'puppy'?" The latter, having her own troubles with a customer, did not answer. The first girl turned back, frowning, when suddenly a happy thought struck her. She quickly changed some of the letters, and, with a satisfied smile, laid the board down, to wait for the next customer. After a moment the executive edged over and looked at it. This is what he read: "Oh, see the dog."

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday—6 per cent. for the best names.
Wednesday—6 per cent. for the best names.
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Coal Scarcity and Sweaters.

Remembering the demand for sweaters that sprang up during the heatless days of 1917, the manufacturers of such sweaters are bending their best efforts toward increasing their production for the present emergency. The sweater, it seems, is a popular garment in the home or in traveling when there is no heat to be had. The manufacturers report heavier business than usual from centres where the coal famine has been felt to a severe degree. With regulations against the unnecessary use of heat becoming general, the manufacturers see even a larger call for their garments.

Irregular Yarn Shipments Hurt.

Not the least of the many annoying things that manufacturers of women's novelty sweaters have to put up with these days are the irregular deliveries of yarns they are getting. Not only does this make it impossible to tell a buyer even approximately when he will get his goods, but it was said yesterday to add to the cost of production. This, it was said, was due to the necessity of shifting the machines frequently, in order to accommodate various kinds of yarns as they come from the spinners. Some of them, it was further said, are often idle while waiting for yarns. In both cases, it was pointed out, a maximum output was made impossible, and the unit cost of production was increased in consequence.

Unapproachable Quotas.

Agreeing to the general virtues of the commission plan of payment for store employes, the actual operation of such plans was criticised yesterday by a store executive because the quotas established are generally "unapproachable." He stated that if a quota is honestly made for the purpose of inducing the salesperson to his or her best sales effort, it should be within the reach of the average person. Instead of this, he said, the quotas adopted in many instances are so high that they are rarely reached except during the holiday season and then only by a few. Such a system, in his opinion, tends to destroy any good impression that might otherwise be established by the payment of commissions.

Nervous Over Styles.

While the public's reception of clothing prices for next Spring occupies the foreground of attention among manufacturers, almost as much concern is felt over the styles that have been designed for that period. Despite the attempt of the manufacturers to simplify the models for Spring, they are hampered in their efforts by the desire which they created last season for extreme effects. The demand for fantastic garments has not died down out of town, and it seems to be true that the more novel a style the better chances it has of selling. If there should be a slip-up on prices and men should refuse to pay them, the manufacturers see their difficulties complicated by the style problem.

Scarfs in High Favor.

Without even the spur of skating, though the prospects for it may look good, there has been a large business done in sport scarfs. These are principally made of soft wool with brushed surfaces, although some are also offered in mohair and camel's hair cloth. Sport, and the so-called pastel, shades are most popular. The manufacturers are now engaged in producing most elaborate effects which go even beyond the belted and pocketed designs that have been introduced with considerable success. The new styles, it seems, will offer a variety of trimming, so that the scarfs will practically enter the field of finished garments.

Gray Goods Sell Better.

More snap was visible in the demand for gray goods in this market yesterday than on Thursday, but the aggregate volume of cloths disposed of was small when judged by recent standards. The bulk of the goods sold was for delivery in the next thirty to sixty days. Twenty cents was paid for 38½-inch 64-60s, and 60-48s in the same width brought 18 cents. Bids of 23 cents for 39-inch 68-72s were unsuccessful, from all accounts, sellers asking half a cent more for the goods. Reports were current of sales of 39-inch 80-squares at 31 cents, which, if true, established another new high record selling price for a print-cloth. Five-yard sheetings brought 18 cents here yesterday, with sellers holding out for 16 cents for 5.50s. Buyers were offering a quarter of a cent less. The clothing styles again had a good day at full prices.

Silk Hoarding May Check Demand.

Manufacturers in the silk trade are plainly anxious over the effect of reports of immense quantities of raw material at present stored in local warehouses. Some profess to see signs already that buyers will hold off their purchases, with the purpose of toppling over prices built on what appears to be a false scarcity of raw material. Once the word gets around that stocks computed at 100,000 bales, which amounts to four months' supply, are held here, it is felt that buyers may be disinclined to order at the present price range. On the other hand, some representative sellers are discounting what such information will produce in the way of results. Their contention is that the supply mentioned is heavier than usual at the present time simply because the business taken is heavier. In other words, they say a large part of the material represents orders in hand.

Hard Coal Badly Wanted.

Domestic sizes of hard coal continue in strong demand throughout the East. Saward's Journal will say today, while from the Middle West there is a particularly urgent call because the long shut-down of the bituminous mines has resulted in a serious shortage of household as well as steam coal. Every available substitute is being resorted to, and retailers whose stocks of soft coal have been depleted are making frantic efforts to secure anthracite. As yet they have received no assistance from the Government, but many believe that if the bituminous strike lasts it is only a question of time when the Fuel Administration will order a heavy tonnage of hard coal diverted west. The more the bituminous situation is studied, the more certain it seems that it will be a long time before the trade gets back into its normal channels.

Platinum Prices Go Higher.

There seems to be no end to the rise in the cost of platinum. Figures quoted here yesterday set it at $155 an ounce for soft metal, $165 for that containing 5 per cent. of iridium, and $175 an ounce for that containing 10 per cent. of the hardening metal. These figures represent a general advance of $10 an ounce over the prices recently current in this market, and every indication is said to point to further increases before very long. All grades of platinum are in short supply here, the so-called 10 per cent. platinum being especially hard to get because of the marked shortage of iridium. Some sellers cannot supply hard platinum at all for this reason. As for business in finished jewelry, the demand is very active and stocks are dwindling rapidly. There is little doubt, however, that they will be able to last out the season, and, to this extent at least, the effect of the jewelry workers' strike will not be felt seriously. A feature of the current demand is that larger and more expensive pieces are being called for than ever before.

POSTPONE RENT ORDINANCE.

Measure to Curb Profiteers Goes Over in Welfare Committee.

At a hearing held yesterday before the General Welfare Committee of the Board of Aldermen on the ordinance proposed by Alderman Clarence Y. Palitz to curb rent profiteers, Nathan Hirsh, Chairman of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering, declared that such a measure would help materially in remedying the situation. The ordinance provides that the owner of an apartment or tenement shall take out a license which will be revoked if its terms are not lived up to. Landlords, Mr. Hirsh declared, are not profiteering so much as lessees who sub-lease the apartments.

"Mr. Hirsh has told only part of the story," said Alderman Palitz. "There is a vastly greater sale of leases than there is of real estate in the city. I know of one instance where a lease changed hands ten times, and there was a jump in rent on each occasion."

At the close of an executive session at which the members of the committee considered, besides the Palitz ordinance, another relating to the licensing of Curb brokers, which died in committee, and another prohibiting steamships from discharging oil into the rivers and harbors, the Welfare Committee announced that it had decided to postpone action on the Palitz ordinance until next Friday. Some of the members of the committee thought it probable that the Palitz ordinance would not be voted out in time for the present Board of Aldermen to vote on it.

TOLEDO STREET CARS AGAIN IN OPERATION

TOLEDO, Ohio, Dec. 5.—The cars of the Toledo Railways & Light Company were returned from Michigan to the streets of the city this afternoon at 4:30, after nearly four weeks' absence.

They were received with wide approbation by the citizens. The movement over the various routes began at a time when the heavy rush of the day demands quick transportation. By the time the office buildings and downtown stores emptied their throngs of workers into the streets cars were clanging along the rails. Crowds of humanity struggled to board the vehicles.

There was much good-natured badinage indulged in after the noon hour when the first cars were sighted coming up the principal streets, and occupants of the skyscrapers crowded to the windows to watch the procession as it made its way to the barns. At 4:30 o'clock about 225 cars were put in operation.

Owing to many motormen and conductors having taken employment elsewhere since the cars were taken off the streets on Nov. 8, the traction officials could not man all the cars they wished tonight. They declared, however, that they expected to have 350 cars in operation tomorrow on the former schedule.

Notwithstanding the return of the cars, the bus lines did a thriving business. One large line, which operates through a heavily populated district, reduced its fares from 10 cents to 5 cents today. Its officials declared it would continue in competition with the traction company. Many of the smaller bus lines ceased to operate after the noon hour.

When the cars were placed in operation they were neatly cleaned and heaters were in operation. Passengers were apprised of this condition in advance and chose the cars rather than the cold automobiles.

With the resumption of the urban service the interurban cars also began making their way into the city. Since the street cars were taken off the interurbans have stopped at the city limits.

Merchants and manufacturers welcomed with delight the return of the cars, the former especially, in view of the heavy holiday trade now impending

Mayor Cornell Scrieber presented two commissions for the approval of Federal Judge John M. Killits, who will assist the city and the traction company in framing two franchise drafts. One commission is composed of leading business men favorable to a modified form of the Taylor plan, while the other is out for municipal ownership and is composed largely of union labor leaders.

Connecticut Mills Grant Increase.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., Dec. 5.—Wage increases to correspond with those given elsewhere in the textile industry were announced at the American Thread Company's plant this afternoon. About 2,700 persons are benefited. Similar increases are being made virtually by all the mills in Northeastern Connecticut, employing about 18,000 operatives.

(Extracts from Editorial in New York Herald, November 24, 1919.)

"More and more it is realized that the Bible is the only book in the world which can be applied to all classes, all conditions, and all times."

"The Bible is found to be the best-known guide for social progress, for political construction, and for industrial peace. Its usefulness does not stop there. It is now employed to teach the lessons of patriotism and to inculcate the spirit of Americanism."

"The Bible is the only book in existence that never grows out of date, never loses its significance or power, never becomes stale. It is the BRIDGE WHICH MAY CARRY THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD TO SAFETY."
